Those who will take part in the program are as follows: Piano: Miss Marie Uhlig. Violinists: Mabel Ludlum, Helen Williams, Henry Cox. Viola: Viola Forsell. Cellist: Elizabeth Strawn. Soloists: Harriet Cruise Kemmer and Hermann Decker.

JONES TALKS TO HIGH STUDENTS

Editor of Lincoln State Journal Says Hard Work Best Training for Journalist

DECLARES SUCCESS EASY

"Hard work and the habit of industry, devotion and truth,—here you have the cornerstone of success in newspaper work and in any other calling that invites you when you are at last ready for your careers," was Mr. Will Owen Jones' summary of his talk on "Journalism" broadcast from the University studio Wednesday afternoon.

A peculiar glamor surrounds the "trade of gathering and writing news" which is responsible for the desire of many young people to embrace it as their life work.

"Genuine Interest Needed" "Newspapering" is the most all-embracing of callings in the demands it makes upon those who pursue it," is the opinion of Mr. Jones.

Daily Nebraskan Inquiring Reporter

Every day he asks a question from different students picked at random on the campus.

Today's Question: "What do you think of the second-year pledging bill now up before the Nebraska State Legislature?"

"Second-year pledging is proposed by men who know nothing of the actual conditions of campus life. The theory that student life will become more democratic is entirely erroneous."

"Second-year pledging has its advantages, but under the existing housing conditions such a rule would hinder the University. In time it would work out, but the change as stated in the bill is too abrupt, and will be disastrous to many fraternities and societies."

"I am for the bill. It would give the students a chance to know what they are doing. I hope the bill is passed."

"I think it is the only thing for it would give the fraternities and societies and the students a better chance to judge one another. It would also eliminate many of the students who come to the university for only one year."

"Second-year pledging is the only thing. It is a good idea for it would give the freshmen more of a chance to get acquainted with the university."

Dr. Candy To Speak To Math Club Tonight

AWGWAN RATES ARE LOWER FOR SENIORS

Nebraska Magazine Lowers Subscription Price to $1 a Year for Graduating Students

In order to supply graduating seniors with next year subscriptions to the Awgwan, and to meet the increased demand for the publication, a rate of $1.00 is being offered for subscriptions received during the week of April 18-22 for the year 1927-28.

The special rate includes postage and magazine will be mailed to any place in the United States. Members of the graduating class can be sure of receiving Nebraska's humorous publication by placing their subscription at the office in the basement of University Hall.

"We hope all seniors will take advantage of this opportunity and place their subscriptions as soon as possible," Hal Guilds, Assistant Business Manager of the Awgwan and in charge of the campaign, said yesterday. Receipts will be given with the subscription and addresses will be taken so as to be able to mail the numbers to the subscribers.

Changes in address can be made by writing the Awgwan at any time next year.

Kansas Relay Trials Scheduled For Today

Tryouts for the Kansas Relays and the fourth tri-color meet of the season will be held at the stadium this afternoon if the weather warms up. Otherwise they will be put off until the weather does warm up.

Coach Schulte doesn't wish to run any risks of injuring any of his men by running them hard in the cold with the main portion of the intercollegiate season looming up.

New Series of Articles Will Appear Soon

Starting Sunday, The Daily Nebraskan, will begin the publication of a series of articles exhaustively treating the athletic history of the University. The series has been prepared by Jack Elliott, '29, Newton, Kan., sports editor of the Daily Nebraskan this year and editor of "In the Valley."

Mr. Elliott has spent more than two months digging into old Cornhusker, Nebraskans, Alumni Journals, consulting records in the athletic offices, talking with present athletic coaches, former coaches and fans, in gathering the materials for his history of athletics in the University of Nebraska.

This is Elliott's first year at Nebraska. He attended Bethel College, Kansas, last year. He is a sophomore in the School of Journalism. Besides writing "In the Valley" since the beginning of the basketball season, Elliott covered basketball for the Daily Nebraskan and supervised the handling of all other sport news this spring.

Rabbi Says Personal Feeling Based On Reason and Feeling Essential To Sane Religion

That personal experience, grounded in reason, and verified by feeling is the most essential feature of a sane, progressive religious outlook, was the opinion expressed by Rabbi S. Starrels in his address on "Sanity in Religion," presented at World Forum Wednesday noon at the Grand Hotel.

Rabbi Starrels explained that he was giving only his own opinions and that that was all it was worth. He discussed the subject under the three heads, rationalism, authority, and mysticism, which were dealt with at World Forum earlier in the year in a series of addresses on religion.

