Seventh Annual Display
Pharmacy Night, the next important event of Pharmacy Week, starts at 7 o'clock Thursday evening and until 11 o'clock the College of Pharmacy is host to the people of Lincoln and the state. The College takes this opportunity of welcoming the people to the Seventh Annual display of the students of the College of Pharmacy.

The purpose of this annual demonstration is three fold. First, it shows the public just what is expected of the pharmacists of today. Secondly, it gives the student a professional morale. Lastly, it brings a closer relation between the profession of pharmacy and the layman.

Each student will spend the entire evening with his exhibits and will answer questions and explain different phases of the experiment. These exhibits cover considerable scope in the field of pharmacy.

SYNDICATE ADOPTS COLLEGE ARTICLES

Branch of the United Press Makes
Offer to College Students Who Want to Write for the World

Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalistic honorary, has received a communication from the United Feature Syndicate of New York, an organization owned and operated by the United Press associations, proposing an international newspaper service by student writers, through which, by the direct cooperation of student writers in colleges here and abroad, an opportunity will be given the younger generation to express its attitude towards its world, a chance to present its so-called immature views.

Contributors on the campus will leave their contributions with Isabel O'Halloran in the News Service department of the School of Journalism. A board of faculty members, chosen by Theta Sigma Phi, will judge the articles handed in and decide which ones merit publication. These will then be sent in to the syndicate.

The proposition calls for a weekly series of articles, to be written entirely by young writers, for distribution to newspapers in this and other countries. The facilities and organization of the United Press associations throughout the world will be utilized in bringing to the attention of newspaper publishers and editors this unusual newspaper service. Five or six of the most important and interesting of the articles secured will compose a weekly service for Saturday or Sunday publication by publications willing to pay a fair price for them.

Only material which is good newspaper copy and is written on a subject of general interest will be accepted. Cartoons that tell a story or make a point are just as useful as articles and are invited. Both articles and cartoons will be paid for.

Of the gross proceeds from the sale of the service proposed, one third will go to the student writers, this share to be divided equally between the four or five contributors, whose articles have been accepted for publication, one third will be applied to defray editorial costs, and the syndicate will receive the remaining one third.

Concerning rules governing articles, contributions must be typewritten if at all possible, and, in any case, must cover only one side of the paper. Each contributor must place his name, address, college, and class (Continued on Page Three.)

The thirty-seventh annual meeting of the Nebraska Academy of Sciences will be held at the College of Agriculture, May 5, 6, and 7, 1927.

The Nebraska Academy of Sciences was organized January 1, 1891, at Lincoln, Nebraska, with some of the noted scientists of Nebraska as charter members; some of them were: Charles E. Bessey, Roscoe Pound, Lawrence Bruner, Goodwin D. Swezey, J. S. Dales, and J. S. Kingsley. The purposes of the organization were to promote investigation and fellowship, secure friendly criticism and exchange of thought, and aid in the spread of knowledge and interest in the various fields of scientific study. Meetings are held each alternate year in Lincoln, the other years in some one of the other educational centers of the state. In 1918 it was held in Peru, the state normal school, and in 1920 in Doane College, Crete.

The present active membership of the academy is about 175, and includes many of the persons actively engaged in scientific research within the state. Original investigations in the Nebraska fields have been very largely conducted by members of this academy.

The work is organized and divided into five sections, each presided over by a vice-president, and holding a field sectional meeting at the time of the annual meeting of the Academy, viz: Biology and Medicine, Earth Sciences, Engineering Sciences, Ethnology and Folklore, and Physical and Mathematical Sciences.

Opportunities For Women to Be Explained

Mrs. Florence Robnett of the Chicago Collegiate Bureau of Occupations, will be in Lincoln next Monday and Tuesday, May 9 and 10. Letters explaining her work have been distributed to all women in school and each of the sorority houses has been visited by representatives of the A. W. S. board.

The Altrusa club of this city and the A. W. S. board are sponsoring Mrs. Robnett's visit here. Both organizations are anxious that all women be reached by this personnel program. Mrs. Robnett's plan is not so much to show the vocations that are open to women as to give specific, detailed information concerning opportunities and qualifications in those lines of interest to each individual. Personal conferences are a part of her program.

