Aurora Man In Danger Zone

Brother of Our Wm. Larsen in War Stricken Mexico

Palomares, Oaxico, Mexico, Mar. 12, 1912—Hamilton County, Register Aurora, Neb.—Kind Friends: We have been slow to write you for some time but we have had to much to think about that we have hardly had time to write you.

Besides, we did not know what to write. I thought I would wait until perhaps, I could write and tell you that this country was again at peace, but I am sorry to say it is in worse shape than when Mr. Diaz left here, according to my view of the situation. I do not leave home very much unless business calls me away, but I had to go to Salina Cruz yesterday, and I knew I would have to go through some dangerous territory. When we got to the junction of the Pan American railroad at Gamba, soldiers were sent with us from there to Salina Cruz. The Pan American railroad has been out of commission for some time and it is not known when it will be repaired. The crew were making good progress last week and had repaired one bridge and were fixing another. When the second one was finished, the crew started back to Gamba for more repairs and provisions, but when they arrived at the first bridge rebuilt it had been burned down again by the rebels. The jungle is thick with rebels who will destroy as fast as the railroad is rebuilt, and it is now hard to get anyone to work on the road, as they are continually in danger of losing their lives.

Last week the government captured about one hundred rebels on the Pan American line, and put them in a box car to be shipped to Mexico City for execution, but some of them felt too big to be shipped in a box car, so all refusing to enter were lined up on the side of the car and shot on the spot.

Yesterday the train on the Vera Cruz al Istmo was robbed by the bandits and they got over $1,000. The train has been robbed in that vicinity three times lately. So far we have not been molested here, but we are looking for trouble any time. We will stay as long as we can, for we have property here now valued at about $4,000 gold, and should we leave it would all be destroyed.

We will have nearly three hundred colonies of bees at the end of the present month, and we have been able to sell them for $15 (Mexican) per colony and the honey at 20 cents per pound but at present business is poor. Last year we sold $1,300 worth of bees and honey in eight months (United States currency). There are many different ideas in regard to the outcome of the present uprising. I may be mistaken, but I think there is very slim show of the present government ever controlling the uprising now. It will be only a short time, however until we will know the fate of the country.

Should we get a good strong government soon there will be the greatest rush to this country ever heard of as there are great opportunities here—all we need is a settled government.

The Americans seem to be leaving here at the rate of from three to four hundred a day as well as other foreigners, but we are in the most peaceful part of the republic. We are enjoying good health and have no complaints to make outside of the uprising in the country. With kind regards to yourself and our friends in Aurora and vicinity, I remain, Very truly yours, B. E. LARSON.

- One attorney general.
- One superintendent of public instruction.
- One commissioner of public lands and buildings.
- One railway commissioner.
- One congressman.
- One state senator.
- One state representative.
- One county attorney.
- One county commissioner.

Keystone's Extensive Improvements

Which Will Make It One of the Up-to-date Yards

For some time, the Keystone Lumber Company have had in contemplation extensive improvements to their big plant, but the weather has been so rotten they could not go ahead. However, as the weather gives way to better conditions, the company is going ahead with them. They have already dismantled their old sheds, preparatory to building a modern lumber plant.

The improvements contemplated include a fine office building, immense warehouses and moulding bins. The office building, the plans of which may be seen at their present office, give evidence of what their new one is to be. The new building is to be 20x60 feet and 16 feet above ground, with a basement under the entire building. The walls are to be of brick and will be faced on the east and south fronts with the Coffville pressed brick, the finest made. The building will be divided into three office rooms, a fire-proof vault and warehouses, and will be equipped with all of the modern conveniences, including furnace heat, water, elevator and electric lights.

The sheds will also be up-to-date, the larger one 40x100 feet, a twin shed of the double-deck type. The lower deck will accommodate all the common lumber, while the upper deck will be enclosed and used for the better grades. The roof is to be constructed with a twelve-foot hood, thus protecting the stock from any possible damage from the weather, and will be covered with Kleet Genasco roofing.

These new improvements will permit the Keystone to carry a larger and more complete stock than they have heretofore been able to do, and the one great feature will be that every foot of material will be in the dry.

In our great slogan, "Stand up for Loup City," it might be well to mention that the plans for these buildings were prepared by home talent, showing we have architects within our city confines second to none other, and besides the Keystone company will use none other than home labor in the construction of their plant.

The plant when completed, will be one that Loup City can justly be proud of, and it is safe to say no town of this size will be able to boast of a more modern building and yards than that of the Keystone Company.

Electric Light News Good

News along the lines of our electric lighting system is framing up good since the weather is becoming good also. Wiring is progressing along rapidly and in all matters pertaining to the proposed system things are reaching the climax.

The big flouring mill that has been in process of moving for the past two or three weeks and which has been held back by the fearful weather, is now within a few hundred yards of the railroad tracks, where it took a rest Tuesday because of the softness of the ground which made it impossible to get foundation solid enough to allow it being moved forward. Workmen are busy with teams and with men tearing up the frozen earth for the excavation ready for the mill, which is to be at the northeast corner of E. G. Taylor's lots just east of his business office, and by the time the mill building gets up to that point the boys will have the excavation ready for its resting place.

Just east, and alongside the mill is to be erected the brick engine building and power house of the electric light plant to have a 32-feet frontage and extending back 62 feet, the erection of which will begin at once. At the rear of the engine house will be placed a big oil tank, with a capacity of 10,000 gallons.

The old Standard Gauge building, purchased by Mr. Taylor for a storage house for electric supplies, is moved south to the alley, as it stood where the mill and electric power house are to be located.

A large flour house, 32x40 is to be erected south of the mill on the alley to hold the finished products of the mill. Engineers were on Tuesday staking the ground for the side track from the B. & M. tracks to the mill, which will be built along and three feet inside the brick sidewalk leading from the depot to the corner just west of the mill site, which will be the individual property of the mill and electric light companies and will make the loading and unloading of the mill products an easy proposition beside the costly teaming from the railroad to the former mill site, and save the mill company thousands of dollars in transportation.

All in all, the weather behaving itself from now on, we will have the new electric lighting system ready for and in active operation before we hardly realize it is here to make Loup City a city of the first class.

The bodies of the convicts Taylor and Dowd have been turned over to medical colleges, friends of the murderous dead rascals not coming forward to claim the bodies.

The governor wants all state institutions turned over to a non-partisan board and taken out of politics. A good idea.
