We have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in our home for many years and bear cheerful testimony to its value as a medicine which should be in every family. Mr. Charles Beale, a stone cutter of Grand Island, came up Wednesday to change the inscription on the corner stone of the new school house. The inscription as ordered by the board of education, and placed on the stone, was plain "August 8th 1899," and was changed by the authority of someone, just who at the present has not been determined, to read "laid by the Masonic fraternity August 10th 1899."

E. S. Hayhurst has added to his stock of farm machinery a corn harvester, which works about the same as a self binder. This is a machine that is destined to come into general use in this country in the near future, as the feed question is going to compel greater economy of fodder just as our vacant land is more generally farmed.

Prof. M. H. Mead, the principal of our high school is off on a fishing excursion when one would naturally suppose he would be setting the example to our corps of teachers of attending the teachers institute now in session at this place. The two extra grades which have been so sadly neglected in our schools will require that the Prof be well informed in educational matters.

Word came to this city last Monday morning that a son of James Lang, living near Litchfield was accidentally and probably fatally shot last Saturday. We learn the he and some others were out picking choke cherries and when they went to the wagon to climb in an old rifle which was lying in the bottom of the wagon he was accidentally discharged, the ball taking effect in the hip and coming out near the abdomen. LATER We have since learned that it was a shot gun and that the boys chances for recovery are good.

The laying of the corner stone of the new school building was performed very successfully and without a hitch yesterday under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity, Judge Keyser, Grand Master of that order having charge of the ceremonies. About 200 people were on the ground to witness the occasion. After the stone was laid Judge Wall delivered a short oration. Mr. Wall made some very appropriate remarks, but the day being extremely hot he cut short his address and dismissed the people.

About one month ago my child which is fifteen months old, had an attack of diarrhoea accompanied by vomiting. I gave it such remedies as are usually given in such cases, but as nothing gave relief, we sent for a physician and it was under his care for a week. At this time the child had been sick for about ten days and was having about twenty-five operations of the bowels every hour, and we were convinced that unless it soon obtained relief it would not live. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended, and I decided to try it. I soon noticed a change for the better, by its continued use a complete cure was brought about and it is now perfectly healthy.—C. L. BOGGS, Stumptown, Gilmer Co., W. Va. For sale by Odendahl Bros.

W. H. Brown, of Rockville township made us a pleasant call last Saturday. Mr. Brown left us a copy of the David City News from which we extract a letter written by James Mailley, Chaplain of the First Nebraska Volunteers, also of the populist Nebraska Legislature of '97. The letter is on the first page of this issue, and, although, it comes from a populist it is patriotic and so unlike the rot copied by the Times Independent and that advanced by Mr. Bryan. But then Mr. Mailley writes from actual experience in service and the Times Independent generally gathers its source of information from the World Herald or Nebraska Independent unless otherwise contributed by local office seekers.

News reached this city last Monday morning that the little two year old baby girl of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Charlton, now living at Ord, Neb., had died and would be brought to our Evergreen cemetery for burial, where three of its little brothers and sisters had long since been buried. Little Dorcas E. Charlton was born July 14, 1897 and died August 7, 1899 at 1 o'clock a. m. The corpse was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charlton and remaining children, also Mrs. Craven, mother of Mrs. Charlton, and a few sympathizing friends. They arrived shortly after four o'clock and were met and accompanied to the burying ground by a number of citizens. The burial exercises were conducted under the auspices of the Masonic lodge of this city. The little sufferer was at first a victim of summer complaint which afterwards developed into pneumonia. The sorrowing family have the profound sympathy of their many friends here in their sad affliction. This is the fifth child they have buried, four at this place and one at Tacoma, all of which have died at a very tender age and practically of the same disease. They return to Ord Tuesday.

Wednesday morning A. Zink and James Burnett came to town and reported to the sheriff that they had been in a crazy man below town and coming this way, they had over-aken him and seeing there was something wrong they asked him whether he had had his breakfast and upon receiving a negative answer they asked him to ride to town which he refused, and turning away from them he pulled the head from a wild sun flower and ate it. The sheriff went to meet him and found him about a mile out, coming toward town. He brought him in and placed him in jail. He is a man over six feet tall and apparently nearly starved, and was so dazed that he did not know his name, but after eating a good meal and resting a few hours he said he felt much better and that his name was Thomas Lavand, and that he had two brothers living at Daxlin, Jefferson county Neb., but that he had come from Lincoln. It seems evident from his incoherent talk that he has escaped from some one of our asylums, but upon inquiry by Mr. Patton at the Lincoln institution they know nothing of him. He is dark complexioned, dark hair and mustache with several weeks growth of beard.

