

THOUSANDS OF WOMEN ARE SLOWLY DYING FROM CATARRH

Pe-ru-na Cures, That is Why the People Like It.

All the Advertisement in the World Could Not Make Pe-ru-na as Popular as It Is.

Miss Margaret Donnelly, 21 Webster Place, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "Pe-ru-na was recommended to me about a year ago for catarrh with which I had been troubled nearly all my life, but which had given me serious trouble a few months before I took Pe-ru-na. In two weeks my head cleared up, I did not have headaches, and in a short time felt perfectly well."—Margaret Donnelly.

November Colds Should Not Be Allowed to Develop into Chronic Catarrh.

Pe-ru-na Cures a Cold Promptly and Permanently.

"I am glad to recommend Pe-ru-na as it has done so much for me. I had been a great sufferer from catarrhal colds until I was urged to try Pe-ru-na, and I am happy to say that it has entirely cured me. I shall never be without it and most cheerfully recommend it to others who are afflicted as I have been."—Katherine Dauter, 239 13th St., Milwaukee, Wis.

neighbor recommends it to neighbor. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh permanently, and this way has gained a life-long friend. People who have been cured by Pe-ru-na many years ago have been eager to recommend Pe-ru-na to their friends ever since. This is the way Pe-ru-na is advertised. It advertises itself. Its merits are its chief advertisement. Once cured of so distressing and expensively a malady as catarrh, it becomes the duty of every one to pass it along; to call the attention of those who are still victims, to a remedy that rarely fails to cure.

Beware of Cheap Imitations of Pe-ru-na. Be sure that you get Pe-ru-na.

There are no substitutes for Pe-ru-na. Allow no one to persuade you that there is something just as good. The success of Pe-ru-na has tempted many people to devise cheap imitations. Beware of them. Be sure that you get Pe-ru-na.

Miss Jennie Driscoll, 870 Putnam Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I heard so much in praise of Pe-ru-na as a specific for catarrhal affections that

Family of Fighters Hails from Missouri

James Monroe Dolan and his wife, daughter and five sons were living in Cass county, Mo., when the civil war began. Early in the first year of the conflict the five sons enlisted in what was known as Biedoe's Gentlemen's battery, which became famous before the war ended.

One of them soon after became a captain. Their command followed Gen. Sterling Price across the Missouri border into Arkansas and afterward became part of the army of which Albert Sydney Johnston was commander.

In the second year of the war three of the brothers were captured. The captain was sent to Camp Douglas; the other two were sent to Alton (Ill.) military prison.

All were exchanged within six months and returned to service. They later went to Virginia and were with Lee. Two remained with the army of the James until the surrender.

Six months before the surrender, three were with Gen. Joe Wheeler's cavalry when Sherman was fighting his way to the sea, and they remained in service until the surrender to Sherman.

They all returned together, safe and unscarred by bullet or saber, to the county in which they enlisted. They all began farming in the same county.

They had two uncles who lived in the county adjoining, and these, likewise, enlisted at the beginning of the war, fought until the surrender and returned to their farms, safe and sound.

During the war the mother and daughter of the Dolan family attended to the farm and planted and raised crops until the border warfare, waged between Quantrel and Jernison, drove them from their home. They were subsequently banished by the famous order No. 11, issued by Gen. Ewing.

They did not, however, leave the state; but in another county they were able to give considerable aid and comfort to the southern cause in many ways, any one of which would have led to their imprisonment if the Federals had ever known of their sympathetic acts. In a word, they were frequently spies.

The father of the family was on the staff of Gen. Francis Marion in the Florida war and afterward was a judge in Cass county, Mo. His falling sight prevented his enlistment in the Confederate cause.

All the sons are living but one, and not far from where they enlisted. One of them, the captain, was appointed postmaster at Freeman, Cass county, Mo., only a few miles from his boyhood farm in Cleveland's first administration and continued through the administration of Harrison and Cleveland's second administration, remained during the administration of McKinley and, so far as is known, he is now serving in the administration of Roosevelt.

A son of one of the brothers enlisted in the Spanish-American war, and if he did not get to Cuba, it was not his fault. For a family record in three wars this has few, if any, equals.

Courtiers Hasten to Meet Shah of Persia

In a description of the hurried journey of the whole of the shah's court along the Teheran-Rersht road to welcome his majesty at the frontier on the return of the potentate from his European tour, a correspondent at Teheran cables:

"It was the strangest of pictures—the finest spectacle the eye of the artist, enamored of quaint contrasts, or of the student, searching for the unchanging East, could hope to see.

For hours at a time streamed past a ceaseless procession of camels, mules, horses and carts laden with paraphernalia. After the advance guard of Russian-drilled cavalry came a regiment of infantry, slouching along the road in every variety of patched and tattered uniform, once shabby. Some of them wore two shoes of different pattern, and most of them none. The majority were old men and mere boys. Rifles of all patterns were stuck promiscuously on the back of any unobjectionable mule. Each large band instrument crowned, in solitary grandeur, the load of a pack camel.

"When a mishap necessitated re-packing a load in the middle of the road, one got a glimpse of costly carpets, of tents with walls of many colors, robes of honor, silken embroideries and quilted bedding. Here and there a silver ewer or piece of gaudy French furniture, tied on loosely with a bit of string, kept clanking at the side of the mule.

