The summer girl upon the beach Her shapely figure shows In bathing suits of many hues

She's the joy of every set, And her hand is pledged in marriage To 'most every man she's met.

But when the season's over At the seashore and the glen This dainty creature vanishes Till summer comes again.

And you wonder what's become of her, Your erstwhile summer mash. Who in a big department store Is shrilly calling "C-A-S-H!" -Ed. W. Dunn.

MOSS BEULAGOS. BY MADY JOADK BROG PORD

fit, it's mine. Beulah means 'married.' and I'm an old maid-quite a little gray and almost 40. More polite, I suppose, to say bachelor maid, but I frightened frogs. believe in calling a spade a spade. Whoever wrote that hymn about kind of land mine is-rocks and birch and that dreadful frog pond. I can't dripping form. even make my little garden all in one spot, but have to plant tomatoes in one place and hunt up another for the squashes. They do look pretty, though, climbing over the rocks and it saves me the trouble of piling a heap of stones together and calling it a rockery. Ugh! how those frogs croak tonight; I could hear them a mile away. I wish it was winter and they were asleep in the mud." And Miss Beulah, drawing her shoulder shawl tightly, went into her lonely house.

She was said to have had a "disappointment." Amos Hathaway had wanted her and she had loved him, but they must wait until he could make a little home for her, and he bent all his energy to that end. It was hard toil, digging and delving on a rocky New England farm. The dawn, with its flush of amber and pearl, meant potatoes to be dug, and the glory of the sunset told of cows to enough for their simple wants. "Beulah, dear girl," he said, "the little home is all ready.

be milked. But at last Amos had

"I know, Amos, but I can't come-I cannot, I ought not to leave father and mother.'

"You are crazy, Beulah! I have wanted you for six years and lived and worked in the hope of it. Is this what has made you look and act so strangely?"

"Yes, you thought it was because of sister Emily, but that was not all. I knew when she died there would be no one left but me to take care of father and mother. I've tried so many times to tell you, but I never could-I cannot leave them.

"Then, you don't really love me Beulah!'

It was a storm of passion and the turning back of the hopes of years. and Amos, in the bitterness of his soul. when all his pleading proved in vain. told her to go her way and he would go his-he never would, never ask her to come to him again. And away he went to the mining region of the northwest to make his fortune.

Beulah used to think of him winter nights when the wind shrieked in the chimney and rocked the old house. She had given the most devoted care to her father and mother to the end of their lives, and now she was alone. Her tiny house and garden were her main support, but lately she had been fired with zeal to strike out in a new direction and add to her income. The new trolley was on everybody's tongue. It was an air line between a large town and a city, and the little farming hamlet where Beulah lived lay in its track and was waking up to its opportunities.

"Why can't I sell something as well as the rest and earn enough for a new dress," said Miss Beulah, tossing on her uneasy pillow. "I haven't any farm produce and I never had any luck with chickens. There! I've heard that frog's legs were good to eat, and I've frogs enough to fill up a regiment."

"Do it now!" was Miss Beulah's watchword, and next morning she took the trolley for the city and never rested until she had seen the general buyer for a fine hotel and engaged to bring a sample lot of frog saddles. Tired but triumphant, she came home

"Then, you don't really love me, Beulah!"

unmindful of the keen scrutiny of a fellow traveler, who eyed her first with a puzzled look, then with a satis- his home he tried to unlock the door. fied air swung himself off at the same | but' could not get the supposed key stopping place.

Next morning, bright and early, Miss Beulah made an amphibious toilet and started for the frog pond. Stepping carefully on the floating network of branches and logs she spied the bright, green head and mottled body of a splendid great fellow and you know you are trying to unlock it crept cautiously close to him. "I've got you now!" she exclaimed, putting out her hand and making a "Then, by gosh! I must have smoked tremendous grab. But he was too the key!"-Exchange.

