

HUSKERS HEAD FOR IOWA CITY

Vanguard of Tracksters Leave For Valley Indoor Meet At Des Moines

Vanguard of the track team that will represent Nebraska in the Missouri Valley indoor meet at Des Moines, Iowa, today and Saturday, with Coach Henry F. Schulte and "Doc" McLean, trainer, left Lincoln Thursday afternoon.

Captain Perly Wyatt, E. Wyatt, Campbell, and Davenport, members of the Cornhusker mile relay team and 400-yard entrees at Des Moines; with Johnson, Dexter, and Janulewicz, Nebraska's main distance runner, accompanied the Husker mentor and trainer to Des Moines Thursday.

The remainder of the Nebraska entrees in the Valley indoor games will leave Lincoln this afternoon at 1:10 o'clock. These men include Easter and Snyder, dash men; Krause, Thompson and Trumble, hurdlers; Chadderton, Etherton, Sprague, Kibble, and Griffin, distance men; Osian and Witte, pole vaulters; and Fleming, Potts, and Andrews, entrees in the jumps. Student manager Robert Dubois will accompany these men.

"Timber" Trumble, junior A. A. U. high hurdle champion and star sophomore barrier man, will compete in his first varsity competition, when he wears the Cornhusker colors in the hurdle events in the meet.

Overcoats of Single Breast Style Favored

New York City, March 8.—(By Fairchild News Service)—The single breasted box overcoat, a garment familiar to most college men, is preferred by more than half the students of midwestern universities, according to a survey recently made for the Daily News Record, only daily paper in the world devoted to the men's wear industry.

Figures compiled by style observers engaged in the survey showed that 55 per cent of the students wore this type of coat. Of these 85 per cent favored lengths from 49 to 50 inches, while 15 per cent wore coats extending only 46 to 47 inches in length. Twenty-two per cent of the students observed wore double-breasted ulsters, 6 per cent the dark single-breasted Chesterfield model with velvet collar, 2 per cent the double-breasted Chesterfield, 8 per cent had coonskin ulsters, and 7 per cent wore coats of black dog or pony fur.

Corduroy Is Favorite
Short jackets favored by these university men were mostly corduroy, either with self or sheepskin collars, but of the men wearing short jackets, 25 per cent favored the canvas model, with sheepskin collar.

Examinations of the statistics gathered showed that there is a marked tendency toward the shorter coat among students at these universities, which included the Big Ten institutions. By this is meant a coat 46 to 47 inches in length.

In many cases well-dressed students of the type who set styles for their associates were observed to favor softer-finished, or fleece fabrics for their overcoats. During the past season, most of the college men preferred hard finish fabrics, so that during the coming spring and winter of 1928-29 the fashion may swing with some definiteness toward the softer fabrics.

Velvet Collars are Good
A third trend observed by the style observers who looked over the midwestern situation was in the direction of the velvet-collared Chesterfield coat which has already established itself firmly in the east.

The two tendencies already well marked and noticed, those toward softer fabrics and toward shorter coats will of course conflict on one item which seems bound to become popular with students in all parts of the country—namely, the tan camel's hair polo coat. This double-breasted garment is made of soft and wooly fabric, but is worn rather long, regardless.

Professor Says Youth Of Today Not Godless

Princeton, N. J.—(IP)—"I do not believe the youth of today is Godless; I believe that they are nearer the truth about religion than we of the older generation are," said Dr. Clarence Cook Little, President of the University of Michigan at the gathering of college presidents here recently to consider undergraduate religion.

"There is little difference between dogmatists," he said, "whether they are found in the laboratory or the pulpit of a too-highly organized church. The younger generation is discerning enough to recognize this fact."

Alumnae of Society Give Entertainment

The faculty alumnae members of Phi Upsilon Omicron entertained the active members at a dinner given at the Woodburn, the home of Mrs. R. C. Grubb.

Plans for the work of the active chapter were discussed. Some of the alumnae members who were present were: Jean Jeary, now teaching in Seward; Thora Baer of the Lincoln

General Hospital, Betty Bosserman, assistant manager of the Agricultural College Cafeteria, Lillian Curvey, graduate student at the College of Agriculture, and Elizabeth Ramsey.

Adolph Will Speak to Church College Group

Dr. William H. Adolph, of the department of chemistry, will deliver an address, March 24, at Fremont before the Nebraska Church College association, meeting at Midland College. His topic will be: "Improvements in the Teaching of College Classes in Chemistry."

The University of Wisconsin student paper has profited enough to buy its own printing plant.
