HONOR DEAD HEROES

FIVE MINUTES' SILENCE SHOWS RESPECT.

PRESIDENT MAKES ADDRESS

Big Gettysburg Reunion Closed With a Brief Speech by President Wilson.

Gettysburg, Pa.—The regular army paid tribute to the thousands who sleep under the hills of Gettysburg. Somewhere down in the heart of the tented city a bugle sang out in silver sweet call that wandered over the field where Lee and Meade made history.

The big flags before the headquarters of General Liggett, flashing in sudden curves of red, white and blue, glorious in the sunshine of a perfect July day, came slowly half-way down the shaft. In front of the tent, shoulders squared, figure trim in summer uniform of white, face toward the flag, the general clicked heels together and stood attention.

Somewhere the guns of the Third battery burst into staccato salutes. Every officer over the length and breadth of that wide field, every enlisted man, turned away from the duties of the moment, faced the flag, heels together, heads up and eyes averted with the sentiment of the hour.

As the last gun of forty-eight sent the echoes clattering about Seminary ridge and Round Top there was solemn silence, the hush of peace. Old veterans, who did not realize, perhaps, exactly, what was going on stood silent under the spell of the universal feeling that seemed to sweep the field. Even the clatter of pots and pans in the mess tents was hushed and the yells of cooks about to dish up the midday meal lowered to whispers. For five minutes the camp was quiet. Then the bugle spoke again in notes more joyous. The silken flag leaped up the staff to its very pinnacle and the noises that 40,000 men can make resumed their sway, the regular army's tribute to the dead and to the flag of a reunited nation. That five minutes' silence was probably the last formal mark of the semi-centennial celebration.

Exchange Treaty Ratifications.
Washington.—Ratifications of a new treaty between the United States and Italy, the first of its kind ever negotiated by the American government, were exchanged by Secretary Bryan and the Italian ambassador. Under its terms the United States guarantees that an Italian subject shall have the same right as a citizen to sue in its courts for damages on account of the death of a relative and Italy gives the same guarantee to American citizens.

The new convention is a result of a new decision of the supreme court of the United States holding that an alien had no right to bring such a suit. Similar treaties between the United States and other countries probably will follow.

Bullet Glancing Hits Wagon.
Kansas City.—A bullet fired by a negro at George Wern, also a negro, in the course of a quarrel, struck Wern on the forehead, glanced from his skull and wounded Mrs. Edward T. Smith, 60 years old, who was passing in a street car. Mrs. Smith was treated at the city hospital and her wound pronounced not serious. Wern, after mopping his brow, went about his business of celebrating the Fourth. The negro who fired the shot escaped.

Dashes Brain Out.
Chautauqua, N. Y.—Oscar Williams, aged 40, a steepjack by trade, was instantly killed at Mayville, while performing a "slide for life" hanging by his teeth to a pulley on a rope stretched from the court house dome to a tree about 350 feet distant. He succeeded in making the slide, but the buffer of grain sacks proved inadequate and his brains were dashed out against the tree.

Mayor Closes Saloons.
Chicago.—Seventeen saloon licenses in what formerly was the south side segregated district were revoked by Mayor Harrison. This was the result of an announced stroll taken by the mayor last night through this district.

Federals Execute General.

Composer a Suicide.
St. Cloud, Minn.—Ludwig Hamm, aged 32, a German composer, jumped from the second story of a hotel here and was instantly killed. Illness it is supposed, caused him to become temporarily deranged. He was prominent in musical circles.

Street Sweepers Strike.
Chicago, Ill.—The city administration became a strike victim when two hundred street sweepers struck for an increase from $2 to $2.50 a day. Their places have been all filled.

MEAD'S HEADQUARTERS AT GETTYSBURG

VETERANS HEAR THE PRESIDENT

Mr. Wilson Delivers Address at Gettysburg Celebration.

