The Younger Brothers who have spent the past twenty-five years in the Minnesota penitentiary on a life sentence was given a conditional pardon last Saturday.

Governor Savage paroled ex-estate treasurer Bartley last Saturday for sixty days with the understanding that the parole would be made permanent if Bartley would do certain things which were not made public at this time.

The old Columbia, the yacht that beat the England yacht, Shamrock I in the previous international race has proven her self the superior of Constitution, the new defender, in several test races, and it is very likely that she will be again chosen to meet her old antagonist, as Shamrock I, has also defeated the new challenger, Shamrock II.

Norlin, the populist treasurer of Kearney county, defaulted for more than $15,000. He confessed, returned over six thousand of it, was tried and sentenced to six years in the penitentiary all in 24 hours. The fact that Norlin was a populist is no argument against the party, but it does exemplify the fact that they are made of the same kind of clay that other parties are manufactured from. Some are and some are not and that settles it.

Boys with hats on the backs of their heads and long hair hanging down over their fore-heads, and cigarettes and smutty stories in their mouths are cheaper than old worn out horses. Nobody wants them at any price. Men will not employ them and girls will not marry them. They are not worth their keeping to anything, and they will never be able to keep themselves. If any boy happens to read this who answers to this description let him take a good thoughtful look at himself and then do what his conscience says is the best thing to do.—Ex.

Two weeks ago we made a trip by team to Arcadia, and as we wandered up the valley, between fields of wheat, oats and corn, we were greatly impressed with the prospects, that should have been, for a golden harvest. Wheat and oats standing waist high and corn to your arm pits. But alas the festive chinch bug was having a holiday in the wheat fields, the oats he did not relish so much but the corn, his second love, he was marching on toward it with colors flying as it stood trembling in the breeze, and well we knew that held stationary as it was by the hot, dry weather when his ravages began it would fall an easy prey to his never ending capabilities of destruction. We wondered as we crossed our great (and dry) irrigation ditch, how many acres of golden corn could have been saved from the chinch bug if it would only rain right real good, about twice a week for 6 weeks, thereby forcing the corn ahead to an extent that bugs would not destroy it. Our minds rambled on in this strain until we came to the Arcadia mills, and as we drove onto the bridge that crosses the ditch, our eyes beheld a sight that would cause the most pious Loup valleyite to utter cuss words. There before us, washed by a hundred thousand barrels of Loup river water, was probably 25 leads of manure stretched across the mouth of the finest ditch in Nebraska, it's immense bulk turning the placid waters back into the mill race and returning it to the river from whence it came. We felt like Job's wife, only we were aware that the anathema should descend instead of ascend. We thought the people of this valley are capable of being led by the proverbial little child. Our children may yet cry for bread and our famished kine low for corn while we are out rustling coyote scalps to pay our taxes to settle for that ditch, but then, "every dog has his day" and ours may come some time.

CLERICAL NOTES

Miss Brenner will teach the fall term in Dist No. 35. Chinch bugs are ruining the corn, by the small grain fields. J. H. Bone is trying to stop the chinch bug's course through his corn field by inoculation and ditching. A. L. and G. W. Zimmerman took 15 head of steers to market Monday morning. G. W. Zimmerman and family visited J. H. Bone and family Sunday.

People are very busy cutting their small grain as it is getting ripe and beginning to fall. Some fields are greatly damaged and is being cut for feed.
