How Dead Horse

Got Its Name

Forty years last Sunday, or to be more definite, on April 13, 1873, occurred the big blizzard, in which U. S. Troopers camped on Dead Horse in the south part of this city, saving their lives by getting shelter under the banks and in dugouts, but losing some 28 head of their horses, causing the name Dead Horse to be attached to a small creek which passes through this city and emptying into the Loup just below the city. Following is a short historic sketch of that great blizzard, which was state wide and left death and destruction in its wake: "On April 5, 1873, a squad of government soldiers was scouting over the country under command of Captain Munson and Captain Mix, with William Wentworth, better known as 'Buckshot,' as scout, and on the date above mentioned came into camp at Loup City. They were here but a short time when one of the worst snow storms this country has ever known set in. The settlers told them they had better take their horses to the timber and camp there, but they preferred staying in town. The storm grew violently worse and they were compelled to abandon their wagons and tents and seek shelter in the log cabins with the citizens. The storm lasted for three days, during which time the soldiers could not get out to take care of their horses and mules. Some 28 head drifted into the creek south of town and smothered to death, having been covered with the drifting snow. This is how the stream derived the name of Dead Horse creek."

An Ideal Bakery

Last Saturday from 2 to 4 in the afternoon and from 7 to 9 in the evening, the Ideal Bakery, opened in the old opera house, gave receptions to the public, serving free sandwiches and coffee to all who called. Over four hundred of our people from town and country took advantage of the invitation, and all expressed themselves highly pleased over the opening of such an elegantly appointed bakery, restaurant and lunch room in our midst. Mr. Dolling has had the old opera house remodelled in fine shape, has nice furniture and fixtures, large and up-to-date ovens, and turns out bread, cake and pie stuffs that the mere sight of gives appetite to even the most fastidious epicurean. He is a first-class baker in every respect and is even now kept busy night and day in the bakery to furnish the trade coming to him. We not only wish him the best of success, but know he will have it to the fullest extent.

Partial Paralysis

The many friends of Mrs. Mary A. Gardner will be pained to learn that the dear old lady last Friday suffered a paralytic stroke, destroying her power of speech and confining her to her bed. Just how severe the stroke or what the result cannot be determined at this time, but let us trust she may speedily recover her normal condition.

Special Teachers' Examination

Notice is hereby given that there will be a special teachers' examination held on April 18 and 19, 1913, in all county certificate subjects. The reading circle examinations for the year will be held on the third Saturday in April, the 19th, and the third Saturday in May, the 17th. These examinations will be given on the dates mentioned in the afternoon only. Teachers will be required to write on either "How to Study," or on "The American Rural School," and in addition answer any two questions from the list on "The Personality of the Teacher." The last number assigned the applicant for the regular examination will be used for the reading circle examination that is, the last number assigned before certificate was issued. No additional fee will be charged for taking the reading circle examinations. The county superintendent has a supply of reading circle books at the office which will be furnished to teachers at the price given in the booklets sent to teachers some time since.

The Rexall Moves Into New Home

The Rexall drug store has been moving into their new and commodious quarters in the Waite block the past few days and as we go to press can be said to be fairly at home. Their formal opening day will be this week Saturday, as announced elsewhere in this paper. For a fact, Messrs. Vaughn & Hinman are the possessors of one of the most elegant and nicely appointed stores to be found anywhere in the state. Not even in Omaha or Lincoln may be found a drug store with finer fixtures than have been installed by The Rexall Drug Co. The fixtures, which were made to special order, were designed by Mr. Vaughn, and to describe them in detail would occupy too much space. The show cases are made entirely of plate glass with marble bases, and the entire furniture of The Rexall is of plate glass and quartered oak with marble bases, making at once most elegant, expensive and beautiful quarters for the firm. This, together with the store's position in a large new building situated on the best business corner of the city, with full plate glass front and also plate glass windows on the northeast corner of the main room, make it at once a pride to The Rexall and to our people and city as a whole.

DEATH'S HARVEST

Mrs. Gordon-Chamberlain
Word was received here Sunday of this week, announcing the sad news of the death of Mrs. Adella H. Gordon-Chamberlain of Elm township, 15 miles west of this city, who died suddenly at about 7 o'clock the preceding evening, leaving a young babe of only three or four days of age. A very short time before she died, her sister-in-law and near neighbor who had been with her for a number of days, returned home, being assured by Mrs. Chamberlain that she was feeling especially well and comfortable, but before the lady had reached home she was hurriedly recalled to the bedside, but the young mother had passed away before her arrival. Deceased was united in marriage at the home of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Shetler, in this city only the 5th of last May, to Mr. Chester C. Chamberlain, and her death comes under peculiarly distressing circumstances.

Adella Hope Gordon was born near Loup City, Dec. 11, 1886. At the age of four years she moved to Missouri with her parents, where her mother died a short time after. She attended school at Parkville college, Parkville, Mo., from which she graduated in 1906. She was baptised by Rev. C. P. Manck of Waldo, Kan., pastor of the Church of the Brethren, which church she united with and continued a faithful christian until her death. She returned to her native state about four years ago and taught school until the time of her marriage to Mr. Chester Chamberlain, May 5, 1912. She leaves besides her husband and infant baby, a father and sister.

The funeral was held at Beulah Chapel, 3 miles north of Litchfield, conducted by Dr. Leeper, Methodist minister at Loup City, who also married the bride and groom May 5, 1912, as stated above. The deceased was a remarkable lady of great worth as was evidenced by the large crowd present to pay a last tribute to the remains.

C. S. Cash

On Tuesday of this week, April 15, about noon, occurred the death of Mr. C. S. Cash, at his home some 6 miles west of this city. Deceased had been in ill-health and under his physician's care for several months from a complication of troubles. For the past number of days preceding his demise he had been lying in a comatose state arousing sufficiently to recognize the dear ones around his bedside the day prior to his death, relapsing soon into sleep and passing quietly away. Deceased moved here from Boone county a few short years since and leaves a wife and family, some arriving to manhood's years. The sympathy of our entire community goes out to the afflicted ones. He was aged about 56 years.

Hugh McGee

At the hospital at Grand Island on Tuesday of this week, occurred the death of Mr. Hugh McGee, aged some 23 years, of Davis Creek, twelve miles northeast of Loup City. Some months ago he was operated upon for appendicitis, but was obliged to go to the hospital for a second operation, his death resulting there as above mentioned. He leaves a wife and young babe. He was a son of G. H. McGee, also of Davis Creek.

V. W. Krise

Word was received here last week by Mrs. J. A. Gilbert of the death at Mahama, Oregon, of her son-in-law, V. W. Krise, on the 5th instant, at the age of 81 years. The many friends of Grandama Gilbert and other relatives will sympathize with them in their sorrow.
