COPYRIGHT, 1903, BY J. DREXEL BIDDLE

Monroe's Doctrine," Etc.

Chapter XVII.-Continued.

Jessie and devoured her with his eyes. of the sketch book.

to her feet, the sketch book falling to | mansion on the great boulevard.

hand.

have surprised me, Mr. Morris," she must she be caught in the toils? said quietly, ignoring his proffered hand. "You must be aware that this is not a public reception room. We can talk without disturbing any one in the lobby."

A minute later they were in the comparatively deserted cuter hall.

"You have no right to follow me here or to annoy me by your attenbled nervously at his watch charm.

"It was purely accidental, I assure you," he stammered.

I did not think you would presume to go."

USINING PERSONAL PERS accommodation I shall be in lasting Morris stood a few steps back of disgrace," faltered General Carden. He should then seek to redress the Jessie Carden had listened quietly. He noted the soft folds of her hair. Until that day she had given little the rounded curves of her neck, and thought to the problem which ever as one spell-bound watched her deft | confronts the great mass of mankind fingers as they glided over the surface | -how shall we live, wherewithal shall we be fed, clothed and housed? The Jessie. "You attempted to murder With a little sigh of disappointment little room in which they sat looked a young man who resented your in-Jessie dropped the folio on her lap. mean and want-haunted. The faded Not in months had she drawn with carpet, the cheap wallpaper, the tawless skill. What could be the matter? | dry decorations, the low and marred She felt oppressed and under some ma- ceiling, the wailing of a sick child the arrest of this innocent man. Are lign influence. Instinctively she through the thin partition, the odor turned and looked squarely into the of a kitchen, the rumble of traffic over ardent eyes and eager face of Arthur a cobblestone pavement-surely this Morris. With an involuntary cry of was a dream from which she would surprise, fear and vexation, she sprang | awaken to find herself in the stately

Yet it was not a dream. At the "Why, Miss Carden!" exclaimed sound of the name of Arthur Morris Morris, with stimulated estonishment. the past and the present stood before "Really, this is an unexpected pleas- her in glaring colors. She must be ure. I am delighted to meet you. Per- brave; she would be brave. With that mit me-" And he picked up the superb insignt which nature gives to hand. I assure you that I don't re- ly concealed from view by the dense sketch book, bowed, and extended his woman, the plot devised by Arthur member a thing about it. The gov-Morris lay bare before her eyes. Her In these brief seconds Jessie had father was enmeshed in the net which regained her self-possession. "You had been set for her. To release him

The Bishops had purchased a resi- thing you say, Miss Carden." dence in New York, and there was waiting for Jessie a letter from her of the reward and state that he will aunt inviting her to spend April and not be prosecuted," said Jessie, as if to be their guest in Hingham during stract justice. "And if you are con- his other arm was a baby that was the summer.

General Carden advised her to accept the invitation, but Jessie had try to overlook the past." tions," said Jessie Carden, confront- at first declared that her place was ing him with flashing eyes. He fum- with him, and would not listen to his arguments.

"I have changed my mind about den. My governor and yours are aunt Helen's invitation," she said, mixed up in business, and it's a beast-"Your arrival was announced in the later in the evening. "I have de-Berlin papers," said Jessie, coldly. "I cided to go to New York for a few learned this morning that you bribed weeks at least. I believe I can sell my servants, and realized that an in- some of my sketches and paintings terview with you was inevitable, but there, and-and-well, I think it best to intrude your presence during my | "You are a wise little girl, Jessie,"

study hours. You take an unfair ad- | said General Carden. "I shall be in vantage of an accidental acquaintance. New York nearly as much as in Bos-That acquaintance was terminated last summer by your acts and conduct, and I have no desire to renew it. You have had the education and opportunities of a gentleman, and must re- belonged to an old New York family, the farm who would enlighten him. spect my wishes."

Morris stood as if riveted to the floor | circles in which the Bishops had been | Casting his eyes about the place for -dazed, ashen-faced and speechless. Obeying a wild impulse, he rushed after her, but halted at the door. she again met Arthur Morris. For saw a mooley cow with never a sign steps, and hailing his coachman, drove and gazed at her blankly, first at ed it was that he had been sent for. through Unter der Linden.