"If anybody's name ever was a mis- | quick and dashed back into the water. "I'll have you yet," she cried, and, bending eagerly forward, lost her balance and fell splashing among the

"Hold on, I'll help you," shouted a masterful voice, which thrilled her 'Sweet Beulah land,' ought to see what | hear, and a tall, athletic man came resolutely toward her and lifted her

> "Come, Beulah-hold tight-don't be afraid-come with me." "Amos Hathaway! I'd know your voice at the North Pole!"

"Yes, Beulah, I was waiting for the proper time in the day to call, and "I don't want to be engaged in a frog pond."

came around by the old pond. You know, dear, I vowed I'd never ask said it."

"Don't say another word, Amos, unengaged in a frog pond."

Preferred "Coney" to "Long."

Capt. Prager of the North German Lloyd steamer Breslau was constantly annoyed on the last voyage over by a like loud enough. mischievous youngster, who shook the foundations of the captain's peace of mind till at last his patience gave

The boy had been hanging around the captain all day, worrying him with his naughtiness, till finally the skipper let loose the vials of his wrath.

"If you don't behave yourself, you," he roared with the voice accustomed to obedience, "I'll put you ashore on Long Island and let you stay there."

But he had not counted on the native American wit. As quick as a flash the youngster replied:

"Oh, captain, please, I'd much rather be put ashore on Coney island." And when they reached port the captain wanted to know why one should be preferred to the other for marooning purposes .- Baltimore Sun.

Capt. Burns Cured of Pea Soup. The following was frequently told by Capt. Martin Burns of Bangor, Me., from the people in the pews."

The captain was very fond of split split peas. On this occasion, however, in one of the transepts, and the Dean his negro steward got whole peas, and at once called the collector to the so the soup that the captain called for | rails. on the first day out was thrown away.

The next day pea soup was again served, and this time the captain, after having eaten a hearty meal, said to his steward: "Steward, that's the kind of soup I like; we'll have some more just like it to-morrow." "Fo de Lawd's sake, cap'n," exclaimed the steward, "ma jaws am so best seats as won't pay."-London Antired chewing dem whole peas dat Ah just can't chem no mo." The captain never asked for pea soup again.

Taking Command at Once. He had married a widow, and they no sooner got home after the ceremonies than she put her arms akimbo,

"Now, John, off with them bridal duds o' yourn and fetch me up a couple o' scuttles o' coal from the cellar, quick."

"But, my angel!" he exclaimed,

"No nonsense, John. Then go up to the attic and bring me down that large Saratoga, and afterward you can step around to the grocer's and get that box of soap, you know. Then you can help me get supper rea-" John tendered his resignation on the spot.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Perfectly Sober, Too. A short time ago a man went home the worse for drink. On arriving at into the lock. A man who happened to be passing at the time noticed him fumbling at the door and asked him what he was doing. He replied:

"Why, trying to unlock the door. I want to get in." "Why, man," said the other, "do with a cigarette?" "Am' I?" said the staggery one. UMBRELLA THIEF'S NEW TRICK

Changing Handles Is the Latest Professional Wrinkle.

"About the slickest umbrella lifter in town dropped in yesterday," remarked the head barber in one of the uptown hotels. "You don't say," replied the man in the chair. "How did he aperate?" "Oh, he was a changer." "Ah. I see. He brought in an old

"Oh, no; that's an old, clumsy game that was worked twenty years ago. This chap was up to the times and changing handles. He carried a full stock of handles and when he sighted a fine silk umbrella with a gold or trymen for their real gold. silver handle he slipped it off and screwed on something entirely different. Then he dropped the original handle in his pocket and leisurely awaited his opportunity to slip out without attracting attention. "As everybody identifies their umbrella by the handle, this 'lifter' can walk right past you with your own umbrella and you never notice it. Oh, these days." And the head barber changed the subject to hair tonics.-New York the world is moving, and even the umbrells, thief keeps up with the times

SHOCK TOO MUCH FOR BRUIN.

Hugging Bear Evidently Did Not Know the Summer Girl.

