J. W. BURLEIGH, Ed. and Pub.

Do you know, the godfather of some boys is enough to disintegrate them

We have the veriest contempt for the fellow who will besmirch the name of a fair woman in an attempt to down a man whom he hates.

Among those spoken of for governor, we hear the name of Dempster, the Beatrice windmill man. He should be able to sail along very smoothly, by forcing the wind in his favor, if necessary.

If accepting a salary of $3 per day for presiding over the lower house of the legislature is a recommendation for the gubernatorial nomination, then Judge Sears has the edge over Rouse about three-fold, for Sears got three times the graft out of it that Rouse did.

Before we get into the Norris Brown band-wagon, we would very much like to know the kind of motive power propelling it. If it is the Harrison gas, with Brother Bill as "chauffer," we'll have to do some hard thinking first. The Franked kind is not so bad, but the other is too Billious.

The latest to enter the race for governor is Senator Sheldon of Cass county. As Mortensen stepped out, two men from the same territory shielded their castors into the ring. They were Judge Paul Jessen and George Sheldon. Now we understand that Jessen gives way to Sheldon, and with the understanding that Jessen is to slip into the shoes of Pollard, congressman from the second district, and that Sheldon, a cousin of Pollard, is to help Jessen to oust the present congressman, who has strong sentiment growing against him. If Jessen is into any such game, we hope Sheldon and he will both get left.

As we said last week, Treasurer Mortensen has withdrawn his name from the list of gubernatorial possibilities. This has given an impetus to a number of patriots (?) who desire to enter the race. Among these we notice the name of ex-Speaker Rouse, who is so little known that his front name escapes our memory. This Rouse is the man who tried to carve fame while speaker of the last legislative house by placing a stigma on the honesty of employees by making them appear each morning at a certain place to enroll their names, to show they were present and entitled to draw pay for that day. But while Rouse exhibited such superlative honesty in his supervision over the employees, he was very willing to take from the state treasury $3 per day for presiding over the house, which Attorney General Brown decided was clearly unconstitutional, and did so draw $60 for the first 20 days as presiding officer, and so far as we know still has it credited to him, in face of the fact that he knows he has no right to it. And this is the kind of a man who poses as suitable material for chief executive of this state! Bah! And this is only one of the many reasons why he shouldn't be countenanced.

Old Kentucky in Border Days
Arminius P. Culley of Loup City, one of the leading bankers of Nebraska, is attending to business interests in Omaha for a few days. Mr. Culley is president of three banks, First National at Loup City, Greeley and State Bank of Sargent, beside which he was the organizer of the First National Bank at San Pedro, Cal. He is also a big land owner.

Mr. Culley is a Kentuckian, born and bred; in other words a thoroughbred, but while retaining warm affections for his native state he prefers Nebraska to live and work in. During his boyhood days in old "Kentucky" Mr. Culley witnessed one of the many stirring events which were enacted there in the old "border days."
"I was at Brandenburg the day the Jam and Younger boys were attacked by town people who were scouring the country for some 'boss' thieves," said Mr. Culley. "I was only a boy about 10 years of age. I remember Frank James and Cole and Jim Younger went into the old hotel and were followed by an angry mob. The people didn't know who the Youngers and James were; all they knew was that they were strangers and it was a bad thing in those days to be a stranger in a community where a 'boss' theft had been perpetrated. First thing I knew some one whipped out a pistol and began shooting. A fusillade followed and when it was over Jim Younger and Frank James were pretty badly shot up. They managed to get out of the hotel and scramble up over the mountain to an old doctor's place where they received treatment. Public sentiment was against the men who shot the strangers after the first excitement blew over, for it became apparent they were not the horse thieves."
"And do you know it was only a few years ago that the people of Brandenburg really came to know who the men were that were shot that day."
Mr. Culley is an advocate of the present persistent movement for reform in financial as well as political affairs in the country.—Omaha Bee.

Ashton News.

Bennet Lorenz returned from Grand Island Wednesday.
Thos. Jamrog returned home from Omaha Saturday evening.
Mrs. Seabek, Sr. who has been sick for some time, is reported better.
Frank Jingle was up from Rockville visiting his friends and relatives.
We have good prospects for three saloons in our little berg this summer. The work on the hotel has been delayed on account of the bad weather. M. Vincent received a message from St. Paul stating his father was very ill. Wm. Pone had the misfortune to get his arm broken by a kick from a horse.
Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Conklin came up from St. Paul Monday evening, for a few days.
Miss Josie Polski entertained a few friends Sunday evening in honor of the anniversary of her birthday.
S. Galczenski will put in a line of hardware as soon as Thos. Jamrog & Son move out of his building. He is building an addition to his barn during his leisure hours.

Cleora Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Zwink visited relatives in Ashton this week.
Owing to the illness of the teacher, Miss Maude Reynolds, there has been no school this week.
Again our attention has been called to the danger and absurdity of the old-time country serenades. Last Saturday evening a number of boys met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Johnson, to serenade them, but the fun had scarcely begun when a one accidently shot Felix Kowalewski through the arm. Dr. Long was called to dress the wound and when last reported the patient was doing as well as could be expected.
