Simpson Receives Degree
Miss Dorothy Simpson, head of the dancing activities of the department of physical education for women during the two years preceding this one, will receive her Masters degree from the University of Wisconsin in June and next year will have charge of dancing in the Boston School of Physical Education.

High Schools Will Vie In Ag Judging Contest

Representatives from Forty Schools Will Compete in College of Agriculture Event

Nebraska high school boys from about forty schools will be entered in the eleven events at the annual contests to be held at the College of Agriculture, Thursday and Friday.

Awards will be given for excellence in dairy, poultry and grain judging; skill in carpentry; forge work; egg grading; milk scoring; Babcock testing; and grain grading. The only exhibit of products will be the egg show.

Banquet Is Planned

A banquet for the visiting high school students will be given Friday evening, at 6 o'clock in the Student Activities building. Chancellor Burnett, Dean Burr of the College of Agriculture, and Lynn Cox of the student body will give short talks. Entertainment will be provided, after which the winners in all contests will be announced and prizes awarded.

Farmers' Fair Follies Will Be Presented by Home Economics Girls

The Follies this year is expected to be one of the leading attractions at the annual Farmers' Fair Saturday, May 5. Large crowds attended every performance of the Follies previous years.

The players consist of home economics girls who supply entertainment for part of the afternoon, and evening. Their work this year is supervised by the chairman of the Follies committee, Marion Lowe.

The program of this year's Follies will consist of dancing portraying a ship, with all of the sailors. They will present a sailor dance, also a Negro sailor dance. The Follies show will begin at three o'clock and continue until six o'clock and, then will begin again at seven o'clock.

TRI F CLUB ENTERTAINS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The recently organized Tri F club of the home economics department whose purpose is to stimulate enthusiasm and pep for the College of Agriculture, appeared before the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Lincoln on Tuesday noon. The club members, numbering 13, appeared in full costume and presented their "Farmers' Fair Brigade" skit.

The Tri F club is made up of thirteen girls, three being chosen from each of the four classes, and one pianist. In this, their fourth appearance, the girls were very successful in putting in a good word for the Farmers' Fair which is to be held on the Ag Campus on Saturday, May fifth.

DELEGATES RETURN FROM CONVENTION

Omicron Nu Holds Annual Conclave at Lawrence; Elects New National Officers

Four Nebraska delegates have returned from Lawrence, Kansas, where they attended the ninth annual conclave of Omicron Nu, honorary home economics society. The Conclave opened on Thursday noon when Chancellor E. H. Lindley of the University of Kansas delivered the welcome address at the opening of the business session of the council. On Thursday evening, the University of Kansas held a reception for delegates in the Spooner-Thayer museum.

A banquet was held Friday evening. Speakers for the occasion were E. H. S. Bailey, professor in the department of chemistry, who spoke on the subject, "Home Economics; A Demand Supplied," and John Lise, professor of economics whose topic was "The Home as an Economic Institution." On Saturday afternoon, the voting delegates were guests of Iowa active and alumnae chapters, University of Kansas, at the Kansas Relays.

National Officers Retire

Retiring national officers of Omicron Nu are: grand president—Professor Margaret Fedde; vice-president—Dr. Sybil Woodruff of Lawrence, Kansas who is also grand president of Iota Sigma Phi; secretary—Cora Miller of Ames, Iowa; treasurer—Edith Gamble of Purdue University, Indiana; editor—Marion Van Liew of Albany, New York.

The newly elected officers are: grand president—Dr. Hargaret Justin of Manhattan, Kansas; vice-president—Professor Margaret Fedde, head of the University of Nebraska department of home economics; secretary—Dean Florence Harrison, Coleman, Washington; treasurer—Miss Grace Denny, Seattle, Washington; editor—Miss Amie Rextrew, of New Jersey. Miss Denny is the only retiring officer who was reelected to a new office. Miss Denny is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and is now at the University of Seattle.

In closing the conclave, it was declared to hold the next one in the summer of 1930 just previous to that of the American Home Economics Association. Every one of the twenty-three active and five alumnae chapters were represented with at least one delegate, and some by two or more. Many of the delegates present who had attended several conventions, reported that this was the best that has ever been held.

Miss Vera Barger Is Visitor to University

Graduate of Department of Physical Education Has Been Doing Work in China

Miss Vera Barger, a graduate of the University of Nebraska, who has been doing physical education work in China for several years, stopped at the University Tuesday on her way back to Cleveland after attending the national convention of the Y. W. C. A. in California.

Before the war Miss Barger was a district secretary in the physical education department of the Y. W. C. A. and travelled continually in the United States. For several years Miss Barger was head of the physical education work in China and her efforts have been supported by the Grace Coppock drive which is conducted annually by the local Y. W. C. A.

Lieutenant Stevens Makes Lincoln Visit

Authority on Airplane Carriers is Nebraska Graduate; He Returns From Pacific Coast

Lieut. Com. Leslie C. Stevens of the U. S. Navy, who stopped in Lincoln Monday on his way to Washington, is a former Nebraska student, having graduated in 1917. Lieutenant Stevens is returning from a trip to the Pacific coast, where he had flown a new amphibian airplane for the carrier ship Saratoga.

Lieutenant Stevens stopped in Lincoln to visit his two sisters, who live in University Place. He left Lincoln by airplane early Tuesday morning for the east, where he expects to be stationed for several years. He is with the bureau of aeronautics of the navy department.

Following his attendance at the University of Nebraska Lieutenant Stevens went to the naval academy at Annapolis, where he was graduated in 1919. He has been with the U. S. Navy since then, being regarded as a leading authority on the new airplane carriers that are rapidly coming into use.

Engineering Students Build Turning Lathes

Engineers Design and Construct Seven Lathes; Will Exhibit Them Engineers' Week

The department of Mechanical Engineering is completing seven lathes which will be placed on exhibition during Engineer's Week, April 30 to May 5. These lathes, which are of a cone drive type, were entirely designed and constructed by students in the mechanical engineering department this year.

The lathes are as perfect as the students can make them. They are complete with a countershaft and equipped with interchangeable accessories including different sized tool rests, face plates and tool slides.

The lathes were built to illustrate the interchangeable manufacture of machine parts. They are light and especially suited for high schools requiring equipment of this type.
