Narrowly Escaped Fatal Injury

The first of last week the little son of Milo Gilbert came near death, or at least serious injury, and as it was he was badly bruised about the body. He attempted to climb on a heavily loaded wagon, when he slipped and fell between the box and brake as the team made a sudden start. He was rescued before reaching the ground in front of the wheel and being crushed to death.

Just Straight Wind But Mighty Fierce

This section of God's county, after a little too much "dry" work, was visited last Sunday evening by nice rain of 60-100th inches. The storm broke over Loup City at 10:15, preceded and accompanied by one of the fiercest straight winds ever known in this section. Trees were pulled up by the roots, great trunks split down the middle, branches broken off and scattered over the country, fences laid low windmills blown down and the deuce played generally. From what we could learn the storm was wide spread. It came from a little north of west and seemed to make small flying machines of all things movable. However, no fatalities are reported and no serious damage anywhere. Among the incidents noted following the scare in this immediate vicinity were:

A big tree, 17 inches in diameter at R. L. Adamson's torn up by the roots and taking with it some ten feet of earth each way.

The trunk of a big shade tree in front of Dr. Kearns' residence split in two from roots up several feet to the main forks.

The high board fences around the Hosier and Miner livery stables laid low.

The windmill belonging to N. Jensen just northeast of town, was made a total wreck, while a wagon, box and all was lifted on top of his chicken house, which latter was protected by a line of trees or would have been wrecked and 300 chickens scattered over the prairie.

A report from Arcadia says one of the livery stables there was struck by lightning during the storm and burned down.

A false fire alarm here during the early part of the storm brought out the fire laddies, but they found merely the fisherman's luck.

All over this section we hear of minor damages incident to the heavy wind, but luckily none of much moment.

Glorious Fourth Here and There

The great National holiday has once more come and gone. That is an original remark, isn't it? But it has at least the merit of being truthful, even if somewhat bewhiskered. And another thing, it was observed, in this part of the moral heritage in a perfectly safe and sane manner. We have not at this writing, several days afterward, heard of one accident as a result of the day's jubilee in Loup City or Sherman county. Good record, don't you think?

The day opened beautiful in Loup City and in fact all over the best bounty on earth, and the winking hours were not, as in former years, greeted with the senseless din of exploding cannon crackers and small musketry of the lesser evil, and so continued throughout the day.

Jenner's Park, of course, was the Mecca for all celebrators in and coming to Loup City, and there from early morn till the wee sma hours of the coming day joy reigned supreme. The park grounds were dressed in their holiday best, and at the height of the day, and when the crowd was the biggest it was estimated that 2,000 people were inside its gates. The forenoon was given over to picnic and dinner parties, viewing the animals, and enjoying the hours in a quiet way. The afternoon brought the exodus from town and country till by evening fairly swarmed the grounds. The hours were passed in various sports, games and entertainments till the shades of evening fell, when a splendid pyrotechnic display, followed by dancing in the pavillion closed the day. To much praise could not accorded our splendid band which was a feature of the day. Among the attractions note were the snakes and handling of the same by our local snake charmer, Harry Gardner; the antics of the park policeman, A. T. Conger, and his stump speech; the clown act by Bob Jenner and his monolog act: the ocean wave, the white donkey for the little ones, etc.