Other Dangers. "What are you reading about?" asked the man with the wise manner. "The stock market," replied the youth.

"Don't do it." "But I never put up any money. Therefore I can't lose."

"It makes no difference. You're likely to become one of these people who tell how much money they would have made if they had only done what they came pretty near doing, because they didn't see how things could go otherwise. And then even your best friends will wish sometimes that you would bet your money and lose it and keep still about it."—Washington Star.

A Fair Sale of Hay. Alfred C. Webber of Litchfield Center, Mo., has in his possession a small bale of hay, about 8 inches long and 4 inches deep and wide, and one of the reasons why Mr. Webber keeps this hay in his barn room is because it is nicely wired and put between thin pieces of boards so that no chaff can escape, but chiefly because the hay was cut as far back as 1749, on the John Rogers farm in Kittery. It was baled up by Mr. T. Traflet, who was a native of Kittery, and who is now a dealer in Massachusetts.

The Mystery of Warts.

When a youngster of 10 years, I was visited by a plague of warts. From my earliest recollection I had had on my middle finger an old daddy wart, but at the age stated this had multiplied to 40 or more, one being on my lip and one on my chin. I was considerably worried over my growing family of excrescences, and one day a woodchopper in my father's employ, who acted queerly, never wearing a hat, for instance, said that he could take the warts away with him. I was quite willing to have him try, and he took me off to a quiet spot under a willow tree, from which he cut a number of small branches, and these he cut again into little bits of an inch in length, making a notch in each one, and this notch he set down over each wart, having at last a collection of 40 or more of these little notched sticks. These he put into his pocket, saying that the warts would go away.

I could never say just when the prophecy was fulfilled, but within six weeks there wasn't a wart on my face or hands, and there has not been one since that time. What I want to know now, as I did then—and the conjurer would not tell me—is what did it. I have spoken to many doctors about it, but they merely laugh, as though I was giving them a "pipe talk," and yet the warts went away, and all the medicine I had ever tried on them had no effect whatever.—New York Sun.

His Opinion.

The woman who speaks her mind freely on all occasions had been telling the sad eyed stranger to whom she had been introduced what she thought of Mormonism. Her remarks were eloquent and acrimonious. She had a flow of language which never failed and was fortified with facts which could not be refuted. He listened patiently till she had finished and then said meekly, "Yes, madam; I'm a Mormon myself."

"I don't care," she exclaimed, though her face reddened a little. "A man ought to be satisfied with marrying one woman to wait on him and be browbeaten by him."

"I don't browbeat anybody," he responded reproachfully.

"It doesn't make any difference whether you do or not. No man has any business to marry two wives."

"I agree with you perfectly, madam."

"Ha! You admit it."

"Yes'm; no man ought to have two wives. If he takes more than one, he ought to stick to odd numbers and have three, five or seven. It obviates the necessity of a man's mixing in. In case of a family dispute it provides for a deciding vote and prevents a deadlock."

Fresh Laid. A lady who did not appear to be in a very good temper bounced into a certain grocer's shop the other afternoon.

"Is your father at home?" she asked of the small boy behind the counter.

"No'm," was the reply. "Anything I can do for you?"

The lady hesitated before remarking, "I've called to complain about the eggs I obtained from your father this morning. He told me they were fresh laid, and"

"Did he get 'em from the window?" asked the youthful salesman.

"Yes."

"Then it's all right, 'm—they're fresh laid."

"But I say they are not."

"You'll excuse me, 'm," said the youngster, endeavoring to be polite. "But I ought to know. They came in a crate yesterday. I unpacked every one on 'em an laid 'em there in the window only this morning. So I knows they're fresh laid, and that settles it."—London Answers.

Queer Origin of a Hotel. They say that the best hotel in Texas is to be found at Belton, a town on the Santa Fe road and is kept by "seven sanctified sisters," as the proprietors are popularly called. Several years ago a woman in the place and her husband quarreled over the best way of expounding the Scriptures to a Sunday school class and were so stubborn that they separated and were finally divorced.

This family controversy was taken up by the town, which was soon distinctly divided between the adherents of the husband and the adherents of the wife. The result was a large crop of voices, and seven husbandless women, including the original cause of the commotion, joined together and rented the town hotel. One of them did the cooking, another was parlor maid, a third made up the beds, and so they divided the work among them and ran the establishment on the co-operative plan.—Chicago Record.
