Omaha is to have a "clean-up of unlicensed booze joints, if we are to take the word of Police Commissioner Ryder of that much abused, and with not in justice, city of numerous illegal booze joints. To the honor of the chief city of the state, let us hope the police commissioner is in earnest and can deliver the goods.

Taft says he will win in the National Republican convention on the first ballot. Roosevelt is equally certain he will win on the first ballot. The people are really hoping neither is correct in their belief and that some other man will be chosen. Hughes of New York would please the people as the coming man, and Cummins also looks good to the "common people."

Isn't it about time our people began to work for a new, decent, substantial, commodious and up-to-date court house for Sherman county? Why not? You cannot find a resident or property owner in Sherman county but is ashamed of the tumble-down affair we have, by courtesy called a "court house". God forgive that designation of the old shell.

In spite of the fact that a majority of the senate investigating committee gave Lorimer of Illinois a clean bill of exceptions to the complaint of bribery in his election to a seat in the U. S. senate, it is said that a majority of that august body cannot swallow the findings and will oppose his being seated. If such proves to be the result, the senate will have purged itself of one of its most disgusting and rotten members-elect. Over the country at large it would be as difficult to find a defender of Lorimer as to find the proverbial needle in a haystack.

In New Jersey, the other day, as La Follette had finished a speech, he was asked the question as to whether he was in favor of prohibition, to which, and without a moment's hesitation he answered, "No." He then added, "The question is unfair, as that question is not up before the people at this time. But I have answered it. Now, ask Roosevelt; and Taft the same question; and see how they will answer." The next day at Ashbury Park, N. J., the same place in which the question was asked La Follette, Roosevelt, as he closed his speech, told the crowd he would wait for any question to be asked, but no question was forthcoming. Later the Colonel said he was ready to answer the question propounded to the Wisconsin man, but did not offer to say what his answer would be.

Before returning home, George added his name to the Northwestern's list of readers, saying they wanted all the news from their old home, and it was in the Northwestern. Many thanks.

Not Exciting. Mrs. Stirling used to tell how, during a brief holiday to somewhere on the Clyde, being kept indoors by three wet days, Stirling read the Greek Testament continuously aloud to her, first in Greek and then in English. She was a truly religious woman, but she ceased to be glad when the rain ceased.—Life of James H. Stirling.

Time Told by Shadows. Among curious clock novelties is the shadow boudoir clock. With it there is no need of getting up to strike a light or turn on the bulb. All that is necessary is to touch a button and the time is flashed on the wall, after the same fashion that signs are flashed on the sidewalk. When the owner of the clock retires he turns a night dial to the ceiling and when he presses a bulb the electric light reflects from the dial through the lens and appears, giving the correct time in shadow on the ceiling.

While plowing on Tuesday of this week, C. J. Norstedt found a patch of ground about three rods in length from which he plowed up a collection of human bones, among them being skulls. It was perhaps an old Indian burying ground. Here is food for a romance.

H. P. Nelson visited at the home of his father last week.

One of the most exciting runaways took place on Route 2 the past week, of any this spring. While a boy of 14 years, driving a 4-horse team attached to a disc was crossing a little draw in the field that had been quite badly washed in last week's rain, one of the horses stumbled and fell, and in trying to regain its feet got the other horses excited and all four horses started on a run, the disc striking the washout, throwing the boy to the ground. In some manner one of the lines got wrapped around the boy's legs. By this time the horses were in full run across the field, dragging the little fellow by one leg. The runaways ran about 40 rods right towards the boy's father, who was listing corn in the same field. Imagine the feelings of the father watching his son dragged behind a disc with four horses attached. However, the horses were finally stopped by the father, with no damage to them, or to the disc, and the boy also came out without a scratch, outside of a sprained thumb.

THE PROPER THING TO DO. Rev. M. H. Jordan, former pastor at Conway, Iowa, who seems to fully understand himself, recently said in the pulpit: "Encourage the local newspaper man. I suppose that we do not know how much thought, care and anxiety it takes to get the local newspaper in our homes. There are annoyances and perplexities, and perplexities and annoyances connected with the publishing of the paper that no one knows anything about except the editor. Gathering the items of news and the necessary material for each week's issue is in our estimation a great task. That the editor is expected to get a correct account of the week's happenings in each week's paper he must spend time in thought in preparing editorials and notices of various descriptions, and must study what people want to read and put in the kind of news people want. The editor must be careful about the grammar and orthography and use his commas, colons, semicolons, periods, quotations and interrogation marks in proper places. He must make the paper as attractive as possible. Let us encourage the editor. If he gets out a good paper tell him so. Our local paper would be a credit to a town many times the size of this. Encourage the local newspaper man with your words and means. Don't think he will be arrogant, puffed up or vain. Before the night or day which you say encouraging things to the editor there will be some one who will drop into the office and say depressing things about the paper—find fault with something. What would a town be without a local newspaper? We need the local paper so let us help encourage the one who makes the local newspaper possible in the village."

A courier taking leave of Louis XIV, who was sending him as an ambassador to a foreign court, was told by the king: "My most important instruction for you is to pursue a policy entirely different from that of your predecessor." On Sanity's Border Line. Experts can hardly define the thin line that separates the insane from the sane. There is a twilight of the mind in which many people buy and sell, love and divorce, marry and give in marriage and live and die. At no time in their lives are they really insane more than a few moments at a time and yet they live in a world that is jangled, out of tune and different from that all around them.