"What about rationalism?" asked the speaker. "I'm for it. I wish we had a good deal more of it. It is salutary to constantly recast and retest faith by the criteria of reasonable thought." Rabbi Starrels pointed out that reasonable thought today is convinced that witchcraft is a superstition although the Bible accepts it.

"Even the ethical and moral ideals given us are subject to change," Rabbi Starrels declared. "I don't like the idea of finality in any department of life. I rather like the words growth or development, or—evolution. Religion is subject to evolution. Instead of finality in religion, I believe in progressive revelation. I firmly believe that in 100 years Christianity will be finer than it is today, that Judaism will be finer than it is today and that we will have a finer conception of God than we have today."

What could be accepted as authority was discussed by the Rabbi. He showed fallacies underlying the acceptance of belief in an infallible church, book, or person. In regard to an infallible book, he stated that he saw no reason why we should stop short of all the world's treasury of inspired literature. He defined the ultimate authority as the integrity of one's own experience.

In closing he pointed out that rationalism was not all, that feeling was even more fundamental, quoting H. G. Wells that "Until men gets the God idea he has no beginning and works to no end."

COUNCIL PLANS FOR NATIONAL MEETING HERE

Tentative Plans For National Meeting Next Fall Laid Before Local Group

1000 DELEGATES COMING

Ruth Palmer and James Jensen Are Named Chairmen For Lincoln Meeting

Tentative plans for the third annual meeting of the National Student Federation of America, which is to be held on the Nebraska campus early in the fall, are being formulated according to the committee report presented at the regular bi-monthly meeting of the Student Council held Wednesday afternoon in the Temple.

Twice the number of schools represented at the second congress in Ann Arbor, Michigan, this year are expected to be present at the third meeting of the group, totaling about a thousand delegates, representing practically all of the leading colleges and universities of the country. Some of the foremost educators of the world will be brought to the Nebraska campus to address this group.

Local Council Host

The local Council, chosen by popular vote at the Michigan, is to be host for the 1927 meeting. Arrangements for housing the delegates, entertainment, meeting places and a variety of other things are to be arranged. The Student Council is asking for student cooperation in making this convention a success. A great deal of work is to be done within the next few weeks; any student desiring to assist may do so by making arrangements with Ruth Palmer at the Daily Nebraskan office any afternoon after three o'clock.

Fredrick Berger, of the University of Cincinnati, is president of the association, Marvin Breckinridge, of Vassar College in vice-president and Joseph T. Owens of Kansas Wesleyan is secretary and treasurer. The Nebraska committee for next year's meeting consists of Ruth Palmer, delegate to the Ann Arbor congress and James Jensen, joint chairman, Richard Vetter, Tom Elliott and Ruth French.

Spring Election Soon

Definite arrangements for the spring election will be announced sometime in the near future. The election committee has been investigating methods used for elections at other universities and it is quite probable that a new system will be inaugurated at Nebraska this spring.

MISSOURI SCHOOL HEAD ENTERTAINED

Chancellor Mumford of Missouri University Guest at Dinner; Avery Is Also Present

The Faculty Men's Dinner club held a dinner at the University club Tuesday evening in honor of Chancellor and Mrs. Avery and Dean F. E. Mumford of the University of Missouri. About one hundred and twenty-five attended the dinner. Chancellor Avery, who was introduced by Dean Le Rossignol spoke briefly of how glad he was to be back to Lincoln among friends.

Professor Mumford, dean of the Agricultural College and at present chancellor of the University of Missouri, chose to speak on research and its relation to a university.

"A university is not a real university unless it does work in research," Dean Mumford said in part, "for the aim of it is to add to the knowledge of the world. In order to do this work properly it is necessary for the faculty to be engaged in the work as well as having a graduate college employed in the same pursuit."

To test the faculty members and their ability, Mr. Mumford said he would have each member turn in a piece of work to be judged; to those who showed a real genius for the work he would give fewer undergraduate classes that they might give more time to research problems. Then in order to promote the interest in such work he would establish a graduate college to help the competent professors carry on research.

With such a combination Mr. Mumford believes a university would really be contributing something worth while and to the good of the world.

Story by LeRossignol Broadcast Over Radio

Dean J. E. LeRossignol's latest story, "Cousin Lothar," a tale of the Canadian Woods, was read over the University Broadcasting station Tuesday evening by Mr. Diers. "Cousin Lothar" is as yet unpublished but will appear in a book of Dean LeRossignol's writings which is to be published soon.