"Officers of the household, with silver staves, funkies in scarlet coats, high officials in full-waisted black coats, mullahs with green and white turbans, Persian ladies shrouded in ample black domino and with thick, white veils, jostled in bewildering confusion along the roads or sat in groups in the rest houses. Farther on were the two huge camps of the imperial harem, suddenly commanded by telegram from Europe to meet the shah at the frontier. The total cost of this motley pilgrimage probably was more than $200,000."

Well Prepared for Change of Weather

He attracted some attention as he walked along the street.

"An actor," commented some of the crowd, "and in costume."

"Absurd!" was the judgment of others. "A sword alone does not constitute a costume, and why should he wear one without the rest of the regalia?"

"And such a sword!" was the criticism of still others. "The scabbard shows that it's round and as fat as a Bologna sausage."

"Sir," said one of the bolder ones, addressing the subject of the comment, "why do you go abroad thus strangely equipped?"

"Which is one way of saying that we have not."

"I would infer as much. Have you noticed the weather lately?"

"Assuredly. Do you not see that we carry umbrellas, even to our great discomfort?"

"To your great discomfort, yes," returned the stranger. "So also did I until recently, for the rain cometh this season at unexpected moments, and he who strays a stone's throw from home is likely to get caught in it. Furthermore, it is the nature of the umbrella that it shall linger in forgotten places, so that when one would have it it is not at hand. Wise, indeed, is he who does not unnecessarily tax his memory, but leaves both brain and hands free for the ordinary duties of the day."

As he paused the clouds opened and the rain came down.

"Gentlemen," he said, "a shower." Reaching to his side he drew his umbrella from its scabbard and quickly raised it.

"Another summer like that of 1902," he commented, "will find all men wearing umbrellas even as I do mine."

And then he passed on, the envy of all.—Brooklyn Eagle.

CHOOSING A WIFE BY MUSIC.

German Professor Has a Plan He Considers Infallible.

A German professor proposes to solve the difficulty some people seem to have in choosing a wife by "trial by music." Everything depends on the taste of the subject under study. If she prefer waltz music, and above all Strauss' intoxicating strains, she is certainly frivolous. If she loves Beethoven she is artistic, but not practical. Does she prefer Liszt? Then she is ambitious; while a devotee of Mozart would be rather prudish. Why an admirer of Offenbach should be cunning is not very clear; but remembering the opera of "Faust," it is easy to understand that any girl preferring Gounod must be romantic and tender-hearted.

It is hard upon Flotow that because his music is out of fashion a taste for it denotes a vulgar soul; while Gottschalk fares little better, pleasing, according to the German professor, only the superficial. Massenet is supposed to attract the timid; while a devotion to Wagner's music is a distinct proof of egotism. Saint Saens, however, is a composer the admiration for whom denotes a girl of intelligence and well-balanced character.—London Express.

MISSIONARY PROWESS.

Fine Points for Judiciary Students to Puzzle Over.

John Chalmers, the missionary friend of Robert Louis Stevenson, and every inch a man, once telegraphed to England: "Getting in trim for next season. Ask Jones send one gross tomahawks, one gross butchers' knives. Going east, try make friends between tribes." London was convulsed over the missionary's peculiar way of promoting friendship with the New Guinea cannibals. Chalmers had learned that no other two articles were so likely to do this. The knife and the tomahawk were popular for purposes of barter among people who would have no use for copies of the "Encyclopaedia Britannica" or cuts from a fashion magazine. The telegram was incongruous only to the ignorant.

But what shall we say to the French police department which the other day announced the sale by public auction of revolvers, jimmies, bowie knives, knuckle dusters, etc., seized on the criminals arrested during the last twelve months? As it is forbidden by law to have such articles in one's possession, it would seem that the state is aiding and abetting a felony in selling them to the public.

Beauty may be only skin deep, but the impression it makes extends much deeper.

A SURPRISED PHYSICIAN.

A dying patient recovers through the interposition of a humble German. Chicago, Nov. 15.

Some weeks ago Dr. G., a very reputable and widely-known physician, living on C— Street, was called to attend a very complicated case of Rheumatism. Upon arriving at the house he found a man about forty years of age, lying in a prostrated and serious condition, with his whole frame dangerously affected with the painful disease. He prescribed for the patient, but the man continued to grow worse, and on Sunday evening he was found to be in a very alarming condition. The knees and elbows and larger joints were greatly indamed, and could not be moved. It was only with extreme difficulty that the patient could be turned in bed, with the aid of three or four persons. The weight of the clothing was so painful that means had to be adopted to keep it from the patient's body.

The doctor saw that his assistance would be of no avail, and left the house, the members of the family following him to the door, weeping. Almost immediately the grief-stricken ones were addressed by a humble German. He had heard of the despair of the family, and now asked them to try his remedy, and accordingly brought forth a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil. The poor wife applied this remedy. The first application eased the patient very much; after a few hours they used it again, and, wonder of wonders, the pain vanished entirely! Every subsequent application improved the patient, and in two days he was well and out. When the doctor called a few days after, he was indeed surprised.
