

What seems to be worth while. If people could always have what they want when they want it they wouldn't want it.

Almost. It is almost come to pass that a man who doesn't wear a lodge or society button can pose as an eccentric.

Daily Thought. All virtues and dignities of mind are in the greatest, being the character of the Deity.—Bacon.

Peal Diplomacy. Diplomacy is the art of getting something when you appear to be going for something else.—Smart Set.

Daily Thought. The making of friends who are real friends, is the best token we have of a man's success in life.—Edward Everett Luck. The luckiest man in the world is the man who can marry his sweetheart and still have his sweetheart still.

Good Disinfectant. The addition of strong vinegar or dilute sulphuric acid to chloride of lime materially increases its effectiveness as a disinfectant.

More Than One Way to Succeed. Success may not depend so much on what you do yourself as upon what you can jolly others into doing for you.

Thought It Stopped to Think. One day while playing the piano my little cousin was sitting next to me, when she noticed that the music was stopping. She asked me what caused it to stop. I told her it was running down. She studied for a moment, then she said: "Why, does it have to think of another tune before it can play again?"—Chicago Tribune.

Modesty and Intelligence. It almost looks as if intelligence and modesty were two distinct things, and that it is safer to have intelligence than modesty. A person who has the former may get off scot-free, but to him of weak intelligence his modesty is of little avail when it suits the purpose of those who have the power of sequestering him, to use the language of the ancients.

The Rivals. It was at Nice. Two English girls were standing at the foot of a hotel staircase roaring with laughter. "For God's sake, Mabel, don't!" said one of the matrons who were with them. "They'll take you for one of those loud American girls." An American girl happened to be standing at the head of the stairs and quietly observed: "I guess not, with those awfully big feet!"

Coffee Bean's Growth. Healthy coffee trees produce in the middle of each leaf from twelve to sixteen buds, which in flowering have an exquisite perfume. These flowers bloom in three days, leaving groups of buds at the small stems. These in turn grow into the coffee berries, which closely resemble dark red cherries. Each berry contains two seeds, which face to face, and these are the coffee beans of commerce.

Green Corn in England. About 1890 an Englishman in Essex was gathering wisdom from the rest of the people of England began raising this maize for the London market, and the growers in the Isle of Jersey followed, so that today green corn can be bought from a few firms in the West garden and in the Brighton neighborhood, where reside many the people who acquired the green corn habit while touring this country, and maize is sold and understood.

Witty, But Rather Unkind. A friend of mine, says a correspondent of the London Chronicle, took a bid to the Gentlemen and Players match at the Oval. She enjoyed herself greatly, and begged him to take her to the Eton and Harrow match at Lord's next day. This, for certain reasons, he was unwilling to do, so accused himself on the ground that as he was neither an Eton nor Harrow he did not propose to go to the match. The lady, much nettled, retorted quickly: "Then why are you here, because you are neither a player nor a gentleman?"

Folk-Lore. The term folk-lore was first suggested by Mr. W. J. Thomas in 1846 to designate what was then for the first time becoming a subject of wide popular interest, considered as a department of the study of antiquities or archaeology, and embracing everything that related to ancient observances and customs, to the notions, beliefs, traditions, superstitions and prejudices of the common people.

The Universal Deluge. Scholarship has long ago rejected the ancient Hebrew tradition of a universal deluge. It appears that the tradition occurs in the writings of nearly every people, the old Babylonian story being among the oldest. It was from the Babylonian that the Hebrew scribe got his story—a story that has long since ceased to have any scientific value.

Mildew Stains. Mildew stains are sometimes a source of great trouble, and are difficult to remove unless you know just the right way. Rub a little soap over the mildew spots, and on top of this a little chalk and lemon juice. If the garment is then put out in the sun for a couple of hours and afterwards washed in the usual way the spots will disappear.

All sorts of stories, not lies, if you please, are told of the late big storm. One of these is to the effect that some of the drifts between Loup City and St. Paul were from 25 to 35 feet high in some of the cuts, and the rotary cut tunnels through some of them, which finally caved in only after the snow had melted from succeeding warm weather. Just where the snow went that the rotary cut loose and fired upwards and on either side, the truthful liars say not; probably carried it through the enforced tunnel and deposited it beyond. Accommodating rotary, eh?

Fewer Women Than Men Color Blind. "Where one in thirty women is slightly color blind one in five men is so."

The physician continued his experiments with the testing machine. "You," he said, "can't tell green from blue and are therefore defective, sir. But you are not absolutely color blind. Absolutely color blind persons are very, very rare. I have met but one. He couldn't tell red from yellow or yellow from blue."

"Why are men's eyes less reliable than women's as regards colors? Some say it is the tobacco smoke that dulls and weakens them. I have noticed that non-smokers have somewhat sharper vision."

Education and Matrimony. A teacher in one of the local grades was speaking to the mother of one of her girl pupils not long ago about the frequent absences from school. "You know she won't be promoted," pointed out the teacher, "unless she is more regular in her attendance."

"Yes," put in the other, "and I don't want her to be promoted. I want her to stop school and then when she gets older she'll get married, as every girl ought to. My two daughters that stayed in school aren't married yet and the one that didn't finish up at school could have been married about four times, and when she did marry she was only 19. I'm going to take this one out of school and bring her up right."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WEALTH IN SANDS OF OCEAN. Cheap Mining the Problem That Has to Be Faced.

From Shasta to San Diego, all the way along the shores of the Pacific ocean there is gold in the black sand which, for the greater part of the length of the state, underlies the gray and yellow sand of the beach. This has been known to mining men for a score of years or more, but ever since they found it out they have been completely baffled in all efforts to get it.

The values in the sand are low, not more than 25 cents per ton, and the sea washes heavily over all manner of structures which are set up on the beach to separate the sand from its gold. These were the two principal obstacles to be overcome: To find a machine which would withstand the storms of winter and the tides of summer and at the same time be delicate enough to draw the gold from the black mass of the beach.

At last, however, the riddle has been solved, despite the wrecking of one of the plants with which the work was commenced, and a recent clean-up of one day's run of 1,000 tons of black sand paid $200 over and above all expenses. The full value of the gold in the sand, could it have been entirely removed, would have been $250, the actual amount taken out was about $25 worth, making the cost of handling that 1,000 tons of sand a trifle more than three cents a ton, the cheapest mining yet known to man.—Technical World Magazine.

SOME LARGE FRENCH FAMILIES. Official Statistics Give Figures That Are Rather Surprising.

Small families are the rule in France, but there are some striking exceptions. The following data were taken by Consul Chapman Coleman of Roubaix from the latest official statistics of the population of France. According to these statistics the total population of France is 38,350,788. The female sex exceeds the masculine in numbers, the figures being, respectively, 19,533,899 and 18,816,889. On the other hand, an excess in the number of unmarried is shown on the masculine side, the respective figures being 9,917,178 and 9,114,356. There are 2,384,897 widows and divorced women, as against 1,005,884 widowers and divorced men.

The number of French families is 9,781,117, of which 1,214,775 are without children; 2,249,777 have but one child; 2,018,665 have two; 1,246,264 have three; 748,841 have four; 429,799 have five; 248,159 have six; 138,769 have seven; 71,841 have eight, and 32,917 have nine children. These figures represent, in a rapidly decreasing proportion, the number of families having a large number of children.

For about two-thirds of the families of France the average number of children does not exceed three; while for about 1 1/2 per cent. of them the average number is seven, and for less than one per cent. of the families, eight children. Twenty-four families are recorded, however, as possessing 17 and 24 as possessing 18 children.