DRAWS LESSON FROM BATTLE

Declares Great Army of the People Must Fight Peacefully to Perfect the Nation

Gettysburg, Pa., July 4.—National day in the semi-centennial celebration of the Battle of Gettysburg was made especially notable by an address delivered by President Woodrow Wilson. In his audience were many thousands of the veterans who fought in the great battle, as well as a great throng of other visitors.

The president's address follows: Friends and Fellow Citizens: I need not tell you what the battle of Gettysburg meant. These gallant men in blue and gray sit all about us here. Many of them met here upon this ground in grim and deadly struggle. Upon these famous fields and hillsides their comrades died about them. In their presence it were an impertinence to discourse upon how the battle went, how it ended, what it signified! But 50 years have gone by since then and I crave the privilege of speaking to you for a few minutes of what those 50 years have meant.

What have they meant? They have meant peace and union and vigor, and the maturity and might of a great nation. How wholesome and healing the peace has been! We have found one another again as brothers and comrades in arms, enemies no longer, generous friends rather, our battles long past, the quarrel forgotten—except that we shall not forget the splendid valor, the manly devotion of the men then arrayed against one another, now grasping hands and smiling into each other's eyes. How complete the union has become and how dear to all of us, how unquestioned, how benign and majestic, as state after state has been added to this great family of free men! How handsome the vigor, the maturity, the might of the great nation we love with undivided hearts; how full of large and confident promise that a life will be wrought out that will crown its strength with gracious justice and a happy welfare that will touch all alike with deep contentment! We are debtors to those 50 crowded years; they have made us heirs to a mighty heritage.

Nation Not Finished.
But do we deem the nation complete and finished? These venerable men crowding here to this famous field have set us a great example of devotion and utter sacrifice. They were willing to die that the people might live. But their task is done. Their day is turned into evening. They look to us to perfect what they established. Their work is handed on to us, to be done in another way but not in another spirit. Our day is not over; it is upon us in full tide.

Have affairs paused? Does the nation stand still? Is it what the 50 years have wrought since those days of battle finished, rounded out, and completed? Here is a great people, great with every force that has ever beaten in the life blood of mankind. And it is secure. There is no one within its borders, there is no power among the nations of the earth, to make it afraid. But has it yet squared itself with its own great standards set up at its birth, when it made that first noble, naive appeal to the moral judgment of mankind to take notice that a government had now at last been established which was to serve men, not masters? It is secure in everything except the satisfaction that its life is right, adjusted to the uttermost to the standards of righteousness and humanity. The days of sacrifice and cleansing are not closed. We have harder things to do than were done in the heroic days of war, because harder to see

Daredevil Photography.
A naval photographer gets many duckings, and, after a time, takes them as a matter of course. Being thrown into the sea isn't considered by him at all a serious event. It is during battleship practice that he encounters grave dangers, for much of the work done at this time is from the tops of the fighting masts, which are at an elevation of 120 feet above the sea.

Order to get detailed pictures. Once in these basket-like tops, the question is how to stick. The gunfire photographs itself. I suppose you wonder what I mean, but it is just this: Every time the twelve-inch guns fire, the awful concussion they cause invariably gives the snap to the shutter of the camera and the exposure is made—Saint Nicholas.

FORM NEW COMPANY

ARTICLES READY FOR FILING TO PROVIDE LIABILITY PAYMENTS.

UNDER NEW WORKMEN'S ACT

Mutual Insurance for Employers is Provided by Associations—Effecting Cash From Tennessee.

Lincoln, Neb.—A mutual insurance company to work under the new state law in connection with the workmen's compensation act is being organized, with John W. Towle of Omaha, president; Herbert E. Gooch of Lincoln, vice president; and Frank I. Ringer, secretary-treasurer.

