The Wall Flower

By TEMPLE BAILEY

Carlton, coming into the hotel from the wind-swept night, was dazzled by the brightness.

"What's going on?" he asked the clerk.

"There's to be a dance in the dining room," the clerk said. "It is such a beautiful weather outside that the young folks thought up this way of spending the evening. You'd better dress and come down," he continued, with a glance at Carlton's cardrags.

Carlton shook his head. "I don't care much for that sort of thing," he said. "I've had so much of it all my life." He tramped away to the smoking room, where he read the papers with the strains of the dance music beating in his ears.

On his way upstairs he stopped on a landing which led to a balcony which overlooked the dining room. Heavy red velvet curtains were draped back on each side of the entrance, and there were three or four deep velvet chairs drawn back from the railing. In one of these chairs, crumpled up and crying, was a girl. Carlton couldn't see her face, but there was a brightness about her hair and a grace in her relaxed figure which piqued his curiosity, so he stood very still, waiting. Presently the girl stopped crying and sat up and saw him.

"Oh!" she said, involuntarily. "Is there anything I can do, Miss Wharton?"

Carlton's quiet manner took away from his offer any hint of impertinence. "You seem to be in trouble," he said.

The girl stood up. "Oh, no," she said, with some decision. "It was silly of me to cry." Then, as his eyes still questioned, she flashed out her grievance.

"Does a man ever know what it means to be a woman to be a wall flower?"

Carlton looked at her incredulously. "Surely you haven't had such an experience."

"Yes I have," she said. "I sat out three dances, and then I came up here; it was too humiliating to be seen alone."

"But why?" he demanded. "I know you dance well; I saw you the other night. And as for beauty, well, anything I could say on that subject would be superfluous, Miss Wharton."

"But I'm not young any more," her hands were clasped tightly. "Don't you see those boys down there like

Her Head Was Up and Her Eyes Were Flashing.

the youth of the younger girls, and I'm not used to being set aside; I've always been first."

"But you're young," he said incredulously. "Why are you calling yourself old?"

"Because I feel old. I can't joke and chatter as I did a few years ago, yet it isn't easy to give up my place to the younger girls."

He sat down in one of the big chairs beside her. He had talked with her before at the table, and now and then on the porch when the storms of the early spring started a little and made out-of-doors possible. She had always seemed reserved, and this outpouring came as a surprise.

She seemed to feel that she had said too much, and she apologized.

"If you hadn't caught me crying I should not have said a word; it must seem very silly to you."

"No, it doesn't," he said. "Perhaps men don't feel as much the loss of youthful prerogatives, but when I go to our alumni meetings at college and the younger fellows show plainly that they look upon me as a back number I have a little of the feeling which now oppresses you."

"It's dreadful to grow old," she said.

He shook his head and smiled. "No,

ANTIQUITY OF THE SUNDIAL

First Dial on Record Probably Set Up by Ahaz About the Year 771 B. C.

The glamour of antiquity hangs over the sundial, for we read that "When Ahaz set up a dial about 771 B. C., probably the first dial on record. In long centuries after, we occasionally find them mentioned in literature and in the early days of the Anglo-Saxon tongue we find them referred to."

In olden times a sundial was considered almost a sacred thing, really an outdoor altar, and both poets and prose writers have paid their respects to it. Charles Lamb wrote:

"What a dead thing is a clock, with its ponderous embowlements of lead and brass, its pert or solemn dullness of communication, compared with the simple altar-like structure and silent bear language of the old dial! It stood at the garden god of Christian gardens. Why has it almost everywhere vanished? If its business use

No Use Worrying.

There's two things that are no use worrying about, just two. One of 'em is the thing that a body can't help. 'Tother is the thing that a body can help.—Aunt Huldah," by G. M. Cooke and A. Macgowan.

AIRY FAIRIES.

"What becomes of all the smashed aeroplanes?"

"They sell them to the girls for hats, I guess."

