Mays Leader in Hare and Hound

Krause Finishes First but Mays Gains Points by Finding Red Sack

100 MEN COMPETE IN RACE

Wesley Mays, a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity, led with 30 points the entire field of runners who competed in the second hare and hound race last night. Although Don Krause, a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon, finished first and Mays finished sixth, Mays gained extra points by finding one of the red sacks.

About a hundred men competed in the race which covered a course of about three miles. The course was laid out over hills, through fields and down the roads. It took the men but a short time to finish this race as the trial was lost but infrequently. Coach Schulte was in charge of the runners, and Jimmy Lewis started them off. Each man who finished the race was given a point plus the number he made from placing high. Another race is to run next week, covering probably a longer course.

- The first twenty who placed last night, are given below, and the number of points each scored for his fraternity or district. 1. Don Krause, Sigma Phi Epsilon, 20 points. 2. Buzz Grisinger, Delta Tau Delta, 19 points. 3. Philip Reid, Phi Sigma Kappa, 18 points. 4. Floyd Nelson, Omega Be's F, 17 points. 5. William Kunter, Y. M. C. A., 16 points. 6. Disclosure Of Politics Shows Graft Is Rife

If charges are true, "political corruption" has found its way into campus elections at Indiana university. Students politicians have been aroused over revelations by the Indiana daily campus newspaper of "corruption" in connection with the elections of class officers last week.

The "corruption" has been confined to class elections, according to information appearing in "The Student," which outlined the situation in this way:

Nine of twelve signatures on a nominating petition filed in the sophomore election were forgeries.

The nominee for sophomore president was expelled from school two days before election, while the nominee for treasurer never entered the university.

Check of university credits of all candidates revealed that a nominee for senior treasurer was not a member of the senior class; a nominee for junior president was not a junior, and a nominee for sophomore president was not a sophomore.

Several persons having obtained twelve signatures to a proposed slate of freshmen officers, prepared to erase the names of nominees and substitute their own.

Daly, Bailey and Morrison Will Head Other Classes, Jones Wins Council Race

William F. Matschullat, '28, Plattsmouth, running without support of either fraternity political faction, sprung a big surprise in the fall elections held in the Temple Tuesday by grabbing off the senior presidency by a margin of five votes. Frederick Daly, '29, Cambridge, Arthur Bailey, '30, Ord, and Kenneth Morrison, '31, Lincoln carried off the three remaining class presidencies. Nearly 1500 students voted, for the largest number ever voting at a fall election in recent years.

Merle Jones, '28, Omaha, bested three other candidates for the honor of representing Nebraska as chairman of the National Student Council Convention to be held here in December. Maurine Drayton, '29, Lincoln, was elected to the student council from the Teachers' college without opposition. A nip-and-tuck contest was reported for honorary colonel. The votes for honorary colonel were counted by Colonel Jewett and Prof. E. W. Lantz. The result will not be announced until the Military Ball.

EVERY BEGINS RESEARCH

Ex-Chancellor Takes Up Work in Chemistry Department

Ex-Chancellor Avery has returned to the university faculty and has started work in the chemistry department. Room 205 in Chemistry hall has been fitted up as his laboratory his health has recovered sufficiently so that he is able to work several hours every day.

In December 1908 the regents called Doctor Avery from the Chemistry department and asked him to act as chancellor. At that time he was conducting research work which he intended to finish but never found time for it while he was chancellor. Just recently the regents conferred upon Ex-Chancellor Avery the title of Chancellor-Emeritus and Professor of Research in Chemistry. He is now taking up the work which he left off in 1908. His research work is in organic chemistry.

Dr. Avery reports that he is in much better health and is enjoying his work.

Professor Lantz Outlines Boy Scout Movement in University Radio Talk

"It would be safe to state, without fear of contradiction, that there has never been a program so universally accepted and so enthusiastically followed as that of Scouting," declared Prof. E. W. Lantz of the Teacher's College faculty in a radio address over the University station yesterday afternoon.

"Neither nationality, nor religion with all of the customs, conventions, traditions, or taboos, so intimately bound up with them, seem to very seriously impede the rapid spread of Scout movement," he continued.

"Some of the strongest of the National men's clubs such as Rotary, Kiwanis Lions, Optimists and others have given their support and co-operation in order to make it possible for the purposes and objectives of the movement to be more nearly realized and to bring a larger number of boys under the influence of scouting."

"The success of the movement depends upon its ability to secure and hold a sufficient number of scout masters to organize and direct the thousands of boys already old enough to join and who are ready for scouting and the additional thousands who annually arrive at the coveted age."

There are a number of men in every community, with few exceptions, who are potential scout masters and all they need is the right amount of encouragement and the proper kind of training. This group can nearly always be induced to make the attempt if they can be assured of helpful guidance during the initial stages of what is to them an experiment or even more willingly if they can receive training prior to undertaking the task. They are anxious to be of service even to the point of personal sacrifice but they want to be reasonably sure of success before they go into it.

"In order to meet the needs of that group of young men who are anxious to do more for the community than to make a living out of it, a variety of courses are being developed," the speaker pointed out. (Continued on Page 3.)

Russian-born Woman Tells Tragic And Melodramatic Story of Life

Editor's Note: In the pursuit of their assignments students of journalism often come across bits of life that are quite foreign to campus routine. Interesting—and sometimes tragic—these incidents are as stray beams from life's windows. Such is the following interview.

"After the Arabs left me I struggled on, living on grass for three weeks. I had no pass-ports, and in Russia you need a pass-port everywhere you go."

"I would rather face a Siberian wolf than those terrible Russian officials," she said sharply and rather unexpectedly. "So I prayed to God and told him I had no pass-port, but he said, 'Fear not, I am with thee.' After that the faces of the officials did not seem so fierce, and when they asked me if I had a pass-port I said, 'Yes, a pass-port all the way to Heaven,' and they didn't even ask to see it."

"It's no trouble travelling if you belong to God. Some things are unpleasant, but all is for the best," she philosophized.

Escaped in 1893 Escaping from Siberia in 1893 in Germany, she sent a German woman to Russia to kidnap her child, and then sailed for America with the child, only to find her husband had received news of her escape and was on board the same ship.

"He was still a brute, and made me own him as my husband. We landed in New York and went to live among the Germans. I wanted to go live where everybody was American so I could learn the English language, but he didn't want to."

Mrs. Holofkof continued with her story. "I learned German before I did English. I prayed to the Lord to help me, and I learned to read and write German in one night. English was harder, but I learned to speak in a month almost as well as I do now. I went to an American school when I was 22, with the little tots." And she laughed long at the thought of it.

"I couldn't read from the texts, but I could read the words in the Bible, so I read from the Bible. It was hard for me to say 'teeth' or 'both'. The 'th' sound I couldn't get until my teacher told me to put a marble in my mouth and try. After that I got it all right. I can do anything after I've seen it done once," she boldly asserted.
