FLESH IS MAIN POINT IN RAISING HOGS

Hogs Exposed to the Hot Sunshine Day in and Day Out During the Summer Will Lose Much of the Gains They Make.

(By L. E. CHAPIN.) It is true that warm water is just as wet as cool water, but it is not so palatable, and the hogs will thrive better if they have a cool drink at least twice a day. Water should always be within reach. Hogs exposed to the hot sunshine, day in and day out during the summer will lose much of the gains they make, even though the clover fields be of the finest.

thing by rooting. Even if he doesn't, he has plenty of time to spare, and rooting will certainly not hurt him to any decided extent. When a pig's tail curls up in a crispy, tight sort of way, it is a sign he feels good, and is thriving. If it doesn't, he needs something to brace him up. Some farmers cut off the tails of their pigs, because they claim it takes ten ears of corn to raise one tail; therefore, they amputate, in the interest of economy. The man who breeds hogs with high ideals of perfection cannot succeed unless he keeps an active record of his breeding operations. He needs a blank book for the purpose, and must pay the most careful attention to entries.

LARGE PROFIT MADE IN RAISING CAPONS

Most of Work Can Be Done in Winter When Time is Plentiful with the Farmer.

(By MILLER PURVIS.) No one is better situated to raise capons than the farmer. On the average farm the additional work required to raise from 100 to 200 capons would not be noticed, and the most of this work can be attended to in the winter when time is plentiful with the farmer.

There are many stories told about the size to which capons grow, while the truth is that the ordinary capon will grow to but one or two pounds more than the ordinary uncaponized cockerel would be in the same time, and to secure this additional weight, extra feeding is necessary.

In preparation for capon feeding it is wise to hatch about twice the number of chickens as capons desired, for fully half are likely to be pullets.

The pullets may be kept for egg-production or may be sold for spring chickens, thus securing enough money to pay for raising the whole flock up to the time the cockerels are old enough to caponize, which is about twelve weeks.

The operation of caponizing does not require much skill, although the beginner will probably kill two or three at the start, which will not be lost for they bleed to death in about the same time as if they had their throats cut and are equally as good for table purposes as if bled in the latter way.

A set of tools for caponizing costs from $1.50 to $2 and with each set are sent directions that any one can follow.

After the caponizing, the cockerels become docile and quiet; they lose ambition and their combs cease to grow; in fact they shrivel, and when fed they eat their fill and then sit quietly around until feeding time comes again.

Capons always retain that sweetness and juiciness of flesh that is characteristic of the spring chicken—the reason they bring such a high price.

They are fed much as other fowls are fed, only they get more. About all they eat goes to the formation of juicy palatable flesh.

A few years ago capons commanded hardly any attention in the West, and do not yet bring the prices they do in the Eastern cities.

Crimson Clover Hay. Crimson clover hay must be cut early, otherwise the ripened hairs on stem and head may form hair balls in horses and mules stomachs. Very few cases recover.

Lime Starts Clover. In some Ohio experiments on cold, heavy clay, lying over compact, argillaceous shales, lime was found to be as urgently needed as phosphorus. It had become practically impossible to grow clover until lime had been applied, no matter how thoroughly the land was manured or fertilized.

Put Clover in Cocks. Put the clover in small cocks in the field. It cures better and handles more easily.

VALUABLE HINTS FOR THE SWINE BREEDER

Pigs Lose Thriftness and Constitution When Confined in Small, Unclean Pen.

In breeding swine, we must consider the type of hog the market demands.

Never sacrifice a good body in order to shorten the snout or decrease the size of the ears.

Buy a boar of some reliable breeder who has been working for years to get the correct type of a pig, and who is prepared to furnish the type you desire.

With well-bred hogs your feed and care will produce the best results.

It is a mistaken idea that breeding animals, to do well, must be fed only enough to keep them alive.

Swine are natives of a tropical climate and should have warm and dry quarters.

Feed a pig all he can eat without squealing. This can be done only by watching him eat and knowing just how much he needs.

Make a "sleeping-bunk" for pigs of a 2 by 4 foot frame set around the corner of the pen floor in which straw bedding is put. Have it away from the feeding trough and dirt. Locate it in a cool, shady place. The pigs learn quickly if it is their bunk and will occupy it. Keep clean.