For the second time in his life the fact had been forced upon him that there were ambitions beyond the reach of his money. The thought envenomed him. Again he made a vow that Jessie Carden should be his. His heavy lips parted in a sulien smile as he pictured her surrender. The longer it was delayed the sweeter would be his tri-

The morning train for Paris had Arthur Morris for a passenger. It was as a reptile ever crawling across her months before he returned to New path? She longed to crush the ser-York to become a junior partner in pent's head with her tiny heel, yet the firm of Randolp Morris & Com- she knew that the snake had cunpany.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Diplomacy. After an absence of two years Jessie Carden looked forward with pleasure | Carden?" ventured Morris. "I've to a home-coming. She had bidden wished to talk to you for a long time. her instructors and friends adieu, and or rather to write something, butwas about leaving Berlin for a brief | but-let's get out of this crush so I visit to Paris, when she received a can explain myself." cablegram from General Carden, requesting her to return home at once. The message was so worded that ment!" pleaded Morris, as Jessie Jessie was mystified, but not alarmed. turned haughtily from him.

After a stormy voyage, the liner eral Carden clasped his daughter in volved, I prefer the less conspicuous recognized him. His face was drawn, bitterly. "Here is a quiet corner. and the dark hair and beard had What have you to say to me, sir?" turned to silver-gray.

"I have sad news for you, Jessie."

papa dear, so long as you are alive," you should crave forgiveness," said said Jessie. With a woman's intuition | Jessie Carden. Scorn was in her voice she guessed the truth.

failed, and my fortune is swept away. lent, but it was in harmony with a That is not all. Our old home is in greater affront which preceded it. the hands of creditors and I am a and one of which no gentleman would hankrupt-a bankrupt at the age of be guilty. If you have nothing more fifty."

Jessie smiled bravely through her tears.

papa dear, but you must not worry chance!" in the least over me. I have money, papa; lots and lots of money. I have saved nearly two thousand dollars out | Carden." His face flushed a deeper of my allowance. We shall get along red and he looked at her with apfamously."

That evening, in the modest apart- at the clambake. I was intoxicated, ments he had rented, General Carden | Miss Carden. It's a hard word, but told Jessie the story of his downfall. I'm going to be honest and throw my-Randolph Morris was his principal self on your mercy. I am very, very creditor, and negotiations were then sorry; really I am. Miss Carden, and in progress by which he hoped to I want to be your-your friend."

ton, and you will be much happier greeted by her aunt. Thomas Bishop errand, trusting to find some one at and was proud to introduce his beau-She turned and entered the gallery. | tiful niece to the exclusive society

With a smothered oath he retraced his a moment Morris was unable to speak, of a horn upon its head, and conclud-Jessie and then at Mrs. Cregier.

"Really - why, really - why - why. Carden and I have met before!" he exclaimed. "In fact-why, in fact we there?" shouted the farmer on seeing Miss Carden?"

"I recall having met Mr. Morris," said Jessie, addressing her hostess. cow for?" It was a trying moment for Jessie Carden. Before her stood the man she hated. Why had fate cast him ning; she knew that her father was caught in his coils. Never until that moment did she realize the damning of a woman's hatred. "May I say something to you, Miss power of money, or sound the depths

"I do not care to listen to you, sir." "I beg of you, hear me for a mo-

"Since you seem determined to cresteamed into Boston harbor, and Gen- ate a scene in which I am to be inhis arms. At first glance she hardly disgrace of listening to you," she said,

"You will be brave, my pet," he in Berlin, or rather for coming to got was in ten-cent pieces, and of said, his voice choked with emotion. Berlon," he began. "I was wrong and course they all went into the bank."

I beg your pardon." "There can be no very sad news, "That is not the offence for which and a warning flash in her eyes. "I am ruined, Jessie! My bank has | "Your intrusion in Berlin was insoappropriate to say, leave me, sir!!" "I have: I have!" cried Morris, cowering before her gaze. "Pray be seat-"I am distressed on your account, ed. Miss Carden, and-and give me a

> "I should not," she said coldly. "I know the time you mean, Miss pealing eyes. "You mean that affair transfer his L. & O. stock to Mr. Mor. She longed to spurn his prayers ris, in consideration of a loan which and to ask him to take back the white would enable him to settle with his locks from above her father's brow proved so vigorous a weed that $25,000 and remove the stain of disgrace. has been offered for a sure means of the square mile. Belgium has 220 to "If Mr. Morris refuses to extend this | She realized that the man who had | eradicating it.

crushed her tatner was now in her power, and felt that triumphant joy which only a woman can know. But it wounded and tertured her pride to think that morris dared aspire to her love. She charged the sacrifice she was about to make against the account of a future revenge, and turned to him with a softer light in her eyes.