The great performing Russian bear had escaped from the captivity under which he had chafed for so many months; but he was finding that liberty had its drawbacks. For many weary hours he had prowled, but nothing in the shape of food had he seen.

Suddenly he gave a growl of delight, for, sitting on a stile, he espied a toothsome little lady, who was evidently awaiting the coming of a young man. Bruin did not stop to ponder upon his good-fortune; he seized her in a mighty hug. For a while she said nothing; but as he exerted more of his tremendous strength she murmured: "I don't think you are quite so strong as you were. Gerald." Then once more melancholy settled upon Bruin. He had done his best: but the young ladies of this country were beyond him. With a roar of despair he retraced his steps to the menagerie, and gave himself up without a struggle.-London Answers.

Will Willing, Wind Weak.

Mayor Story, of Atlantic City, was condemning those Menhaden fishermen who dredge the Atlantic at points illegally near the shore for fish that is only used for fertilizer. At the same time the Mayor pointed out the difficulty of catching and punishing these fishermen. He said:

"On account of the sinful waste of good fish that they cause, we would be you to come to me again, but I've just | only too glad to prosecute these men. but the means to detect and identify them are not often at hand. We have til we get ashore. I don't want to be the will but not the power to punish We are like the trumpeter in an Atlantic City band.

"This man, a native of Germany, was practicing one night a trumpet obligato, but he did not play anything

"'Louder, louder,' said the leader. "And the trumpeter redoubled his efforts. "'Louder, louder.'

"And he put on still more steam. "'Louder, louder, louder!'

"The trumpeter banged down his trumpet and glared at the leader with eyes that started from their sockets. "'It's all ferry vell,' he spluttered, 'to say "louder, louder," but vare iss de vind?""

Coachman as Collector.

It is related of Dean Gilbert Stokes that once, when influenza had incapacitated his verger as well as the two churchwardens, he consigned the duty of collecting the alms to a neighbor's coachman.

"Take the what, sir?" queried that worthy. "Take the offertory," explained the Dean. "The collection-the money

The coachman seemed satisfied and even pleased with his new dignity. pea soup, and before leaving port he But when the offertory hymn was half always put in a good-sized stock of through a noisy altercation was heard

> "Whatever is the matter?" he inquired.

The coachman, red of face and wrathful of eye, then explained. He was no half-and-half individual, and when a thing was given him to do he did it, and did it thoroughly. He said: "Why, sir, there's two men in the Adaglo. The coming night has wrapped the weary

In robes of solemn, ashen gray, And, as the light dies out across the Take down your violin and play, But do not strike a major chord for me,

But weave a melody of dreams
As soft as silence and as sweet as sleep,
As tender as the moon's pale beams. Let no strong passion mar the gentle But play a mystic minor tune. To fill my soul with pleasure sweet and

I crave of you that soothing boon. and bring to me again the dear dead days,
Those days deep buried in my heart,
And cause from out the misty land of

The scenes of old once more to start. And may your bow become a magic wand
To conjure with a plaintive score
The ones I loved, the ones I loved and lost, From out the silences once more.

—Will Reed Dunroy.

The Gift.
Fate promised me my wish, and I replied:
"Fortune for them who have no higher thought,, And fame for those whose souls may so be bought—

But give me love, and I am satisfied."
I spoke, and straight one stood there at with being one of the most beautiful women in Japan. my side,
A child of sorrow on whose face grief had wrought
Such misery as nowhere else is taught For man's imagining. And then I cried:
"Oh liar, fate, beshrew thee for thy Building castles and other objects

Thou sendest me this poor and sorry thing When it was love that I had asked of The grave-eyed stranger smiled-oh. such a smile

One sees but on the mask of suffering—
And sadly made me answer: "I am he."

Reginald Wrigh Kauffman, in Tone

Whistled greeting in London.

Watson's Magazine.

THREW AWAY HALF MILLION DOLLARS; NOW WORKS IN CHEAP RESTAURANT ARTIST TELLS OF RISK IN PHO-

Strange Career of James McNally, Once Famous Throughout America as "Green Goods King."

