DIRTY PLAYING HURTS GAME

Football Facing Its Doom Because of Unnecessary and Unfair Roughness, Says George Hoff.

"The existence of football will be threatened, sooner or later, unless a growing tendency to forget the lesson of some years back and return to the practices which put the sport on trial for its life is checked."
This is the recent declaration of Athletic Director George Hoff of Illinois university, and one of the best known men in the athletic world. In explanation he says:
"I refer to unnecessary and unfair roughness. I do not criticize hard playing, and football as a matter of fact is rough. But I have noticed a gradual introduction of the same tactics which nearly cost the colleges their favorite game."
"This year I have seen 'neck wringing,' I have seen players drag their feet over the head of an opponent. 'Piling up,' even when easily seen to be unnecessary, goes unrebuked."
"The blame for the existence of this tendency is to be placed on the heads of unscrupulous coaches and complacent gridiron officials. It is a matter of common report in the football camps of the middle west institutions that certain coaches make no bones of encouraging their men to lunge and to slug if they can get away with it. Their linesmen threaten and curse their opponents, hoping to lead them into a display of honest and almost justifiable physical retaliation."
"For the most part western officials have ceased to pay any attention to unnecessary roughness. 'Let 'em fight it out' seems to be the implied attitude of many officials, especially the younger ones. And the team that attempts to be square gets the worst of it. I am a believer in football as a square, manly sport, if properly supervised. I would regret to see it lost, but I firmly believe that after success with the new style of game all will go for naught unless coaches and officials see that the practices I mention are eliminated."

DARTMOUTH HAS MOST BRILLIANT ATTACK

Right-End Loudon, Dartmouth's Human Battering Ram.

For the second successive year, Princeton fell before the onslaught of Dartmouth's fighting football squad and for the second time, Loudon, Dartmouth's human battering ram in his position at right end, helped to put a crimp in Princeton's aspirations of dethroning Dartmouth.
Dartmouth, aside from its 6 to 0 victory over Princeton, has demonstrated that it has a most powerful and brilliant attack, and every one of the New England college teams which have attempted to check the march of the Harvard players have been forced to defeat by scores running into double figures.

English Woman Wins $8,250 on Two Races

The Cambridgeshire handicap, the last big race of the year, was marked not only by the queen's visit to Newmarket, but by one of those lucky shots which fire the ambitions of the punters.
Mrs. Clayton, wife of Major Clayton, who has the reputation of being one of the handsomest women in English society, invested a sovereign on Fitzgama, a rank outsider, which won the Czarwitsch at 50 to 1. She placed her winnings on another outsider, Cantilever, for the Cambridgeshire, and Cantilever romped home. His starting price was 33 to 1, so Mrs. Clayton pocketed $8,250.
The British racing public recently has been hard hit by a weary succession of outsiders' wins.

MAHAN OF HARVARD

Few players on the big eastern teams have shown better qualities at punting than this young player.

AMATEURS NOT TO COMPETE

Secretary Sullivan Refuses to Consider Proposition Made by President Gustavus T. Kirby.

Secretary James E. Sullivan of the Amateur Athletic Union and other officials of that organization, including Supreme Court Justice Bartow S. Weeks and Frederick W. Rubien of the Metropolitan association, refuse to consider seriously the proposition made by their president, Gustavus T. Kirby, that amateurs be allowed to compete against professionals in track and field sports.
Pointing to the fact that the ancient Olympic games were killed by professionalization and that modern professional field and track sports had lost prestige through betting and kindred evils, Sullivan said flatly that he would never give his consent to the plan. He further stated that he would sever connections with the A. A. U if the scheme should be attempted.

Tennis Cracks Leave for Trip to Far East

William M. Johnston and Elia Fottrell, California tennis cranks, departed for a tour of the far east November 22. Johnston is the Pacific coast champion and also holds the Longwood and New York state titles.
With Fottrell he will play in Manila, Tokio, Hong Kong and Shanghai.

Yale Football Reunion.
A famous Yale football team held a reunion at New Haven recently. It was the eleven of 25 years ago, which rolled up a total of 698 points to none for its opponents. Pa Corbin was the captain of the aggregation. The team lined up as follows: Left end, Alonzo Stagg; left tackle, W. C. Rhodes; left guard, George Woodruff; center, Pa Corbin; right guard, Pudgie Hefflinger; right tackle, Charley Gill; right end, Kid Wallace; quarterback, W. C. Wurtemburg; half-back, Lee McClung and Billy Bull; fullback, W. P. Graves.