"I should not forgive you," she said. When a man who pretends to your position so far forgets himself, he should first obtain his own pardon. wrongs caused by his offense. Are you prepared to do that, Mr. Morris?" "I don't exactly understand what you mean. Miss Carden." "I will make myself plain," said sults in a public place, and in the encounter you were injured. For years you willing to take steps to absolve him? John Burt has been the greater victim of your conduct."

"But my dear Miss Carden, I haven't the slightest notion of where he is, don't you know," said Morris with a puzzled expression. "'Pon my word. I don't. We had a beastly row in who were with me say I started it, and that the pistol went off in my own ernor offered the reward. I can get it. him to withdraw it, and put a notice in the papers promising that no prosecution shall be made. I'll do any-

"Publicly announce the withdrawal May with them in the metropolis, and the matter was merely one of ab- a deposit book and closely clasped in > but you will not regret it, Miss Car- sounds of a new world. with me now, are you, Miss Carden? Let's shake hands and call it square?" Morris extended a clammy hand, front of the baby. and Jessie, with an inward shudder, permitted him to clasp her's for a mohis attentions, and Jessie felt a thrilagement she had given him.

(To be continued.)

NOT WHAT HE WAS SENT FOR.

Irishman Had Reasoned Well, But

He Was Wrong. A farmer, accompanied by several of his hired men, went into the woods one morning in the fall of the year to cut down some trees. When about to begin work it was discovered that the cant hook had been left behind. Turning to one of the men, an Irishman not very long over, the farmer instructed him to drive back to the farm for the missing tool. The Irishman did not know what a cant hook looked like, but was averse to expos-A week later Jessie was fondly ing his ignorance, so drove off on his

At the barn, however, there was no one to help him out of his dilemma. the thing which would be most likely It was at the Cregier reception that to bear the name of "cant hook," he Procuring a rope, he fastened the cow to the rear end of his vehicle and don't you know, Mrs. Cregier, Miss exultantly drove back to the woods. "What in Sam Hill have you are old acquaintances; are we not, his messenger and the cow. "I sent the logs; what have you brought that the funds to be invested, and at the not be detected from the same effect can't hook but this."-Star of Hope.

Domestic Economy. "I'll have to have some more money, John," said the young matron. displaying an empty pocketbook. "Money again, Nellie-so soon? Why, I gave you your housekeeping allowance only yesterday. What have you done with it?" "I have saved it, John," was the expression that John needed further enlightenment.

"Don't you remember, dear, that the last number of The Mothers' Adviser said: 'Purchase a ten-cent bank, and sing along a false note, an' you say, when you receive a dime in change 'Oh!' Mr. Doehme frowned and put it in the bank, and you will soon | winced. | But with Mr. Van Deeck he have a snug little amount saved sing along, an' sing along, an' once in toward the baby's trousseau, and will a while he strike a true note, an' you never miss the money saved in this say, 'Oh!'" And Mr. Doehme's smile way?' You agreed with me, dear, that of pleased surprise called forth a this was a good plan to save money | round of laughter. for baby.

"I want to apologize for what I did | "Yesterday every bit of change I

Made His Own Answer. William H. Crane, before his de parture for Europe told the follow-

"In submitting a story to a certain magazine a disappointed literary ashis manuscript being found unavailable he be favored with the reason. In a week the manuscript was returned, and on the customary printed slip accompanying it was written:

"'Dear Sir-The superscription to your MS. seems to us to best express our reasons for refusal. Resp. yours, "THE EDITOR."

"Opening the manuscript to the title page, the puzzled aspirant read his own handwriting: ""His Own Great Sin." And 4.800 words."-New York Times.

Chance for Man With Brains. Cash for brains is still the cry. The Queensland government find that the prickly pear, a kind of cactus, has A GOLD-LINED DEATH VALLEY.

