higher as well as lower education must be recognized as the proper function of the state. A beginning was made in the so-called "seminary grants" of land for the encouragement of higher education. Ten days after the Ordinance of 1787 had declared the encouragement of learning to be a public trust, two townships were reserved by congress, in its grant to the Ohio company, for the endowment of a "literary institution." Here is the prototype of the 72 sections of land reserved to our own university in the "enabling act" and of many similar reservations in other states. Under the Morrill act of 1862—one of the noblest monuments of American statesmanship—supplemented by the later federal grants of money, the extension of social control to all grades of education has been fully accomplished. There has come into existence an American system of public universities which is at once the expansion and the crown of an American system of public schools. In the creation of the "common" university as in the creation of the "common" school, the state has joined hands with the nation. The rise of the state university as a part of the social organism is a fact of surpassing interest; and its meaning is all the greater because, partly under its influence, private collegiate foundations, whether secular or sectarian, are fast becoming its allies in the administration of education as a public trust. Such are the three steps forward caused by the second crisis: the social control or secularization of education.

Tulane

Students of Tulane who are members of the Tulane Club met Thursday night to formulate a protest against the cancellation of the 1916 baseball games by the Tulane Athletic Association. It seems that ten games were arranged, including Texas and other schools, and that the I. A. A. has decided against the intercollegiate games, desiring to play only intermural games. That this is a breach of faith, and that the games could have been played with financial profit to the association and pleasure to the students is the stand taken by prominent students of Tulane.

GERMAN CLUB

PLAYS AT OMAHA

"Das Gluck im Winkel" was given by a cast from the German Dramatic club at the Muscheim in Omaha last Monday night. The audience was small, but very appreciative and expressed the hope that the club would favor them with another play in the near future.

The important characters were the same as when it was produced in the Temple theatre a few weeks ago, Magdeline Craft and Axel Swenson playing the leading roles. The minor parts were taken by Omaha high school students. The proceeds from the performance, under the auspices of the Deutsche Frauenbund of Omaha, will be given to the Red Cross society.

SPORTS

FRAT BASKETBALL

DEVELOPING WINNERS

The first division of the interfraternity basketball have played their first round for the championship. The first game of the second division will be played between the Kappa Sigma and Sigma Phi Epsilon.

The Delta Taus, who won from Acacia, will meet the Alpha Thets, who won from Delta Upsilon, in the second round of the tournament. The

ORGANIZATIONS SLOW WITH PICTURES

Organization pictures for this year's Cornhusker are coming in very slowly. There are only three days left, and several organizations have not even had their sittings for their pictures. Others have had their pictures taken, but have not returned their proofs, and still others have done all this, but have not paid for their space in the Cornhusker.

All this material must be approved by T. A. Williams as "fully paid" before the staff can send it to the engraver.

If the Cornhusker is to be out on time, the staff must have the co-operation of all the students all the time.

MAX G. TOWLE

Max G. Towle, a graduate of the class of 1914 from the Law college, is one of the republican candidates for the office of justice of the peace at the April primaries.

While in school, Max was a member of the football teams of 1912 and 1913, which won the Missouri valley championship both years and also defeated Minnesota for the first time in thirteen years. He was captain-elect for 1914, but was declared ineligible. He also captained the baseball team of 1912 and served upon the athletic board for that year, receiving the highest number of votes in the election.

Max is an ardent supporter of the university and the voting students of the school should take it upon themselves to register at the city hall, which can be done any time up to ten days before the primaries, and get out and not only vote for this alumnus, but get your friends out and at work in his behalf. In order to vote, a residence in the state of six months is required, forty days in the county and ten days in the precinct. It is necessary to register at the city hall before April 8 if you wish to vote. This should be attended to before it is forgotten or neglected.

Kappa Sigs in the first basketball game of the second division last evening, 20 to 6.

The game was unusually rough and since the referee had no whistle, fouls were not called closely. The Sig Eps show the effects of superior training and practice. The first half was close, ending 6 to 4 in favor of the Sig Eps. The second half showed the