Will Spend $50,000 for Tracks.
The University of California is to have a new cinder track. Work is to commence within the next few months, and by 1915 the new athletic field will be completed. Present plans include the construction of bleachers seating 10,000 people, and a quarter-mile oval with a 220-yard straightaway. The cost of the track complete is estimated at $50,000.

GILE OF PRINCETON

Gile of Princeton practicing toe work on the pigskin. This young player is bending every effort for the job of one of Princeton's gridiron warriors. Princeton coaches have been working every youngster on the team in the hopes of developing a "find" and to get the understudies for the older players in trim, ready for any occasion.

Michigan Votes Solidly Against Conference Return

By an overwhelming majority, students, faculty and Ann Arbor alumni of the University of Michigan have voted against a resumption of athletic relations with the western intercollegiate conference.

FOOTBALL AN ANCIENT GAME

Played at Derby as Early as Third Century in Commemoration of Victory Over Roman Legion.

Football is probably the oldest of our national games. At Derby a game of football was played as early as the third century, in commemoration of a victory over the Roman Legion at Chester, says the London Chronicle. The first football used in the annual game—still played each Easter—is said to have been the head of a Danish invader. In the Isle of Purbeck, too, the free quarries from time immemorial have perpetuated their claim to a grant of land by kicking a football across it. In the fourteenth century the game was so popular as to call forth an edict forbidding it, on the ground that it interfered with the practice of more martial exercises. In later times Shakespeare referred contemptuously to the game, but perhaps few would be able to turn up readily the passage in "King Lear" describing "a base football player."

Pitching Marvel.
Bob Scott, a youngster, who lives in Philadelphia, must be the real thing in the pitching line. He holds a job in Philadelphia, and couldn't get off to travel with a ball club. Yet, during the last season, merely the slipping away on Saturdays and Sundays, he pitched 24 games for the Allentown team of the Tri-State league, winning 19, losing five and leading the hurlers. If he could do things that way, what would he do if he had a regular position on a big league club and could devote his time to the game?

New Class "AA" League.
In an effort to curb outlaw baseball, the organized elements are planning to put Class AA clubs in eight different cities next year. Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Indianapolis, Grand Rapids and Peoria are the cities now suggested. This move is a bad one for the Class A clubs, as it will cut down the high class talent there to mediocrity.

Could See the Joke.
Sir George Reid, the former premier of New Zealand, is a very big man. On one occasion he delivered a long speech. In addition to being very long it was very dull. He spoke of his declining years, and said, emphatically: "In a short time I shall have passed away, and will be no more."
"Then the fat will be in the fire," yelled a voice from the gallery, and the big orator himself laughed heartily at the humorous sally.

Found It.
"What became of that 'friend of yours' who was always looking for a soft thing?"
"He's in a padded cell, poor chap."

Backache Warns You

Backache is one of Nature's warnings of kidney weakness. Kidney disease kills thousands every year.
Don't neglect a bad back. If your back is lame—if it hurts to stoop or lift—if there is irregularity of the secretions—suspect your kidneys. If you suffer from headaches, dizziness and are tired, nervous and worn-out, you have further proof.
Use Doan's Kidney Pills, a fine remedy for bad backs and weak kidneys.

A Texas Case

Mrs. B. F. Benson, of Houston, Texas, says: "Two operations failed to relieve my kidney trouble. I had hemorrhages of the kidneys and passed pure blood. The pain and suffering in my back was terrible. It was nothing but skin and bones. When I had given up hope, Doan's Kidney Pills came to my rescue and cured me. Today I am in better health than ever before."

TERMS OF THE WILL

By GEORGE MUNSON.

The news of Uncle Will's death was a great shock to me. I read it in the morning papers. He was among the killed in the accident on the Pacific South-Central railway. The train had left the tracks while traveling along the bank of the Juby river in Colorado, and five cars had plunged beneath the swirling torrent. There was no possibility of rescuing anyone; the death of all the occupants had been immediate.

Uncle Will must have had a pre-arrangement of his death, because, an hour before leaving his office on the way west, where he had to attend a conference on some one of those national movements in which he was always interested. He had dictated a new will to his stenographer, Miss Clarke. Miss Clarke had typewritten it and two of the clerks had witnessed his signature.

