Old Time Pep To Characterize Cornhusker Banquet Next Week

Cornhusker men were rejoicing Wednesday at the prospect of attending another Cornhusker banquet, one with the old time spirit, the gayety and the pep which has characterized the big affair in former years. Disagreeable occurrences connected with the event have been forgotten and all university men will join in paying homage to Husker heroes of the gridiron and the court.

The banquet will be held Thursday, January 30, at a place which will be decided upon later. As an affair open to all men students the feed will be given for a reasonable price. The mere matter of something to eat, however, is a small item in the big program, for music, speeches, yells, fun of all kinds will be provided. An evening crammed full with wholesome entertainment is being planned by the committee composed of D. J. Stephens, Cable Jackson and Paul Dobson.

Good Program in Store

A clever toast list is being arranged and some prominent Nebraska alumnus will probably be secured for toastmaster. Typical athletic stunts, music and skits in harmony with the spirit of the occasion are to fill out the remainder of the program.

Due to the fact that the banquet has been scheduled for a night at the close of examination week students may feel free from worry about their work and relax for a genuine good time.

Football, basketball and track men—all the athletics of the Cornhusker school will be there. Old students will see that they make themselves known in short impromptu speeches, new ones will miss an opportunity to become acquainted with the big men of the university if they fail to attend the rally.

BISHOP O'REILLY TALKS TO CATHOLIC STUDENTS

Bishop O'Reilly was elected to honorary membership at a meeting of the Catholic students' club held Sunday afternoon in the Knights of Columbus hall. A large gathering of Catholic students in the university attended the meeting.

The bishop was the chief speaker of the meeting. He gave a very interesting address to the students on education in universities.

FERGUSON SPEAKS AT ENGINEER'S MEETING

The engineering society held its first meeting of the school year last evening. Dean O. J. Ferguson and several other engineering professors lectured to the goodly attendance of students that turned out for the meeting.

Plans for future meetings were discussed, and arrangements were made for the publication of the Blue Print, the engineering magazine.

The possibility in the field of engineering were shown by the professors in their lectures. Plans for work in the college next semester were also discussed. L. S. Hamilton presided at the meeting.

UNI STUDIO FILMING PROFESSORS AT WORK

The University of Nebraska is being filmed in the studio of the conservation and soil survey department. An attempt is being made to stage the work of the professors who have served the institution twenty-five years. Such men as Professors Caldwell, Fossler, Sherman and Barbour are being filmed in their characteristic attitudes.

The work of the various departments will be put in form to show the work of the institution before the high schools of the state. Another purpose of the motion pictures is to record the history of the University of Nebraska.

Roman Art and Archaeology

To accommodate some students whose schedules made it impossible for them to take the above course this semester it will be offered again. It will consist of lectures, illustrated with lantern views, upon the public and private life of the Romans. It is open to students of all departments above freshmen. The class will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 4:00 in U. 202. Fuller details may be found on page 512 of the catalog under course 19.

Palladian Pictures

The Palladian society will meet at Townsend's studio, Friday at 12:15 o'clock to sit for the Cornhusker picture.

CHATBURN IN FAVOR OF BIG BUILDING PROGRAM

The following is a summary of a paper read recently by its author, George R. Chatburn, professor of applied mechanics at the university, entitled "Building During the Reconstruction Period." The central idea conveyed by the address was that owners should be advised to go right ahead with their building plans for the reasons that within the next year, at least, (a) there is not likely to be a very great decrease in the price of materials; (b) there is not likely to be a very great decrease in wages; (c) there is not likely to be a decrease in interest; (d) much public work was stopped at the outset of the war and if this work was needed then, it certainly is needed now; (e) if needed work is postponed, the ramming up process will become greater and because of increased demand, prices may be higher two or three years hence than they are now; (f) as many people as possible should be encouraged to build homes for the social stability entailed; (g) every person in the country should and must have an opportunity to earn an honest living; and (h) it is the patriotic duty of wealth to support the government and the people of the government in times of peace and readjustment as well as in times of war. Contractors, therefore, can confer no greater benefit on society at this time than to popularize a building campaign that will sweep the entire country. The problem facing the country at this time in regard to building conditions as stated by Dr. Chatburn follows: "The prospect is good but not the best. There is plenty of work that ought to be done but owners are waiting for a drop in prices."

