

Seventeen Per Cent of Women Work Outside of School says Dean Heppner

More than 17 per cent of the women in the University of Nebraska are working outside of school to help pay their expenses, according to statistics recently compiled from records in the office of the Dean of Women.

"Undoubtedly the percentage is much larger than the records show," said Miss Heppner in commenting on the statistics. "Many girls returning to school secured their former positions, and we have no way of checking up on them. Others came without any certainty of positions and later secured them."

Girls who are working outside of school are good students, according to Dean Heppner.

"My experience on the scholarship committee has been that few girls working had to be called before the committee because of poor scholarship. To be sure they are not generally elected to Phi Beta Kappa, but we don't expect that of girls who are working so hard."

Of the records of 2,088 girls, 363 indicate that the student is carrying outside employment. Of these, seventy-nine are working for board and room, and 217 are doing some form of work for pay, generally stenographic or office employment. The others either work for board and room, assist professors in the University, or teach in local schools.

Girls who are earning all their expenses are few in number, according to Miss Heppner. Most girls cannot stand the strain upon their health.

Most of the working students carry but thirteen or fourteen credit hours of school work and average three or four hours a day of outside work. If they spend more time outside, they carry fewer credit hours. Very few students working every day can carry a full schedule of sixteen hours, according to Miss Heppner.

SOONERS PREPARE FOR CLASH WITH NEBRASKA

Three Weeks' Practice Has Put Oklahoma Team in Good Condition.

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 6.—With seventeen letter men and a likely bunch of youngsters from last year's freshmen squad fighting daily for places on the first string, Coach Bennie Owen is pointing his Sooners for the first game of the season with the University of Nebraska, at Lincoln, October 13.

Three weeks' practice has put the Sooners on edge. In daily scrimmage with the freshmen the varsity has shown mid-season polish, plowing through the yearling line at will and shooting over long and short passes for substantial gains.

Captain Pete Hammert, who leads a squad of eighty-four, the largest in Sooner history, is showing well at half. Five other veterans, Eddie Johnson and Earl Hendricks, quarterbacks; Charles Pokorney and Alvin Johnson, halfbacks, and Gordon Bistow, fullback, are rounding into form rapidly.

Eleven veterans are working in the line. Clinton Steinberger, Lloyd Boatwright, and Edward Strouville are holding down end positions; Lazelle White and James Penick, tackles; Clifford Bowles and James Thompson, guards; Herbert Schafer, William Patterson, Glenn Hartford and Alfred McFadden, centers.

Plenty of good work is being done in the backfield by sophomores.

Nine men who starred on the freshmen team last year are fighting hard for berths on the varsity line.

Never before has Oklahoma been blessed with such a wealth of material. The Sooners' greatest weakness, however, lies in inexperience. Only three of Owen's men are playing their third year, while the remainder of the squad is made up of comparatively green material.

Owen has not decided who will make the trip to Nebraska. When questioned, he would give no tentative lineup, but said that about twenty-five men will be taken along.

Members of Rifle Team Get Letters

(University News Service)

For their part in rifle-fire competition with teams from twenty-five other colleges and universities in the middle-west, five members of the R. O. T. C. have been granted letters by the Military Department. These letters—an "N" flanked by a smaller "R" and "T"—go to the following men:

Norris W. Coats, '24, Stuart.
Norris G. Kenny, '24, University Place.
George H. Taylor, '25, Villisca, Ia.
Dwight T. McVickers, '24, Alliance.

G. H. LaTelle DeFord, '25, Buckingham, Colo.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps contributed two men—Charles M. North, '25, Shelton, and Donald Roberts, '26, Lincoln—to the seven-man team picked from the nine states in this corps area which contended in the National rifle competition matches held recently at Camp Perry, Ohio. Francis Millson, '26, Lincoln, also participated in the competition as a member of the National guard team.

Irene Faulder Made Orchestra President

Irene Faulder was elected president of the University Orchestra at a meeting held Thursday evening. Other officers elected are: Viola Jelenek, Vice-president; Maxine Frosh, Secretary and Treasurer. The newly chosen president appointed Raymond Hinds chairman of the entertainment committee.

Prof. Clara O. Wilson, Teachers College, gave six addresses before the Nuckolls county teacher's institute at Nelson last week.

Dr. Charles Fordyce of Teachers College spoke recently to the patrons of the Friend schools on "How to Discover and Train the Talents of Youth." This address was part of the movement for educational measurements and research conducted throughout the state in the interest of improved school grading.

Despite an increase in the department of chemistry of forty-eight lockers in the freshman courses, the establishment of a special research laboratory on the second, and an extra laboratory to accommodate about 125 students in qualitative chemistry on the third floor, the influx of students has crowded the department. Chairman F. W. Upson estimates that approximately 100 more students are registered than last year.

Milton F. Landwer, A. B. (Northwestern), has been appointed assistant instructor in anatomy. Mr. Landwer did graduate work last year at the University of Chicago.