James McNally, the "green goods a safety deposit vault which he cannot | of that back. But, after all, there king," once worth $600,000, is earning get at for two years. umbrella and walked out with a new his living acting as a waiter in a cheap Coney Island, N. Y. resturant.

cribbed the rain shields by deftly living twenty-five years ago, before at all of the times when I used to sit cash, so I threw away the key to the he discovered how easy it was to ex- at tables and order champagne and box. And then I put in my three years change sawdust with credulous coun-

gone, the mark of the prison in his there, and all I want to do is to earn things were suddenly stopped short in

Doesn't Mind Work

"I'm a waiter, and I expect to be a waiter for two years yet," said Mc-McNally is now back to his old job. Nally, "and I'm used to the work and wear fine clothes and roll around in in Joliet. carriages. I've got a little home up in was a big lump of cash in the safety deposit box, and that was what I was depending on when I got out of prison. Threw Away Key.

"But when I was arrested I was the one at which he earned an honest | don't mind it any more. I don't think | afraid they would try to confiscate this "And then I had been a heavy drink No longer young, his great fortune Yonkers, and my two children are er and I had used opium. These turns to his old ways a broken man. can lay my hands on my $80,000. Started with $300 "It is a queer story about that money. I suppose you are wondering why,

McNally began his career with $300, which he had managed to save out of a small salary, and in ten years had won such success that he was acknowledged "king" of the business. He kept many offices and employed many

He spent his money lavishly, had a splendid mansion in the aristrocratic part of Boston, supported a string of fine horses and had a magnificent country estate in Bridgeport, Conn. No banking magnate ever spent money more freely. $50,000 for Jewelry For the notorious Nellie Maroux. who deserted him when he was sent to prison in '96, he spent $50,000 in jewelry alone in one year. He has the bills for this now and exhibits in farms and other things, and while to the ownership of the money is all

The Gallant Oriental.

with a splendid bouquet of early chrys-a kiss for each one of them, and-"

"Why are you running away?" cried

"Wait," answered the Japanese. "I will return. I am going after more

How to Perfume Laces.

Queen Alexandra's laces, linens and silks are perfumed in a simple and delightful manner, says Home Notes.

are lined with white paper, strewn with rose leaves. A layer of the fabrics to be scented is placed over this with more rose petals sprinkled upon it and so on until the drawer is filled.

The result is a delicate perfume, obtained by an inexpensive method,

Empress of Japan.

six years old, and is two years the senior of her husband, and credited

Sand Castles.

coming a favorite seaside amusement

Whistle "Marseillaise."

The first notes of the "Marseillaise" are being used as a popular form of Empress Haruko of Japan is fifty-which any woman can copy.

in England.

anthemums in his hand.

New England hotel.

the girl reproachfully.

chrysanthemums."

houses.

them as evidence of his past grand- I was in prison the property was taken | right. form me in a lot of different ways-McNally himself says that his pres- attachments for small debts and that it and buy a quiet farm somewhere ent position is only temporary. He sort of a thing. I have some hope, and live there with my family, and I claims to have $80,000 tied up in but not a great deal, of getting some hope folks will forget all about me."

Peter Was Looking for His Sally. Peter Fogg, a well-known character The Japanese nobleman approached

if I have it in cash in a safety deposit

Placed it in Vault

Chicago in 1900 charged with using the mails for fraudulent purposes. They had me right. I had been sending green goods circulars through the mails. I was sentenced to three years.

Now before this time I had placed the money in a safety deposit vault in

"At first there had been $160,000 in

"But it is this way: I was caught in possible.

