NEBRASKA LOST.

Nebraska's football team went east—and lost. There are no alibis. The indomitable Cornhusker spirit has not been broken. When Nebraska was losing, when the Illinois team was tearing through the Husker line, every person watching the game was behind the Cornhuskers with every atom of spirit within his body.

Illinois has a better team. Illinois outplayed Nebraska. But the Huskers never gave up. Even when the score was piled convincingly against them, the Cornhusker players struck and re-struck at the superior team. Nebraska did not win. There is still that wealth of spirit behind the team. When the Cornhuskers come back, there will be thousands of students there to meet them. Give the team a reception as royal as the send-off.

SERVICE FOR YOU

A special correspondent was sent by the Daily Nebraskan to cover the Illinois game so that readers of the paper might get a first-hand account of the game.

Subscribers to the paper will appreciate the efforts put forth by the staff in getting the story of this football classic.

CAST YOUR VOTE

Tuesday, a number of candidates will come up for election as presidents of their classes or for Student Council. Elections are not to be disregarded. Don't go to the polls to cast your vote for one man because he is on your side of the fence.

Vote intelligently. There are plenty of men and women for you to choose from. Cast your vote Tuesday.

BUY A STUDENT TICKET

October 10, 11, and 12, the campaign to sell student athletic tickets, will be held on the campus. Every student may use his own judgment about it, but he is expected to buy a ticket.

This is a single tax system that has done away with the campaigns several times a year to sell season tickets for each sport.

By this method, each student can buy a ticket to every athletic event at Nebraska for 1923-24. What more could any student ask?

Even figuring conservatively, the ticket selling for $7.50 will let you see $26.00 worth of athletic events.

These are but a few of the high points concerning the opportunity that students will have when the tickets go on sale.

You will not be forced to buy a ticket—but you will be expected to buy one.

DRAMATICS—ATHLETICS

In an article in the Daily Nebraskan recently, Professor Alexander urges students to join dramatic work. He states that he thinks that Nebraska should have as fine a record in dramatics as she has in athletics.

Dramatics, belonging in the category of belles lettres, has, unfortunately, suffered a certain decline in the last quarter century. The fast moving world, where everything is measured in a hard, commercial language, has been poison to the spoken stage.

Smaller colleges, for many years the stronghold of good literature, oratorical contests, and dramatics, were forced to follow the precedent set by universities or suffer from lack of students. It is, of course, with a measure of genuine regret that most persons watch athletics assume the position that was so recently the place of the belles lettres.

Although he did not state it in his article, Professor Alexander probably has a feeling of sincere regret upon seeing athletics supersede dramatics. Although there is not a person that can deny the value of sports, the position that literature held in colleges twenty-five years ago has caused many men to look back to that day as the better days of institutions of higher learning.

Merely Opinion

Much attention is being paid to the freshmen boys to be sure that they wear their green caps. Girls without the green buttons will also receive a bit of attention unless they comply with the rules.

When planning your budget—remember that $7.50 for an athletic ticket.

At the elections Tuesday, some girl in the University will be chosen honorary colonel of the R. O. T. C. This is an honor that falls to 'but one girl in the University of Nebraska.

Be at the Burlington station at 5:45 to meet the football team.

Rag Carpet

Ask some of the freshmen what they think of their cadet uniforms. "Yeh, don't I look like General Nuisance?" These breeches and this coat match like a pair of running trunks and an overcoat.

"Well, what's the difference?" replied an upperclassman, "that's good enough for the awkward squad."

Just the same, one of these "awkward squads" will win compet even though their uniforms aren't all alike.

Frosh—They won't let me play my wind instrument in the cadet band.

Soph—Bass horn or clarinet?

Frosh—Neither—electric fan.

Few Submit Yells in N Club Contest

Two season football tickets offered by the N club for the best yell submitted to the Innocents have been little contented for to date. Innocents urge everyone to get into the contest, submitting as many yells as possible, in the four days which remain.

The Cornhusker yell contest closes next Thursday at six. To date only a few yells have been submitted, but the Innocents, who in addition to a number of the faculty athletic board will act as judges, expect more competition.

Yells may be submitted by mail to the chairman of the cheer leaders, care of Station A, in the ballot box in University hall, or in the ballot box at the west entrance of social science hall.

G. W. Rosenlof, instructor in Teachers College, who is historian of Phi Delta Kappa, has recently completed an historical study of the Nebraska chapter of the fraternity for the national council. It is planned to incorporate this survey into the historical studies of all the various chapters in the United States. This study describes the activities of the local chapter.

Officers of Phi Delta Kappa, honorary educational fraternity of the University, are planning a dinner for school men attending the First District meeting of the Nebraska State Teachers Association at Lincoln, October 31 to November 3. They hope to get a person of national reputation as the after-dinner speaker.
