DAILY DIARY RHYMES

"The moving finger writes and
Having writ, moves on;
And no man's voice can bid it
To return when once it's gone.

When you've done, you've done—if poor—
You live to drink with gall;
But he who bids at no life name
Has lived no life at all.

A stinging conscience greets the soul
Who's turned aside with scorn
A prophecy from he, whose life
Played wrong, is broken, torn.

It's well to give the facts a glance
And scrutinize each point;
Best served to give you what is right—
Mischoice will disappoint.

So there we are, it's later that
Regret will find it's way
If your name's not down on the "Rag"
man's list
Better order yours today."

RETAILERS IN FAVOR OF COMMERCE COLLEGE

A resolution prepared by the Federation of Nebraska Retailers at their convention now being held in this city and which was submitted for the approval of the members yesterday, asks the regents of the university to elevate the school of commerce to a college and place it on a par with other colleges of the university. The retail merchants feel that in view of the success which the school has already attained and its growing popularity, it should aspire to a higher dignity. They point out that the prominent part that business has in human affairs entitles it to be as fully recognized as other activities.

This shows the attitude of one of the greatest business organizations in Nebraska toward the proposed college of commerce which, if established, will broaden the opportunities of the future man of business to an enormous degree.

FINAL WAR AIMS GRADES NOW READY FOR STUDENTS

The final examination papers and averages in War Aims are ready for the students. The exam papers are posted outside U-211, and the final average has been placed on the papers. The grade in red ink is the examination grade; the one in pencil, the average.

Five percent has been taken off the final grade for each paper not in. If three or more papers have not been handed in, or if one examination was not taken, an incomplete is given. On many papers a note in parenthesis explains why the grade is not higher.

January failure returns show an increase in number as compared with December, and liabilities also show enlargement as compared with that and recently preceding months. It is hardly necessary to add that this is in keeping with expectations that dulled trade, especially in retail lines, which was a feature of that month, would result in an enlarged crop of suspensions.

The Master Key!

You have heard of the "master key" that opens every door of a great office building. Did you ever hear of a MASTER SCHOOL OF BUSINESS—an institution that combines the advantages of the best schools with certain individual advantages of its own. This Master School, like the master key, unlocks all the doors of business to those who successfully complete one or more of its courses of study.

UNIVERSITY MEN'S CLASS OF CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH BEGINS COURSE IN WORLD PROBLEMS

Next Sunday morning at 12:00 M., the University Men's Class of the First Congregational Church will meet to begin a course of discussion on immediate national and world problems, as viewed from the Christian standpoint. The leader will be Mr. Will Owen Jones, editor of the Nebraska State Journal. It is doubtful if a more valuable opportunity has ever been offered either in or out of the university curriculum for young men to think through some of the problems they will be grappling with in later life as men of the world. The greatest conference of all history is in session at this present moment, and the League of Nations will be the subject for discussion next Sunday.

If you are not a member of a similar group in another church, you can scarcely afford to miss these discussions, especially at such a central period in the world's life and under the guidance of a man so widely recognized as a true leader of the best political thought and influence. You are most heartily welcome, and we hope you will be present.

DEAN STOUT ADDRESSES ENGINEERING SOCIETY

should not consider costs, but determine his work on the basis of results to be accomplished. It is not the efficiency of producing these results which concerns him; it is the efficiency of the product."

The engineering work of the army covers a great deal more than that of the engineering corps. Other departments, such as Field Artillery, Coast Artillery and ordnance involve the solution of engineering problems of considerable magnitude. It is already established that there will be a Field Artillery unit of the R. O. T. C. at the University of Nebraska, where some of the engineering features of the work will be brought out. There are possibilities that Signal Corps and Ordnance units may also materialize.

Another point made by Dean Stout was to the effect that a systematization of work and the establishment of reasonable requirements will produce very desirable results.

Speaking in a lighter vein, Dean Stout pointed out the fact that a man in the army often develops an ability to do much more than he thinks he is capable of doing, depending upon "what he gets if he doesn't do it." Several illustrations of this way of producing results were given.

DRAMATIC STUDENTS TO COACH SCHOOL DEBATES

Misses Gladys Appleman and Gladys Corrick of the dramatic department at the university are out in the state coaching high school students for debating and oratorical contests. Miss Appleman is at Oxford this week, and Miss Corrick is working with the school children at Madison.