Philippine Waste, Guarded by Death-

Dealing Gases. There is a Death valley in the Philippines as well as in the United States. It is situated in the island of Mindanao and although for many years it has been known to contain targe quantities of gold the treasure has been lying unclaimed because of the refusal of the natives to go after

it. At last this famed and feared valley has been compelled to give up the rich treasure which for ages it has successfully guarded by its pall of death-dealing gases. This valley, which true to its name, has dealt death to many a venturesome searcher for the precious metal, is located in the mountain fastnesses of the island and according to the theories of the scienyou have had a standing reward for tists it is the crater of what was once a great and violent volcano. Volcanic gases of a most poisonous nature still rise from the depths of the valley and hang over it like a pall, never passing away, and many natives who have attempted to go down into the valley from the mountains say that never before has any man who ventured into its unknown depths rewhich I got shot, and all the fellows | turned to tell of its secrets. The distance across the valley is only a few miles, but the bottom of it is constantcloud of poisonous vapor overhanging

EARLY LESSON IN THRIFT.

Brooklyn Men Even Take Their Babies to Bank.

The other day a man entered a Brooklyn bank carrying in one hand fident that I shall not again be em- perhaps ten or twelve months old. The barrassed by your indiscretions I will age may not be exact, but at any rate the young one was old enough to sit "You are very good!" he exclaimed, up and look around, as if it was coneffusively. "It's more than I deserve, sciously taking in the sights and

Going up to one of those projecting shelves which are placed against the ly shame, don't you know, that we walls in some banks for the convenshould be at odds. By the way, I'm lence of patrons who prefer to stand awfully sorry about the general's finan- up while writing, the man placed the cial troubles. Hope he pulls out of baby on the sloping surface, and as a them all right, and think he will. I'm precaution against sliding off, which trying now to make a deal which will it showed every indication of doing, help him out. And you're not angry the man put a brake against the threatened movement of the mass of baby draperies by placing his arm in

Then he proceeded to fill out a deposit check, and when that was accomplished he again took the baby in The summer season was at hand, his arm, and, going up to the teller's and Jessie was looking forward with window, handed in his book, and when the entry had been made he received Arthur Morris had been devoted in the book again, and, placing it in his pocket, walked out of the bank, the ling wickedness at the tacit encour- baby still staring everybody out of countenance with the utmost cool-

Children Still.

We seek no more a daily prize, So changed the luster of the skies, So faint and few the gleams. Yet comes anew, when others play, That unforgotten thrill, And are we dull and old to-day, Or only children still

We loved the battle once, but now We are not overbold, There's wisdom on the weary brow. And in our hearts the cold Yet in the light of eager eyes We lose the wintry chill, And then we are not overwise, But simple children still.

The visions of our glorious youth Have faded long ago; We hope no more to find the truth. And should we care to know? Not crs to scale the viewless height, But there's a purple hill, And still we gladden at the sight And climb as children still.

How much of all the good we planned Is perfect or begun? Who watched the lifting of God's hand And waits for his "well done"." But when the children whom we love The good we missed fulfill.

Thank God our hearts prevail to prove The hearts of children still. Hugh Macnaughton, in London Satur-

France and Old-Age Pensions.

The British consul at Calais tells, twenty years to receive their equal form. share of this interest. The present rate of pension is £14 8s. per year. The membership now stands at 347,-951, with a capital of over a million and a half pounds.-London Answers.

Brotherly Criticism. Zoltan Doehme, Mme. Nordica's husband, has an amusing way of putting response, but she saw by his puzzled things. On one occasion he was speaking of the vocalization of the wellknown singer Van Dyck, and professional leniency vanished in the critical sarcasm: "With mos' tenors, they

Denounces Khaki Uniforms.

Mayor Jameson said in the British parliament the other day that the sudden resort to khaki uniforms was a "senseless craze." Because the whole army was slapped into similar costume. If the Zulus had beaten it, the army would have gone about in feathers and paint. Three streaks of pirant requested that in the event of paint and an ostrich feather would have been the uniform of a field mar-

Vicar and Workman.

Leicestershire, England, has just accomplished the remarkable feat of restoring, mainly by his own manual labor, his dilapidated church. Since February, 1901, the vicar has labored as a workman all the week and preached to his people on the Sundays. He has worked at the church almost alone, the only assistance being a few days by one man.

China Not Overcrowded. A recent census of China shows that that country, crowded with "teeming millions," has a population of 103 to the square mile. Great Britain 130.

and Germany 105.