New York.

ticisms and his exploits keep Harrison in an uproar. The American girl, fresh and cool in A few years ago he and his intended her white frock, advanced to meet the made a visit to a neighboring village. little man across the piazza of the He had occasion to "dicker" with some horse traders, and, not wishing "If you will give me those chrysanhis Sally to witness his prevarications hemums." she said, "I will give you in that "Yankee game," bade her to take a walk around the village and But he was already nearly beyond meet him that evening at the church. earshot, making as fast as his legs After a successful day's business he could carry him toward the greenhurried to the village proper, and,

of Harrison, Me., is noted for his wit-guided by the sound of loud "amens" and the hymns, looked into the church. "Ah! my brother. Are you looking for salvation?" cried out the deacon. "No, golding it," cried Pete. "I'm all on, and is ready to start, I reckon pray at a mark, but I'll try," and he looking for Sal Skinner."

On the Jungle Line. Did you here about the work of the leopard as a spotter on the trolley line?" asked the kangaroo of the hip-The drawers in which they are kept popotamus.

"No. What did he do?" was conductor, was permitting the elephant to carry his trunk in the car without checking it." "And what happened?"

of course." Germany's Population. The population of the German empire has now exceeded the 60,000,000 figure. It has doubled within seventy-two years. The 50,000,000 figure was reached in 1895. Derby Celebration. In celebration of his having won in sand by children for prizes is be- the Derby, Lord Rosebery gave a garden party to the working people of Epsom to the number of 3,000.

Chinese Railways. China has ten railways in operation, with a total mileage of 2,235, or about one-tenth that of Great Britain.

not remember at all.

vault, I can't go right down there and get it. I wish I could. You wouldn't be able to see me for dust if that was I had given when I rented the box. I have never been able to recall these things.

Must Wait Ten Years.

"The lawyers told me that I would have to wait seven years-from the time of the rental of the box. The seven years will be in 1907. The law, I suppose, takes this course, because if in seven years no other claimant to the property comes forward, that conthe box, but I invested about half of it stitutes in a way proof that my claim

"When I get this money I will take

Could Most Catch the Train.

There is a man in Enfield, Ct., who drives a carriage to and from the station for the accommodation (?) of the public. He is exceedingly slow, nearly always being a little behind time.

One day he was engaged to carry a ady to a train which it was very important she should catch. She watched and waited, with hat and coat on, until it was nearly train time. At last Mr. C. drove up, hurrying not an atom. The lady's husband flew to the door.

the use of coming now? It's nearly train time." "Wall." drawled the immovable

I can git her most there." Hated to Spend His Money.

When G. G. Solodovnikogo, the Moscow millionaire, died a short time ago, leaving his many millions for charitable purposes, it was stated that for years he had lived in a dilapidated two-"He discovered that the giraffe who story house, surrounded by rotting furniture, and without servant or companion. During the day he wore a tattered dressing gown, almost as old as himself: and, with an income of at "O, the giraffe got it in the neck, least $1,250,000 a year, he grudged the spending of $5 a week.

> Difference in Conversion. Torrey and Alexander could not convert Brixton, London, but the War Department is now going to convert the revival hall they built into a drill Fruit Experiment in Cuba. Twenty varieties of peaches and fifteen of Japanese persimmons have been introduced in an experimental farm in Cuba directed by American experts.

Cost of African War. Germany's African war has already cost the taxpayers nearly $50,000,000. million he already has.

DEATH ALWAYS NEAR

TOGRAPHING WAVES.

The Sea Never to Be Trusted for a Moment-Careless and Timid Attendants Add to the Excitement of the Undertaking.

There are plenty of adventures to be found in photographing the great waves of the sea. F. J. Mortimer, an Englishman, tells of some rough experiences in getting pictures of this kind on the stormy coast of the Scilly islands. He says: "One can never trust the sea for a moment. Once I was standing with my back to a cliff, on the top of which was a friend, whose outstretched hands I could just reach. After watching the sea for some time, breaking at a safe distance, I turned my back on it for one moment to reach up to my friend for a fresh dark-slide. Fatal movement -as fatal as taking one's eyes from a crouching tiger-for no sooner had I turned my head than a wave darted in and crashed with terrific force on to my back. I was absolutely flattened against the rock, all breath and feeling were knocked from my body, while my camera was smashed to smithereens. Bruised and gasping, I could only totter home to bed, and two days were passed before I was fit to venture out again.

