They will give the Sargent people their money's worth and then some. Special music at the Presbyterian church next Sunday evening will consist of a solo, "Judge Me, O' God," by B. P. McKinnie; anthem "Hail to the Brightness," by the choir, and a soprano solo, "Thy Will Be Done," by Miss Lizzie Leininger. All invited. You are cordially invited to attend the services at the Baptist church next Sunday. The morning subject will be, "A Cluster of Ails." The evening service will be of an evangelistic character. Special music will be furnished by the male quartette. Messrs. Pedler and Elsner are engaged in a very commendable rivalry on the beautifying of their city residences, both making new cement walks, setting out shrubbery, sowing to grass their pretty lawns, and otherwise making splendid improvements. Sheriff Williams has received a petition from over on Clear Creek, protesting against Sunday ball games. We do not see how the sheriff could interfere without complaint filed, and as one of the petitioners is a justice of the peace, it would seem he had the proper authority within himself. It's a horse on Conger, yet. Some three weeks ago, THE NORTHWESTERN published a stray notice of a blind horse taken up by Stewart Conger, and thereby hangs a tale, horse and all. It seems that sometime in March Thos. Shettler gave an old blind horse to Ed. Knight. Knight's boy came after the horse, but in the meantime the equine had strayed away, and the boy returned home minus said horse, but without notifying Mr. Shettler of the sad (?) quest. The animal came to the hospitable stables of Stewart Conger and put up for feed and recreation. Stewart advertised it in THE NORTHWESTERN and finally Lee Burnett accepted the blind stager, with the understanding to pay the advertising bill. He then gave the horse to Jake Beneschoter on the latter's settlement of all advertising and feed accounts, which the latter generously paid, "unsight and unseen." Jake then disposed of the four-footed animal to B. W. Parkhurst, in return therefor receiving another horse, which he sold or traded to J. S. Casada. Parkhurst, after seeing what he had, took the beast back to Conger's comfortable quarters, notified Stewart of the advent of the much transported skel-eton to his tender care, where it now rests. In the meantime, Parkhurst replains the horse traded to Casada, and there the matter rests, with the "horse on Stewart Conger."

Mother Called Home.

On Tuesday morning of this week, at 5:30 o'clock, Grandma Long, amidst her surviving sons, daughter and other near relatives, sweetly breathed her last, passing into the great beyond as quietly and painlessly as into the sleep of an innocent babe. Funeral ceremonies were conducted from the home of her son, John W. Long, with whom she has passed the latter part of her life. She was a member of the Methodist church conducting the services, and this morning her remains, accompanied by the immediate family and relatives, were taken to the old home at Clarinda, Iowa, there to be deposited by the side of her husband, a son and a daughter, who had passed on before. Grandma Long (Catherine Reid) was born in Pickaway county, Ohio, Nov. 17th, 1819; departed this life May 8th, 1906, at Loup City, Nebraska, aged 86 years, 5 months and 25 days. She was married to Edward Long, Sept. 12th, 1844, and was the mother of seven children, three of whom survive her, namely, George G., Ella R., and John Wallace Long. She with her husband, shortly after their marriage, removed to Page county, Iowa, where she lived after the death of her husband until 1887, when with her surviving children she removed to Loup City, which has been her home till the angel of death summoned her to meet those gone before. From early life she had been a consistent and earnest worker in the Methodist church, finding her chief source of joy and comfort in its devotional services. Grandma Long was one of those self-sacrificing characters, who ever believed it was more blessed to give than to receive. She gave her all to her children, endeavoring to guide their feet in the paths of happiness and peace, and though far past the allotted span of life, her life has been one perpetual blessing to those she loved and to the community in which she lived. Requiescat in peace. The order of Knights of Pythias met at the residence of their esteemed brother, Sir Knight Long, this morning, and acted as escort to the family and remains of the dear mother to the U. P. train which contained their sad errand. A large concourse of our citizens also assembled at the depot in kindly memory of the dear old lady. THE NORTHWESTERN is requested by the bereaved family to tender their heartfelt thanks to all those whose kindness, sympathy and assistance was extended to them during the illness and subsequent death of their beloved mother. Notice Hayhurst's big ad. this week. C. H. Leininger, undertaker and embalmer. Calls answered day or night. WANTED:—Competent girl for housework. Apply to or phone Mrs. H. B. Musser, N29. Dr. Long has received word that his daughter, Miss Hazel Long, at Clarinda, is nicely recovering from her siege of inflammatory rheumatism, and will soon be able to make her journey to Loup City. And the good doctor is correspondingly elated over the prospect of soon seeing his loved one. A new partnership in the real estate business in Loup City has been formed between Editor E. A. Brown of the Times-Independent and J. E. Nicoson, with office in the Times editorial rooms. Now will the old firms have to spool harder than ever, when Ed's gentle, persuasive powers are enlisted in the same cause. We wish the new firm unbounded success. The services at the Presbyterian church last Sunday were of especial interest. Besides the always excellent discourses of the pastor, Rev. McEwen, the morning service was enlivened by a glorious duet by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Leininger, while at the evening service, besides a most difficult, though very sweet anthem by the choir, Messrs. Bert McKinnie and Charlie Minshull gave most preciptious solos. The Presbyterian services each Sunday are proving a very joy in the church musical lines of our city.

BUSINESS END

HOW TO GET RESULTS FROM A Manure Spreader

Of all parts of a Manure Spreader the Beater Wheel, or business end, is apt to have the least consideration. In reality it is the most important part of the whole machine when it comes to satisfactory work. The Beater Wheel on the Litchfield Spreader is peculiarly constructed. It is different from other machines, like many other features on this original spreader. It is built for strength, but everything else is not sacrificed. We have often wondered why some makers of spreaders give so little attention to this most important part of the machine. It is the part where the least aggravation or unnecessary friction multiplies rapidly by the time it reaches the team. The bars in the Litchfield Beater Wheel are cross pivoted and the teeth are square, but have a screwed end so that when they are put in the bars under heavy pressure, they turn once around and it is simply impossible to get them out without splitting the wood. No other machine uses this precaution, which prevents the teeth coming loose in cold weather when frozen material is handled and other obstructions are encountered. The teeth are extremely long so that the load is distributed without resting against the bars themselves and for this reason light draft is the result. These teeth are set so that every fraction of the surface of the load is penetrated at each revolution of the wheel. A very important point. The arrangement of these teeth is so planned that the material is thrown from the center outward, making perfectly even distribution, although the load may be piled higher in the center. If any of our customers will compare the long, high carbon teeth of this beater and their arrangement and the method of attaching them, with any other machine on the market, we will abide by the results. Come and let us show you. We can do it. We have the machine to back up every statement. Do not fail to read next week what we have to say about the traction drive on this modern Spreader.
