Carnival affairs are progressing at a rapid and favorable rate. The committee is already deluged with letters from parties wishing concessions, all the way from flying machines to firstclass divorce suits, and it is only a question of selection the committee has to deal with as there seems no end of attractions wanting to come here There is nothing of a definite character to present our readers, but keep tab on the newspapers, posters, programs, etc., and you will find the coming Loup City Carnival will be the biggest thing ever held or to be held here.

to be the birthplace of so many who might be termed "the salt of the earth." have space but to chronicle the fact in passing, if you hail from Ohio, you may be able to explain the phenomenon. And by the way, the Almighty must have meant the Smith family to be among the elect, for he made so many

This member of the world wide family, Mary B. Smith, was born near Newark, Ohio, April 18th, 1820 Later her parents removed to Marion county, and the period of her youth was passed on a farm 18 miles from Sandusky.

She has a vivid remembrance of the quilting bees, apple cuttings, spelling and singing schools, sleigh and horseback rides, that helped to make the

Nine children were born in this home and Mother Moon's strong face lights up as she describes the positions of honor and trust her sons have filled since becoming citizens are happiest, and she lives but in her Mother Moon has been a wide reader. She does finished needlework and exquisite darning and I fancy she inclines to the motto of the German Empress, that the "kinder, kirche and kueche" are enough to absorb the time and strength of the average woman. However that may be, I could but be impressed with my aged friend's outlook on the world and things of the Often with pessimistic inflection, we inquire, "This life, what is it all when" all is done?" And answer it ourselves with "grains of sombre or shining sand, gliding into or out of the hand." But the subject of this little sketch would consider it a gross physical sin to allow her interest and physical tone to so fail as to tamely admit "that life was not worth the living." I presume it must be her abiding faith in the ultimate hope, her belief that she is a part of the "Great Plan," which lifts her above the weakness, and accounts in part for her longevity. Yet her health has always been good, above the average anyway. She has lived actively, takes an interest in what makes for the world's betterment. Its all a point of view, you know. To grow old gracefully is habit,

She has made her home for the last five years wi h her daughter, Mrs. S. S. Hover, and enjoyed her stay with the good people of Loup City very happily. Eighty five years young. A good enough record.