A schedule of personal conference hours will be placed on the bulletin board in Ellen Smith Hall Thursday and Friday. Girls desiring personal conferences should sign up for their time then. Another opportunity to sign up will be immediately after the 11 o'clock convocation, Monday. Tables in the lobby of the Temple will be in charge of the sophomore members of the A. W. S. board.

Further information will be printed in the Daily Nebraskan. Questions concerning the work will be answered by Mrs. Robnett who is chairman of the committee and Kathryn Douglas, who is assisting her.

BIZAD RALLY DINNER HELD MONDAY NIGHT

Business Administration Students Meet at Grand Hotel to Discuss Bizad Celebration

Fifty Bizad members attended a rally dinner held at the Grand hotel last evening for students of the College of Business Administration. The purpose of the dinner was to create enthusiasm and interest in the sale of tickets for Bizad Day, which is to be held Friday, May 13. The speakers were Professors Hicks and Fullbrook, of the College of Business Administration; Orville Carrington, chairman of the ticket sales committee; and Wayne Gratigny, general chairman of Bizad Day.

Orville Carrington outlined the plan for the ticket sale campaign that starts this morning and continue through Thursday. It is planned to conduct a campaign in every class room in the college both days in order that every student will be reached. The first part of every class period will be given over to the selling of the tickets and the members of the faculty have pledged themselves to cooperate in order to make the sale a success. Team captains who will conduct the sales campaign are Judd Crocker, Wayne Gratigny, Orville Carrington, Leslie Brinkworth, Robert Du Bois, and Victor Brink. Each of these team captains will have two assistants.

Professor Fullbrook gave a short talk urging everyone to support the campaign and to work hard to make Bizad Day a complete success. Wayne Gratigny spoke in regard to the plans for the day which are now practically complete. He gave the main features of the program which are a barbecue luncheon, a baseball game between the faculty and the undergraduates, five acts of vaudeville and a dance at the Lindell Party house.

The price of tickets has been set at $1; this includes the holder to bring a date to the barbecue luncheon. Notions will be given to each student who purchases a ticket and this will identify him from further solicitation.

Grumann Discusses Galsworthy's "Justice" In KFAB Radio Address

In a speech broadcast over KFAB from the University radio station Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, Prof. Paul H. Grumann, director of the School of Fine Arts, discussed Galsworthy's "Justice" which has the ideal of justice underlying it that justice blindly applied works havoc with humanity.

Professor Grumann first presented a resume of the type of drama which Galsworthy's play represents. Secondly he presented briefly the plot of Galsworthy's "Justice." In the third place he discussed the characters of the play and criticized the manner in which they were treated by the author.

"Humanity, in the course of its development, has formulated rules of conduct which it has crystallized into law. The individual, willing or unwilling, is forced by means of this law to conform to the dictates of the past. Since all things are in constant transition, since all things grow constantly, but more slowly than the ever alert ideas of man and women. So it comes about that we look upon (Continued on Page Four.)

FILIPINO WOMEN RULE THE NATION

Miss Dale Ellis, Cotner Dean, Says Filipino Wives Are The Rulers Of Their Homes

"The Filipino woman is the man of the nation," as Governor General Wood has said, declared Miss Dale Ellis, Dean of Women at Cotner College, at Vesper services Tuesday evening. "They are the rulers of their homes and the man must even be directed in the profession that he has chosen. Not only that but she is the business head of the household," she further declared.

"The Filipino girl lives a rather secluded life at first, and she looks forward to the time when she will marry and become the mistress of her home," Miss Ellis said in part. The life of the poorer girls is very drab, for they are taught from the first to carry water and they carry it until they die or marry; but the life of the richer ones is little better as far as freedom is concerned; before they are married.

"The girls of the islands do not get to go to school very much even though America has provided them with so many schools," asserted Miss Ellis, "for the boys have first choice. However, these conditions are changing very rapidly of late for they are getting into school more and more all the time."

