Only about 40 per cent of the volume of water claimed by the Kearney Water & Electric Power company as the amount which it is entitled to take from the Platte river has been allowed by the state board of irrigation. In a set of findings prepared by State Engineer Price, which the board adopted, the Kearney company is given authority to divert 140 cubic feet per second for power purposes and 22 cubic feet for irrigation. In its application filed with the board last December, the company asked permission to take 400 cubic feet per second for power and 35 cubic feet for irrigation. The company claims that its needs are measured by these figures and it will probably appeal from the allowance made by the board as inadequate.

men in hard work stick to the conservative clothes of their sex. This is particularly true of the French working woman. The French peasant woman fills a big place in the agricultural life of France, while in the towns we find the petite bourgeoise taking an active share in commerce—a widow often running a business entirely alone. These facts explain the existence of Froissy, a village in the department of l'Oise, on the borders of l'Isle de France and Picardy, with a population of between 500 and 600 souls. And in this very exceptional village all the public posts are filled by women. The station master (chef de gare) is Mme. Taillefer. Her husband is a guard. It does not trouble him that he has to take occasional official instructions from his wife. He knows that if she were a guard and he the station master the home (le foyer) would suffer. Think also what a community of interests these two billets provide for them! Froissy gets its daily mail delivered by a woman postman (factrice), while it is the business of another employe des postes to see the outward mail aboard the train. In Froissy there is no such person as a male barber. PIPED A BOY'S HEART SACK A Foreign Liquid Was Drained

Through Tube From the Peri-

stop the beating of his heart. The operation is the first of its kind ever performed at the city hospital and is considered one of the most dangerous operations known to medical science. It was performed by Dr. Fred Hagler and two assistants. The physicians said the boy will be well in a few days. Monroe entered the hospital July suffering from a stone bruise on the right foot. The physicians noticed that at times his face became purple and he showed signs of difficult breathing. A consultation was held and it was decided that his blood either had congealed in some section near the heart or a foreign substance had caused an enlargement of the pericardium.

An X-ray was made and it was found that the pericardium was three times its normal size. Only an operation could save the boy's life.