Professor Fitzpatrick Writes for Fern Journal—Professor T. J. Fitzpatrick is the author of an article appearing in the current issue of the American Fern Journal. His topics, "Ferns of Northeastern Iowa," a subject on which he has done much research work.

Are the Juniors Modest, or Don't They Want a Cornhusker for 1919

The Cornhusker staff is appealing to the class of 1920 for a show of real brand of Nebraska spirit and loyalty. The juniors are not playing the important part that their rank in school demands of them in the matter of making the yearbook a success.

Up to the present time less than one hundred of the juniors have had their pictures taken for the "Victory Annual" and many of these will have to be retaken. The majority of senior pictures have already been turned in and many of the organizations have

GIRLS SELL MEDALS TO SUPPORT FRENCH ORPHAN

The women students of the department of economics and commerce for several years have contributed to the support of a little six-year-old French girl, Michelle Robert, whose father was killed in the battle of the Marne. The payment of $36 a year enables the mother to keep the child in her home instead of sending it to an orphanage. This money can be raised through the sale of medals at 25 cents each, or by contributions.

Circular letters have been sent out to various university girls urging them to assist in the sale of medals. Anyone wishing to purchase a medal or make any contribution to this fund may leave their money in the office of the school of commerce with Professor M. T. England.

THREE MEDICS ELECTED TO ALPHA OMEGA ALPHA

At a recent meeting of the Nebraska Alpha chapter of Alpha Omega Alpha, the honorary medical fraternity corresponding to Phi Beta Kappa at the liberal arts college, three members of the class of 1919 were elected to membership.

E. J. Krahulik.
H. E. McGee.
A. L. Cooper.

HUSKERS WALLQP DRAKE 34 TO 13

Nebraska Victorious in Initial Missouri Valley Game—Another Mix Tonight

Schellenberg, Jackson and Patty Star With Large Tallies—Passing and Guarding Wins

(Special to The Nebraskan.)

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 21.—The Nebraska Cornhuskers smothered the Drake Bulldogs by a lopsided score of 34 to 13 here tonight in the initial Missouri valley conference game of the season for the two schools.

The Cornhuskers outplayed the Bulldogs by a decisive margin in all departments of the game. Their short passes and tight guarding frustrated all the Iowans' attempts to turn the tide.

Captain Jackson, Schellenberg and Patty grabbed the laurels for the visitors. Schellenberg heads the list with six field goals to his credit, Jackson four, and Patty four.

Thursday night the Cornhuskers will meet Drake in the second game and the last two evenings of the week they will take a shot at Grinnell.

EDUCATION ESSENTIAL TO LEADERSHIP, SAYS KELLY

Kansas University Dean Tells of Lessons Learned in S. A. T. C. Educational Work

LAWRENCE, Kans., Jan. 20.—"College education is essential for leadership."

"Military discipline is incompatible with the highest type of college education."

"Colleges must learn to be more easily adaptable to present demands." These are some of the conclusions reached by F. J. Kelly, dean of the school of education of the university of Kansas, in an address at Topeka, Saturday afternoon before the college section of the council of administration at its first annual sessions.

Dean Kelly, who was at the head of the educational work of the student army training corps at the university, spoke largely from his own experience in treating the topic, "Lessons from the S. A. T. C." He called particular attention to the fact that influenza quarantines and the signing of the armistice prevented a real test of the student army.

"Perhaps the handsomest tribute ever paid to college education," said Dean Kelly, "was the plan of the government to pay the expenses of men in American colleges rather than that education should cease. In saying this, however, the government also declared that not college education in general, but college education pursued with a definite end in view, in worth paying for."

"There is no reason why experts in military training should not be engaged by the university of college, the same as experts in chemistry, or history, or engineering."

The "war aims" courses was commended by Dean Kelly, as pointing out to colleges that even in peace times provision should be made for training the college men in a way they are expected to have a part in places in the world and the problems to enable them to comprehend their solving.