The relatives were summoned to meet at the house of Mr. Brewster, the family lawyer. Brewster smiled when he saw me and Marjorie enter. "I wish you luck, my dear fellow," he whispered, before the formalities began.

I had always been a prime favorite of Uncle Will. He had left me a good round sum, I was sure. If he had died the year before I should not have been so sure, because he was deeply mortified when Anne Claridge and I broke our engagement. It was Anne who wanted to be free, but of course Uncle Will, in his pig-headed way, had thought I was to blame. He had always been fond of Anne. Even after Anne married Jim Thornton, a month later—which ought to have shown Uncle Will that the blame lay—he was suspicious of me. "A man who breaks an engagement to a girl wants a lot of justification," he said to me.

I couldn't persuade him that I had wanted to marry Anne. I believe he cut me out of his will about then. However, after I had discovered that Marjorie was the only girl I could ever love, and had introduced her to Uncle Will, I got back into his good graces. He was still a little dubious.

About the Limit Even in This Age That is Unrivaled in Its Luxury.

The "ultra" of scientific hotel accommodations has reached Los Angeles. Soon guests of the Hotel Alexandria will not breathe the ordinary air which circulates the highways and byways.
No, indeed, monsieur and madame must be made comfortable; therefore, the dining salons and foyers of this hotel will be equipped with perfumed air.

And to make this innovation in the hotel business even more complete the orders which reach the nostrils of Alexandria guests will vary with the seasons.
For instance, according to Manager S. J. Whitmore, spring will announce itself to the city dweller who never visits the byways by a delicate aroma of violet; a little later the scent will change, and the delicate "parfum" of the orange blossom will be de rigueur. With autumn will come the Indian summery fragrance of pine needles—the virgin forest. With winter, because this is southern California, roses.

Exhaust fans which pump in cool air through a rainstorm of scented waters will make this possible. All grill and the banquet hall invisible supply fans will constantly keep a new current of perfumed air in circulation among the diners and loungers.
Should monsieur wish to give a little dinner in a private dining-room and have a fancy for the scent of lavender, then it will be supplied to him throughout the meal.

"It is our object," said Mr. Whitmore, "to give our guests the most attractive environment. After careful consideration we find that the perfumed air for our dining-rooms will be a pleasing touch for all those who wish to enjoy it. The only danger, of course, would be in overdoing the thing. None would want to take a meal in a salon saturated with the odor of orange blossoms, for example. Our tinctures are to be delicate, however. The perfumes will give a natural aroma; no more."—Los Angeles Examiner.

Ortolans as Food.
The ortolan, a bird smaller than our quail, an inhabitant of southern Europe in summer and Africa in winter, is highly prized, especially among French epicures, for the delicate flavor of its flesh. These birds are netted alive, kept in a dark place and fed on millet, oats and other seeds until they become enormously fat, when they are killed for the table. This artificial fattening of the ortolan dates back to ancient days of Rome. A Parisian paper tells of a financier who invited four friends to a dinner at his country place and sent to Paris to a famous restaurateur to provide a feast for six persons. When the account was presented it footed up 1,200 francs; that is, $240. "Outrageous!" said the financier. "Monseigneur," said the restaurateur, "you have had twenty ortolans at 25 francs each; that alone would be 500 francs." This would be much like paying $5 each for well-fattened English sparrows.—Indianapolis News.

Must Be Simple.
In a registration booth in San Francisco an old negro woman had just finished registering for the first time.
"Am you shore," she asked the clerk, "dat fee done all I has to do?"
"Quite sure," replied the clerk, "you see, it's very simple."
"I'd ought to knowed it," said the old woman. "If those fool men folks been doing it all dese years, I might a knowed it was a powerful simple process."—Life.

Coal exports. from the United States in the current fiscal year will approximate in value $90,000,000, against $60,000,000 in 1909.

Not on Uncle Will's Life. I answered.
"Why, I'm going to marry you, of course, Marjorie," I answered.
"And leave-me?" questioned Marjorie quickly.
"Not on Uncle Will's life," I answered.

Surprising was the juvenile $2,000 stake at Laurel, Md., when he decisively defeated the best field of youngsters lined up this year. Surprising conceded weight to all the starters.
