It is the ideals of the college men and women that determine what will be the history of this country for the next thirty years.

The Belgians are a proud people. They would ask alms of no nation. But so serious is the situation that Albert, King of Belgium, has asked the American people for aid. His appeal follows:

"Despite all that can be done the sufferings in the coming winter will be terrible, but the burden we must bear will be lightened if my people can be spared the pangs of hunger, with its frightful consequences of disease and violence.

"I confidently hope that the appeal of the American commission will meet with a generous response. The whole-hearted friendship of America shown my people at this time always will be a precious memory."

BEER AND BANQUET.

Drinking is disreputable. The student who feels himself obliged at every school celebration to fill up with liquor is a nuisance to the University. Particularly disgusting is the fellow who imagines himself drunk because he has smelled a beer bottle.

Why these remarks? This is the reason: At former Cornhusker banquets it has been customary for a few fellows, after buying a dime's worth of beer, to lean against the bar, give the University yell, and then saunter back to the dining room believing themselves "tough." These same fellows will ask everyone to smell their breath and feel most happy when you tell them they are drunk. They want to appear hardened, don't you know.

The Daily Nebraskan has selected one of its best reporters to cover the Cornhusker banquet. He has been instructed that what is wanted if possible is a spicy, sensational, Hearst-type story. He is to secure the name, fraternity affiliation, etc., of every bar room hero. This information will furnish material for an excellent front-page lead Monday. It will interest our readers we are sure and will help these same fellows to acquire the reputation they apparently so much desire.

on a cross buck. They failed to kick goal. This ended the Sophomore's scoring. In the fourth quarter, the Sophomores were penalized fifteen yards for holding, and when they attempted to punt, Brown blocked the ball and Mulligan scooped it up, racing across the Sophomore goal line.

Several forward passe were staged. In the first half the Freshmen got away with some long and well executed passes, and in the second half the Sophomores made several long gains by the aerial route.

Views of the University.

A University calendar of unusual beauty has been displayed in the windows of one of the book stores. At the top of every page a large sepia print of some University building is shown, these views being remarkably clear, and displaying the beauty spots of the campus to the best possible advantage. It is a beautiful piece of work, cover included and deserves commendation as an advertisement of the University.