ECZEMA GONE, BOILS CURED

"My son was about three weeks old when I noticed a breaking-out on his cheeks, from which a watery substance oozed. A short time after, his arms, shoulders and breast broke out also, and in a few days became a solid scab. I became alarmed, and called our family physician, who at once pronounced the disease eczema. The little fellow was under his treatment for about three months. By the end of that time, he seemed no better. I became discouraged, and as I had read the advertisements of Cuticura Remedies and testimonials of a great many people who had used them with wonderful success, I dropped the doctor's treatment, and commenced the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a few days noticed a marked change. The eruption on his cheeks was almost gone, and his shoulders, arms and breast were decidedly better. When he was about seven months old all trace of the eczema was gone.

"During his teething period, his head and face were broken out in boils which I cured with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Surely he must have been a great sufferer. During the time of teething and from the time I dropped the doctor's treatment, I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, nothing else, and when two years old he was the picture of health. His complexion was soft and beautiful, and his head a mass of silky curls. I had been afraid that he would never be well, and I feel that I owe a great deal to the Cuticura Remedies." Vagaries of Finance.

"I understand you have paid the mortgage of your place."

"Yep," replied Farmer Cornsloss.

"Then why do you complain of hard times?"

"All the neighbors have done the same thing. That leaves me with money on my hands that nobody wants to borrow."

A Corner in Candles.

As an example of trusts and monopolies prevalent even in that early day it may be mentioned that in 1750 one Benjamin Crabb obtained the exclusive right to make sperm candles in Massachusetts for 14 years.

A year later, however, a factory was started in Providence, R. I., and within the decade there were eight factories in New England and one in Philadelphia. Their output greatly reduced the price of candles, which not long before sold for five shillings a pound. In those days $1.25 was worth fully three times as much as it is now. —From the Designer.

That Essential Struggle.

There are men who go through life without ever getting what one would call a throw-down or set-back—they never get to know what it means to face rough or tough weather. Their way is slicked and paved. They seem to miss the one great essential thing in every success—the struggle; days when everything looks as though one is about done for and ready to cave in.

Give Defiance Starch a fair trial—try it for both hot and cold starching, and if you don't think you do better work, in less time and at smaller cost, return it and your grocer will give you back your money.

"Now, that was a wrecking crew worth while—it was the worst smash-up I ever saw, and in 20 minutes they didn't leave a sign of it."

The Walkers.

James M. Beck, the famous corporation lawyer of New York, is a native of Philadelphia, and to Philadelphia he often returns to see his old friends.

Mr. Beck, in a recent banquet in Philadelphia, defended corporations with an epigram.

"The trust buster and the Socialist may do what they please," he said, "but mankind will still be divided into two great classes—those who walk to get an appetite for their dinner, and those who walk to get a dinner for their appetite."

BURDENS LIFTED FROM BAD BACKS

Weary is the back that bears the burden of kidney ills. There's no rest or peace for the man or woman who has a bad back. The distress begins in early morning. You feel lame and not refreshed. It's hard to get out of bed. It hurts to stoop to tie your shoes. All day the ache keeps up. Any sudden movement sends sharp twinges through the back. It is torture to stoop and straighten. At night the sufferer retires to toss and twist and groan. Backache is kidney ache—a throbbing, dull aching in the kidneys. Plasters or liniments won't do. You must get at the cause, inside.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

GIVEN UP TO ME.

Mrs. M. A. Jenkins, Quannah, Tex., says: "I was bloated almost twice my natural size. I had the best physicians, but they failed to help me. For five weeks I was as helpless as a baby. My back throbbled and the kidney secretions were in terrible condition. The doctors held out no hope and I was resigned to my fate. At this critical time, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and soon was cured."

How To Tell When The Kidneys Are Disordered--

Painful Symptoms: Backache, sideache, pains when stooping or lifting, sudden sharp twinges, rheumatic pains, neuralgia, painful, scanty or too frequent urination, dizzy spells, dropsy.

Urinary Symptoms: Discolored or cloudy urine. Urine that contains sediment. Urine that stains the linen. Painful passages. Blood or shreds in the urine. Let a bottle of the morning urine stand for 24 hours. If it shows a cloudy or fleecy settling, or a layer of fine grains, like brick dust, the kidneys are probably disordered.