White Net With Lace. No material is more fashionable for the gowns of afternoon and dinner wear than white cotton net and it is never more attractive than when combined with lace. This very charming shows a novel and stylish bolero, style. which is made entirely of all over lace, and trimming which consists of wide frills of the material headed by lace bands. The waist is one of the latest and is full and soft, made with a little square of lace at the rront, and is closed invisibly at the left of the front. The bolero can be used or omitted as preferred and is arranged over it, the two being joined at the lower edge. The skirt is circular with a circular flounce, that is joined to it beneath the upper row of trimming. and provides the graceful folds which are essential to present styles. The quantity of material required for the medium size is, for waist 41/4 yards, 21, 35% yards 27 or 21/4 yards 44 inches wide with 1/2 yard of all-over lace; for bolero 1% yards 21 or 27 or 1/8 yards 44 inches wide; for skirt 13 yards 21, 11 yards 27 or 61/2 yards 44 inches wide.

Bringing Skirts Up to Date.

dexterous adjustment of taffeta or peau de soie trimmings.

yoke effect she can build the yoke three in each. from alternate strips of the cloth and taffeta. If panel effects are desired, the stitched bands of silk can be so laid as to simulate panels. But the great point of divergence between last season's skirt and this year's lies in the vent. Last year the vent was fastened by well-hidden hooks and eyes. This year it is completely covered by a box-plaited ef-

To secure this effect in the madein his annual report, of an effort to over skirt, lay on a box pleat of the deal with old-age pensions. Twenty- same silk used in trimming, narrow three years ago M. Chatelus formed a at the waist line and flaring slightly society, the rules of membership be toward the hem of the skirt. This is you for a cant hook to use in moving | ing a monthly payment of a franc, all | fastened tight to the skirt, and canend of twenty years the interest on in cloth. Nor does it give a botched "Be jabers, boss, divil another capital to be equally divided among or made-over effect to the garment. thing could I see around the barn that | members, and in each succeeding year | because of the general prevalence of those who had been members for silk trimmings in every imaginable

Tea Biscuit Recipe.

Two teacupfuls flour, one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt; mix together and sift. Melt a tablespoonful of butter and add it to two-thirds cupful of cold milk; flatten dough with hands and cut with biscuit cutter; bake in hot oven until a delicate brown-about fifteen minutes. This is a very good recipe when one is in a hurry, and

Finger marks on varnished furniture are removed by rubbing them with a piece of rag dipped in sweet oil. Afterward polish with a dry cloth. An ever ready glue pot is a most useful piece of property. It is prepared by putting naphtha in a widemouthed bottle and dissolving shellac in it. When pailing into hardwood, the nails are apt to bend. To prevent this dip the point of each nail into oil, lard or other grease before hammering them in.

It will be found a good plan to keep peas, beans, rice, barley, coffee and, in fact, all "dry groceries" in glass The vicar of a colliery district in jars. By this means a moment's glance will acquaint the housewife with the necessity for replenishing her stores.

New Ideas in Sunshades.

Then the parasols which shade these dainty creations of the millihinted, the linen parasol matches the linen gown; and there are the colored coachings, both in plain and plaids, for various occasions.

With the fluffy lingerie hat there is worn an equally fluffy parasol, and these are frequently covered with the

The plain and dotted silks have appliques and incrustations and empiecements of lace and embroidery, and some of the newest show fancy patterns cut from plaids and appliqued to the plain silks, and vice versa. But no matter what the style of the parasol, it must have a long shaft costume illustrates that fact and handle to proclaim it this season's

Told in Her Boudoir

Snake plumes are exquisite in Maline choux are still important neck fixings. Bright green silk hosiery is among the novelties.

Embroidered net is set into some silk stockings. Cuffs are anything from straight bands to plaitings. Carnations are coming into prominence in millinery. Crush belts of gold thread are charming for the white frock. A jeweled net for the hair is charming with a picture dress.

To be smartly dressed one cannot escape this rule of much lace trimming. Applique flowers cut from colored taffeta on a gown of white voile or A charming summer accessory is the scarf of painted mousseline de When kid shoes have been wet and become hardened, clean them at once and rub with castor oil.

A Useful Hint. When roses or other artificial flowers fade, the economical girl paints them with her water colors. The muslin of which they are composed takes paint readily, and a little patience will rejuvenate an apparently passe hat

In tinting the flowers, make the petals deeper in shade in toward the base and leave the edges paler.

