A merry war is on in the state democratic camp over the county op-tion question. County option believ-ers are circulating petitions for Bryan ers are circulating petitions for Bryan for the U. S. senate, and very few democrate are reported as refusing to subscribe their names, while the anti-optionists securing control of the democratic state organization, gives promise of the fight in state democracy being with Bryan on one side and the organization on the other. In the meantime, things are looking more promising for the republican convention, having a county option plank in its piatform.

Nearly Lost an Eye

F. A. Pinckney met with an accident on Tuesday morning nearly costing him an eye, if, indeed, not narrowly escaping death. He was trying to split some piping connected with a cultivator, driving a chisel into the opening to widen it, when the chisel was suddenly forced upward, striking him over the right eye, cutting several deep gashes in the nose and bones above and below the optic. He had the wound attended by a physician and will undoubt-