It is any wonder that pigs lose their thriftness and constitution and become weak in the back with crooked legs when they are confined in an 8 by 10 pen that is cleaned but once a year, and then when the owner has time. Stop and figure the losses that result from pigs that do not do well and are restless, when all they need to make them comfortable and contented, is the run of a nice, clean pasture, where they can leave their droppings to the benefit of the soil.

Giving Young Horse a Rest. The three-year-old colts that have been worked during the rush season of the spring and early summer would appreciate being let out in the pasture now, where they can kick up their heels and do some more growing. The colt should not be worked too hard during the hot weather—if he is worked too hard he will never make the horse that he otherwise would.

Give the three-year-old, or even the four-year-old, if this is his first season of work, a rest during the excessively hot weather and he will put on a big growth before next spring.

Raise Colt on Cow's Milk. In case the mare dies or has no milk the foal may be raised on cow's milk, if the attendant conducts the work patiently and intelligently.

Making Farming Profitable. Knowledge and skill are the two things that are making farming both more profitable and more respected.

Farm Labor Problem. The problem of farm labor is now being successfully dealt with by the department of labor.

SIMPLY DEMANDING HER OWN

Recent Discoveries Show That Woman Has Retrogressed Since the Days of the Pharaohs.

In the days of the Pharaohs—no less than in the days of the Roman empire—woman was on a plane of equality with man. There is thus, perhaps, nothing so barbarous now in her demand for the vote. She is only asking for a little of her own back.

Sir Gaston Maspero has unearthed some Pharaonic papyri which throw an interesting light on the Pharaonic consideration of woman and marriage. In those days mankind evidently favored a kind of trial marriage, and this marriage woman entered on terms of perfect equality, or even, perhaps, on terms of superiority.

This was the usual Pharaonic marriage contract, as deciphered by Sir Gaston Maspero:

"Thou takest me to be thy wife and thou givest unto me a dowry. If it so hap that I tire of thee or that I cast my eyes on another than thee, I will return unto thee a part of thy dowry and will go where good seemeth unto me."

Five-Year-Old's Disapproval. Five-year-old Herbert, born of a bookish family, had learned to read so early and so easily that he scarcely remembered the experience. When his little sister began her studies Herbert watched her progress with interest. One day he confided to his mother:

"Ruthie showed me her new lesson book today, and it's the queerest thing you ever saw! Why, it just says, 'is it a dog? It is a dog. Can the dog run?' Yes, the dog can run, and a lot of silly things like that. 'Course I didn't like to say so, but I don't think much of that book, mamma. It didn't seem to me that the style had a bit of juice!"

Plain to Him. Among those visiting an art exhibition held recently in Cincinnati was an old German, who wandered about, looking at the paintings with interest. Finally, he stopped before a portrait which showed a man sitting in a high-backed chair. Tacked to the frame was a small white placard, reading: "A portrait of J. F. Jones, by himself."

The aged Teuton read the card, and then chuckled sarcastically: "Vot fools is dese art boopies," he muttered. "Anybody dot looks at dot picture would know dot Jones is by himself. Nobody else is in der picture."

New Cures. "Music is the latest cure for melancholia! What marvelous strides the science of medicine makes!"

The speaker was one of the leading boxers of the Chicago Athletic club. George Ade gave him a quizzical smile and said:

"Right you are, my boy! And they tell me, too, that a summer girl in a slashed skirt will cure a cold every time, while as for these new-fangled one-piece bathing suits like Annette Kellermann's—well, there's nothing better going for sore eyes."

Infallible Sign. Whenever Robert's mother went away on a visit, the little fellow was so badly spoiled by a doting father and grandmother that upon her return it took several applications of the rod to induce him to mend his ways.

One day, when she had been absent for a week, a neighbor asked Robert when his mother was coming home.

"Oh, she'll be back very soon now," he replied. "I'm beginning to get pretty bad!"

Good at Subtraction. "Is Jiggs much of a golfer?" "His form is very poor, but his arithmetic is excellent."