"Then there was another adventure," says Mr. Mortimer, again, caused by a rope man who was too careless. He had lowered me down a narrow crevice, a 'chimney' as it is called, and having seen me safely come to ground at the bottom he calmly threw the rope down to me and went off, never thinking that he might be required to haul me up again. One glance at the sea told me that I was in a most dangerous position; the tide was coming in and would soon be welling up the chimney; and only by way of the chimney could I escape. All intentions of taking photographs I threw to the wind: after shouting till I was hoarse. I began the upward climb unaidedelbow work of the stiffest kind The chimney was 100 feet high and I spent the rest of the day in getting to the top.

"Another time the promptitude of a friend in trying to save my life cost me a valuable outfit. I was photographing from the base of a cliff, on the top of which stood my friend, holding the rope to which I was attached. Along came a final wave that would have made a magnificent study. While it was yet far distant, a sudden distrust of it entered my friend's soul, and while I was stooping over my things on the ground, without a word of warning he gave a mighty jerk to the rope and hauled me into the air. Dangling helplessly, unable to cry out, I was forced to watch that fine wave roll quietly in, break with a great effect of foam, and as quietly go off with all my apparatus.

"I once had an awful fall when descending a steep bit of cliff on St. Agnes. I was clambering down, very much incumbered by my camera, which allowed me to cling on with one hand only, supported by toes, knees and elbows, when suddenly a rat leaped from a hole in the rock. time I went around in a daze. My on my hand. Now I didn't know that memory became almost entirely a rats inhabited the rock; and my surblank, so much so that the very things | prise at this unexpected discovery in I wanted to remember most I could | natural history, combined with the start I gave when the rat touched my "These things are the number of hand, caused me to let go my hold my box in the safety deposit vault, the | and to fall a distance of thirty feet. password and the fictitious name that I landed on my camera case, breaking up my outfit as completely as the sea itself could have desired."

> James Gray's Dog Partnership. James Gray, once a prominent singer of Boston, relates the following incident of his youth: When a lad of 15 he bought a yellow dog for 50 cents. He took the dog home and told his father about it. Now his father would never have a dog about the house, but, not wishing to disappoint the boy, he offered to give the boy a quarter, and so form a partnership. Gray readily assented, and thereby secured the dog's safety.

After carefully locking the animal up James went to bed, very happy. The first thing in the morning he went out to see the dog, and found him gone. He rushed to his father. and cried: "Pa, where is the dog?" "Well," said the father, "I kicked my half out. I don't know what became of your half."

Elder Swan's Prayer at a Mark.

Jabez Swan of Connecticut, the noted and eccentric evangelist, was once attending an association meeting, when the moderator, a driving man for business, laid out the time for the speakers and for the business of the morning. "And now," he said, and impatiently shouted: "What's "there are just three minutes left that are unoccupied. Elder Swan, will you pray?"

The elder rose at the call and hackman, "if your wife has her things | said: "Well, brethren, I never yet did filled out the allotted time.

Whiting Owned "Clear Up." David Whiting, founder of the present firm of D. Whiting & Son, milk contractors, was one day in his mill yard in Wilton, N. H., where two of his men were unloading a load of logs onto a large pile.

One of the men said: "It would be well to start a new pile, wouldn't it, Mr. Whiting?

"Pile 'em up; pile 'em up; I own clear up," said Mr. Whiting's laconic reply.-Boston Herald.

Porter's Good-by to "Mark Twain." Gen. Porter tells this story of his farewell to "Mark Twain" once when "Mark" was going away: "I said good. by 'Mark'; may God be with you always." He drawingly replied: 'I hope -em-he will, but I hope, too, that he may find some leisure moments to take care of you."

Secures 4,000 Butterflies. Walter Rothschild, M. P., who recently spent three weeks at Cauterets. in France, near the Pyrenees, brought home to England with him nearly 4,000

specimens of butterflies to add to the