It is surprising how fresh the flowers will look after being recolored. and they will hold the water colors much longer than they do their original coloring.

Crystal Strawberries.

Here is a delicious way to prepare strawberries, to be served with ice cream at a luncheon: Select large, perfect berries and brush gently with a soft brush to remove any sand. Have ready some fondant made as for French candy and melt it over hot The woman who has a good cloth water. Take up a berry at a time, skirt of light weight, such as voile, pull off the hull, dip it into the melted etamine or nun's veiling, left from fondant, and when entirely coated relast summer can bring it up to the place the hull. Lay on oiled paper mark of prevailing fashions by the and chill in the refrigerator. Do not prepare long before they are needed. as they quickly draw syrup. Serve in If she is a tall woman and desires a small timbale or paper cases, two or

Wedding Gowns. White satin is no longer inevitable for a bridal gown, but has been ex- fully the whites of the eggs beaten changed for even lovelier materials, stiff; turn into a buttered baking foamy chiffon, silvered gauze or softest silk muslin and lace. Veils of the bake in a moderate oven until firm in latter have been superseded by tulle, the center. while even that favored flower of many generations, the orange blossom, is noticeable by its absence, myrtle or white heather taking its place. detachable bertha or ruche for the White heather is looked upon as a chemise or underwaist. These are wonderfully lucky flower, but like the patterned after the bust pads of the four-leafed shamrock, its scarcity cre- moment, and when one is pinned over ated its good fortune. Now it is said | the chemise this last may be of the to be cunningly bleached in order that plainest slip description. Ribbon the supply may cover the demand .- rosettes or bows finish the detachable Exchange.

"Cheese-Codfish." A delicious dish may be made from either the boiled fresh cod or the shredded salt fish.

If made from the former, take a pound of fresh fish, pick in small pieces, put in a saucepan, cover with cold water and bring slowly to a boil. Drain the fish and leave in a colander while you make a cream dressing, using two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour, a cup and a half of milk and a little cayenne. Butter a small earthen dish and place a layer of fish in the bottom. Cover with a layer of the sauce and over this grate a covering of cheese, not too thick Repeat until the dish is filled, having the cheese at the top. Grate a sprinkling of stale bread crumbs over this. daub with butter, place in a hot oven and bake half an hour.

Corst Cover. Dainty corset covers that are well fitting and made for the individual are always far more attractive than any other sort. This one is both pretty and simple and can be made from any one of the materials used for under-

Design by May Manton. wear but is shown in linen batiste, which is always satisfactory, both from the standpoint of comfort and that of endurance, and is trimmed with German Valenciennes lace with bits of fine embroidery between the tucks which are worked by hand onto the material. The combination of lace with this fine work is one of the latest whims of fashion and is always charming. The corset cover is made with fronts and back, the narrow tucks being arranged in groups and stitched to the waist line only, so allowing comfortable flare over the hips. The quantity of material required for a woman of medium size is 11/2 yards 36 inches wide with 3 yards of lace edging and 11/2 yards of bead-

Egg Souffle. Cream two level tablespoonfuls of flour and pour on gradually one cupful of scalded milk and one cupful of scalded cream; cook in the double boiler until thickened; add the yelks of four eggs beaten until thick; remove from the fire and mix in caredish; set in a pan of hot water and Chemise Berthas. A pretty and practicable idea is a bertha.

FIGURED NET AND LACE.

No material of the season is more cut, can be substituted whenever prefashionable or more attractive than ferred. The blouse itself is full and and beruffled with the same chiffon, the elbow sort, shown in the small | 44 inches wide.

ner's art. In the morning, as already net in its many varieties. This very soft below the yoke which is plain charming waist is made of the sort and cut in a deep, becoming point at known as repouse, in cream color front and back. At the waist is a combined with a yoke of white mous- crushed belt of messaline satin, also seline overlaid by bias bands of silk over silk and cotton mousseline which cream in tone, and the net is made and medallions of lace, the trimming is soft and pretty while of moderate being little lace ruffles. As illustrated cost. The quantity of material requirlace which fashions the frivolous jook- the waist is made with long sleeves ed for a woman of medium size is ing lace coat, and are much beruched that include deep cuffs but those of 3% yards 21, 3 yards 27 or 1% yards