"One of the main troubles with the girls is that they are so very shy; when they try to go to school and be assertive they are not bold enough and consequently drop out, very often, as freshmen," she said. Still in the last few years they are becoming more assertive and are entering the special fields and making quite good."

Miss Dorothy Luxford played a violin solo.

Engineers in Near Riot When Dirigible Reading Changed for Pharmacists

Students of the College of Engineering were not only amused but angered early yesterday morning when it was noticed that their dirigible, anchored near the Administration building, and upon which was painted "Engineers' Week" had been changed to read "Pharmacy Week."

A near riot was caused by enraged members later in the morning in the Engineering buildings when the possible culprits were being sought. Students of the College of Pharmacy were believed blameless, for "Pharmacy Week" would not have been printed upon the dirigible to betray the culprits.

The dirigible has been restored to its original significance, that of advertising Engineers' Week, and students of the College of Engineering are still seeking the offender.

17-YEAR LIFE OF UNIVERSITY NIGHT IS ENDED

Y. M. C. A. Money-Making Tradition Removed Forever By Faculty Group

SHOW SAID DEGENERATED

Y. M. C. A. Given Permission To Place Other Financing Plans Before Committee

University Night, seventeen-year-old money raising scheme for the University Y. M. C. A., was formally sentenced to death Tuesday evening by the faculty committee on student organizations.

The following resolution tells the story: "Resolved that University Night as such be abolished, and that the Y. M. C. A. may present a detailed plan for some money-raising entertainment to take its place. But that the preparations for the performance shall not proceed until the plan has received the approval of the student organizations committee."

Committee Has Last Say
The action of the committee comes as the final chapter to the University Night debacle this year. Postponed for weeks the affair was finally staged on March 28. Criticism of certain features of the program was so sharp that the above action of the committee was foreshadowed by the pronouncements of the Dean of Men and other members of the committee.

An anticlimax to the Night this year was the suit of Sigma Delta Chi for recovery of prize money for the winning skit, Durham Time, an expose of campus politics which was later printed in The Daily Nebraskan.

During the suit it was brought out that the Y. M. C. A. profited to the extent of slightly over $600 from this year's scandal night.

Feeling against continuance of University Night has been growing for several years as the various acts seemed to be degenerating more and more from year to year without any effective preventive measures by the Y. M. C. A. under whose auspices and for whose benefit the show was staged.

The Y. M. C. A., it is understood, has under consideration other plans for a money-making entertainment to take the place of the $600 or more yearly contributed by University Night proceeds.

Control of Varsity Parties, which is being contested at present by the Student Council and the Varsity dance committee, was considered by the organizations committee, with action deferred until some future time.

Locke Declares He Is Ready to Quit Cinders Until After Law Exams

Roland Locke played a new dope-upsetting role Tuesday when he announced that he was through with track until after commencement. Coming after plans were well under way to bring Jackson Scholz and possibly others of the leading sprinters of the nation here to meet him in exhibitions at the Missouri Valley outdoor meet, his action left the plans for exhibitions in a tangled mess.

Locke is admittedly not in the shape he was in last year although he has been slowly getting back to form. He gave as his reasons for giving up the cinder game for the present the fact that he was not in shape and would not have time to get into proper shape while getting ready for his law finals. Law finals are set for May 19 to June 2 while the valley meet is scheduled for May 20, 21.

That these dates conflicted was Locke's principal reason for withdrawing. He called attention to the extensive "cram" sessions engaged in by the law students preparatory to their finals. "The 'Gipper' stated that he felt he could neither do justice to his track work or to his law work under such conditions. He also indicated that after four years of training grind, he was willing to have a few weeks when he didn't have to watch himself so closely.

In case Locke adheres to his dropping of the cinder sport, athletic officials of the University hope to be able to bring some other sprint ace here to compete with Scholz.

Thief Takes Pocketbook

The Kappa Delta sorority house, 405 University Terrace, was entered sometime Monday night and pocketbooks belonging to Marjorie Hall, 404 South Twenty-seventh, and Marion Piller, 2551 A street, who were standing nearby were taken. The pocketbooks contained cash in the sum of $1 and had been left in the front of the house.
