

DEBATERS WILL CLOSE SEASON WITH AMES TRIO

Ninth Debate of Season Ends Most Extensive Program For Cornhuskers

CHANGE IN TEAM LINE-UP

Illness Prevents Skiles from Making Trip; McKnight Will Enter Contest

University of Nebraska debaters will close their season Saturday night at Ames when the negative team or farm relief debates with the Iowa State trio.

A last-minute change in the Nebraska line-up was necessitated Wednesday when doctors ordered John A. Skiles, last speaker on the team, to give up his debate work on account of his health. He will be replaced by John P. McKnight, negative alternate, who was on the affirmative team this year in the debates on parliamentary government.

The team leaves Friday. The team is scheduled to leave Lincoln sometime Friday. This will be the ninth debate of the season, closing the most extensive debate program engaged in by Cornhusker debaters for several years. All the debates have been no-decision contests.

Final practice on the question will be held this evening under the direction of H. Adelbert White, varsity debate coach. No changes are planned in the Nebraska case as the result of shifting from Skiles to McKnight. The loss of Skiles was a severe blow to the Huskers, coming a few days before the final debate of the season. The team is considered fortunate in having as alternate another varsity debater who has taken part in two debates this season and worked with the negative team on farm relief.

HANEY RETURNS FROM CONFERENCE

Mechanical Engineering Instructor Present at Meeting of A. S. M. E. This Week

Prof. J. W. Haney, instructor in Mechanical Engineering returned yesterday from Kansas City where he has been attending the Mid-West Regional conference of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

The meeting included technical sessions and entertainment features. The forenoon were taken up with the discussion of various engineering topics and problems, and the afternoons were given over to excursions, inspection trips and other entertainment.

Mr. Haney reports that there were a large number of students from the Kansas University at other universities throughout the country attending the meeting.

New Class in Stage Design Is Successful

Mr. F. D. Kirsch's stage design class has proven very successful. Starting with a small class of three students in the fall of 1924 it has now grown to a class of thirty-five.

The work in the class is made up partly of individual work by the students on scenes taken from a play. The rest is actual work in the Temple Theater in constructing scenes and painting scenery.

The play that is being used for this semester's assigned work is "The Beggar on Horseback." With the exception of the first and last scenes, the entire play is a dream. Because it is such a play, some of the scenes are wondrous in their construction.

Mr. Kirsch has had charge of the scenery for all of the University plays, and each member has had an active part in the work.

BIZAD DEAN WRITES ABOUT FARM RELIEF

LeRossignol Has Interesting Article On McNary-Haugen Bill in Issue of "New York"

In a recent issue of "New York", a four-page journal of ideas for the general reader, Dean J. E. LeRossignol of the College of Business Administration has written an article on the Farm Relief or McNary-Haugen Bill. Dean LeRossignol has created a character known as "Professor McAndrew Cantlie", who is heard to discuss the bill, in an imaginary conversation.

The editor of "New York", Harold De Wolf Fuller, says concerning the article, "Dean LeRossignol has created in Professor McAndrew Cantlie a character who, from time to time, will be an interested observer in our columns."

The article which the Dean wrote is headed "Viewed From The Tower of Babel," and follows:

Various Standpoints

"The Club", said Professor Andrew McAntie, with more than his usual sarcastic candor, "has discussed the McNary-Haugen Bill pro and con for two mortal hours, but as yet no light appears, but only darkness visible. And why? Because every member has considered the question only from his own professional point of view. The business man asks, will it pay?—the engineer, is it feasible?—the lawyer, is it legal?—the clergyman, is it right?—the economist, will it promote the wealth of the nation and the world?—the politician, will it win votes?"

"And what, I wonder, would a statesman say, if we had one here? Truly, a man is known by the questions he asks. And I, as an observer merely with nothing to propose, should like to ask: To which of these categories does President Coolidge belong?"

Intramural Sports Will Begin Again

The University has been granted the use of the Stuart Tract which lies just across the Tenth Street Viaduct and it will be divided into five diamonds for the use of the several fraternity nines, and also the different college teams which are now under organization. Fraternities are being asked to send men to help clear the Stuart Tract and get it into condition for the coming tournament.

The date for the Interfraternity Outdoor Track Meet has been set for April 26, while the date for the tennis meet will possibly be May 4. Coach Bengt, the Varsity tennis coach, is willing to help all men who are planning to enter the Interfraternity Tennis Meet.

Win From New Mexico

Albuquerque N. M. April 4.—(Special)—Under excellent weather conditions, Nebraska Cornhuskers romped over New Mexico here today 104 to 22. Durick bettered the varsity discus record with a heave of 134' 6".

About five hundred spectators watched the Huskers' last match before they meet the California Bears. The Southerners failed to take a single first; with practically no competition for the Schultemen in any event.

Krause ran the lows and highs in good time considering the loose condition of the track. Driley ran his best race today in the 220 low. Fleming ran a good race in the highs keeping a good margin throughout the flight.

Stephens and Locke Perform

Coach Schulte ran Stephens in the relay. He has not recovered fully from his muscle injury and he is saving him for the California meet. "Doc" McLean states that the team is in excellent condition for the last meet of the western trip.
