Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Conner entertained a few friends at tea, last Saturday, in honor of their daughter, Mrs. J. G. Walker of Gibbon, who is visiting them. Friday afternoon those friends will entertain Mrs. Walker at a picnic in Jenner's park.

Owing to the bad weather which shortened the program at the Methodist church last Sunday night and prevented taking up the educational collection, Supt. Tracy requests parents to send in liberal donations to the cause by their children next Sunday. The school has pledged a certain amount, and it is hoped the response will be sufficient for the requirements.

E. E. Tracy is weaving a reputation as a mighty coon hunter. A few evenings since he was awakened from his slumbers by the frantic barking of his dog that had a coon treed in the sheltering branches of a forest monarch near by. Repairing to the scene, he opened up his arsenal, bringing the darkey's favorite meat to mother earth. Then ensued a sanguinary conflict between canine and coon, ending by both being dumped in the water, from which the former soon emerged half drowned while the latter with a well defined "Ha, ha!" sailed away. Then again the trusty hip cannon exploded, and with a muffled "Ouch!" and a flounder the aquatic creature disappeared in the adjacent flume, and all was still. Thus ended the exciting chapter, in which coon, canine and cannon vividly figured, with friend Tracy in a title role. But next time it may be different.

Ashton 10, Loup City 1.

The Loup City boys went down to Ashton last Monday and met with a sad defeat. In the first inning of the game the Ashton boys run in eight scores, but after that it was as pretty a game as one would want to witness, as only three scores were run in after the fatal first—two for Ashton and one for Loup City. Fred Winkelman was in the box for Loup City and after he got the rough edges worn off he settled down and delivered a smooth article of ball. This is the first Fred has pitched this year and it was forced on him, as the regular pitcher, as well as several of the regular players were too busy to get away to play ball. The Ashton people treated our boys in a very gentlemanly manner and the game went off without the least dispute. This was because "Dad" Mellor was doing the umpiring and left no chance. Don't discourage the boys by roasting them too hard. We will be proud to say they are Loup City boys before the season is over, as they who laughs last laughs best.

A Tale of Woe.

The north and south sides played ball, last Friday. That is the north side, the umpire and the scorer played, but Jim Depew, a south side man, strenuously denies that the south side played, and he is understood to have been watching first base at the time. But there were some heartrending facts connected with the exhibition that this great believer in justice and fair play feels called upon to deplore. In the first place and to begin with, it is distinctly understood that General Mellor deluded the susceptible southsiders into selecting Col. Bayne to pick out their nine, and after selecting such indifferent players and has-beens as Depew and others, instead of professionals like THE NORTHWESTERN man, the colonel was found to be a northsider and as such played with them. Clearly an unprofessional act and one not found in Gunter's manual for the promotion of the national game. Then, too, the easy victims from south of main street allowed the northsiders to pick out the umpire and official scorer from among their number to handle those important stations, and we only need to call attention to the fact that we have reference to Umpire Starr and Scorer Brown who acted in those capacities to assure the intelligent reader how utterly impossible it must have been, with the great odds against them in this regard, to have had the least expectation of winning. We are sorry to be compelled to thus call attention to the onesidness of the game, to say nothing of the score of 10 to 1 in favor of the north side, which shows how the game ended. However, on behalf of the south side, we wish to say no serious injury has been done to our feelings, but by the great horn spoons the south side proposed to get even with the north side, if it takes all summer, and a purse of something less than $10,000 is in sight that they can't do it again.

It is understood that the north side will attempt to repeat the misery next Tuesday, but the southsiders are now loaded, cocked and primed. Trouble to the north side will begin about 4 p. m.