The articles of incorporation have not been filed with the state, but it is understood that the auditor has approved the form in which they will be drawn. The law specifies that to form such an association there must be not less than twenty employes with an aggregate of 5,000 employees. Members of the association already enrolled are: J. W. Towle, F. E. Sanbourn, F. I. Elick, G. W. Sumner, F. S. Knapp, H. G. Kelley, Thomas A. Adams, L. A. Kinney, J. W. Steinhart, C. I. Allen, Frank Hammond, C. D. Marr, H. E. Gooch, W. C. Shinn and S. McKelvie.

To provide mutual insurance for employers under the workmen's compensation act is the purpose of the association.

Tennessee Must Pay.
Treasurer Walter George will require the state of Tennessee to pay not less than $200,000 of the $625,000 bonds held by the state against that state. He will be willing to take new bonds at 5 per cent for the balance.

"I could use the whole amount," said Treasurer George, "and buy Nebraska school bonds at 4 or 5 1/2 per cent, but I consider the Tennessee bonds perfectly good and at 5 per cent will be a good investment for us."

Does Not Accept Law.
The Anheuser-Busch Brewing company of Omaha has written a letter to Auditor W. B. Howard in which it states it has posted notices in its business places that it elects not to come under the workings of the workman's compensation act of 1912.

Walker's Case Comes Up.
The case of John Walker, the Indian who has been serving time for murder in the state penitentiary and who will seek to be released under habeas corpus proceedings, will come up before the supreme court. Walker has served enough of his time so that by the usual good time allowance he would be entitled to go free. For some reason the authorities do not want to release him and he hopes to secure his freedom through the supreme court.

Two more counties have reported their assessments to Secretary Seymour of the State Board of Assessment. Valley county is assessed this year at $3,641,053 and last year at $3,583,927, a gain this year of $58,026. Wayne county makes a very substantial increase this year of $131,925, her assessment last year being $5,570,397 and this year $5,702,320.

Wants Bible Courses in Schools.
Lincoln, Neb.—Shall Nebraska high schools, as in North Dakota, provide optional biblical courses upon which credits shall be given by the state university and denominational colleges? This question was discussed at the meeting of the department of education of the Nebraska Church federation. There were present representatives of five denominations. Among the committee members were, State Superintendent James E. Dellzell, Rev. Dean R. Leland, L. C. Oberlies, Rev. J. D. Collins, Rev. N. A. Martin and Rev. T. P. Wigton of Lincoln, Rev. Ralph H. Houseman of Omaha, Rev. S. H. Buell of Grand Island, and Rev. J. W. Cowan and Prof. A. G. Heyhoe of Crote. Other questions discussed were: The standardization of the religious educational work of the state; the co-operation of denominational colleges of Nebraska in training students for more practical leadership in the local church, when once they return; the improvement of the religious-educational atmosphere of the home, and the holding in the summer of 1914, at the state agricultural school, a school on rural problems, for ministers and laymen.

Counties Show Higher Values.
Lincoln, Neb.—Stanton, Wayne, Valley, Wheeler, Adams and Dawson counties reported to the state board of assessment with property lists showing tax valuations for the present year. The increase in the half dozen counties is $288,463. With the other nineteen counties, which have reported the upward climb of the 1913 figures, has been $1,277,863 over the 1912 returns.

Insurance Law May Not be Attacked.
Lincoln, Neb.—If present insurance deputy, Charles Clancy, is elevated to the head of the insurance commission, it is said there will be no attack on the big code insurance law. If he is not, it is alleged the combined strength of several big companies will be directed against the comprehensive statute and its validity will be a matter for the courts to determine. Such is the status of the companies' attitude on the bill, according to authoritative information brought to two members of the commission.

New Corporations Formed.
Lincoln.—The Bewsher company is the name of a new corporation doing business in Omaha which has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. The capital stock is placed at $50,000 and the incorporators are: A. H. Bewsher, E. J. Clizbe and E. M. Martin. The company will do a general business in buying and selling grain. The Interstate Live Stock Fair association with a capital stock of $5,000 and headquarters at Cambridge has also filed articles of incorporation with the secretary.
