TO BROADEN SCOPE

NEW AVENUES OF INQUIRY ARE OPENED BY COMMITTEE.

SKELETONS TO BE UNCOVERED

Actions of Senators and Others Will Be Looked Into in a Thorough Manner.

Washington.—Lobbying as a fine art, how it is done, and who is responsible, what ends are sought and what results are accomplished, probably will be investigated by the special senate lobby committee before it concludes its work and submits a report to the senate. For nearly two weeks the five senators on the committee have listened to testimony that has dealt almost exclusively with the influence exerted on the tariff bill, but it has uncovered enough trails to lead members to believe that campaigns of every sort, political, industrial and economic, have been conducted much along the same lines through paid agents in efforts to create public sentiment favorable to the causes concerned.

The committee decided in executive session to submit to the senate the question of a further broadening of the scope of its inquiry.

May Extend Time Limit.

It was believed that the time limit of twenty days imposed on the committee would be extended and that the investigation would go into every possible phase of what the committee suspects is lobbying. Any skeletons that have dangled in the closets of congress and any soiled linen that may have hung there will be exhibited to the public eye and legislation to impose drastic restrictions upon lobbying and the "acceleration" of public opinion may result.

The committee's decision came at the end of a day filled with sensations. On two occasions President Wilson figured in the testimony. Senator Gallinger told the committee that in his opinion the president had once come at least "dangerously near lobbying" and Truman G. Palmer, Washington representative of the United States beet sugar industry, declared that a "plate matter" campaign, much similar to the one conducted in newspapers by him had accompanied the campaigns of the president and Representative Underwood before the Baltimore convention.

Senator Cummins cross-examined Mr. Palmer at length about the details of his newspaper campaign and developed that to the best knowledge of the witness many of the big interests of the country were engaged in similar efforts to mould the opinion of the country.

CONFERENCE HELD

STATE COMMITTEE MEETS TO CONSIDER REMOVAL.

BEN HUR INSURGENTS ACTIVE

Claim Supreme Body Has No Right to Order Increased Assessments.

Lincoln, Neb.—The State committee met in Lincoln for the purpose of preparing plans and a statement relative to the cost of removal of the State university to the State farm or for buying land for the purpose of extension just east of the present site.

A proposition of Lincoln merchants was made that the state will not have to pay more than $300,000 for the six blocks needed for the extension downtown.

Something like a hundred merchants signed a bond guaranteeing that the cost should not exceed that amount to the state, and it is understood that the committee, or at least a majority of it, is in accord with the plan.

The committee, consisting of Senator Reynolds of Dawes, Representative Mockett of Lancaster and Regents Coupland and Allen met and talked over the proposition, but came to no definite conclusion, as it will be necessary to get the estimates of experts who are looking over the two propositions.

Estimates made heretofore have placed the value of the six downtown blocks at figures ranging all the way from $300,000 to $700,000, and it will require something more definite to satisfy a portion of the committee before the proposition offered by the Lincoln people is accepted.

Ben-Hur on Trial.

A hearing on a protest against an increase of rates charged by the Tribe of Ben-Hur was held by State Auditor Howard. The rate adjustment protest committee of Nebraska consists U. G. Powell of Lincoln, J. T. Potter of Seward, W. I. Allen of Schuyler, Joseph H. Smith of Richland, H. G. Waters of Lincoln, W. Edwards of Nebraska City, A. E. Napier of Schuyler, F. Dolezal of Fremont.

Mr. Allen and Mr. Dolezal will present to the state auditor an important legal question. They contend that the Tribe of Ben-Hur has no representative form of government and is therefore not legally entitled to transact business in Nebraska. The executive committee of the order endeavored to pass a resolution which, if enforced, would give the organization a representative form of government, but the Nebraska objectors allege that the executive committee has no power to make a law for the order, this power being centered in the delegates or representatives of local orders voting in the supreme body.

The proposed adjustment of rates would increase the premiums paid by U. G. Powell of Lincoln, 420 per cent. In the readjustment those now in the order get no credit for the time they have been members except three years' credit if they go into class B July 1.

Objection is also made on the ground that 80 per cent of the first twelve payments will go for expenses, and leave less for the death or mortuary fund than under the old plan. Under the readjustment a member cannot transfer his policy from one class to another except on his attained age.

John C. Snyder, supreme scribe of Crawfordville, Ind., will appear before the auditor. The insurgents in the order first organized at a convention held at Indianapolis, Ind., April 20. The Nebraska state organization of insurgents was organized in January. In the petition filed with the state auditor it is charged that the company is operated for the benefit of a ring.

WOMAN SEEKS HER AFFINITY

Travels Far and Wide Looking for Unknown Who Dying Husband Said She Should Wed.

New York.—The most remarkable story told for many moons to sly news reports was recited here by Mrs. Eugene Williams, beautiful, wealthy, aged nineteen, and a widow, as she sallied away for Sweden to find an affinity she has never seen, nor whose name she does not know.

"My home was in Detroit," said Mrs. Williams. "When I was sixteen, Mr. Williams, who lived in Pittsburgh, met me. It was love at first sight. We were married. Two years ago he died. On his deathbed he called me to him. 'I don't want you to marry again unless you marry one of my boyhood chums,' said my husband. 'He lives in Sweden. He is your perfect affinity.' Before he could say any more he died.

"Three times since then I have sailed to foreign lands, looking for my affinity. A dozen times I thought I had found him, and became engaged"—and here the little widow displayed a hand covered with solitaires—"but each time I found it was not the right man. I don't know his name, don't know what he looks like. I don't know anything about this man who he lives somewhere in Sweden.

"I was quite discouraged when I got back last time. Then I consulted spiritualists. They located my affinity for me and now I am going to where he is. When I find him we shall be married. I'll let you boys know all about him if I should marry him," said the girl waving a farewell from aboard the liner.
