

ADET OFFICERS REHEARSE GRAND MARCH FOR BALL

(Continued from Page 1.) Ceremonies in connection with the presentation of the honorary colonel, will start from the south end of the floor of the ballroom and continue until a column of couples abreast will march to the north end of the floor and halt in front of the stage.

The honorary colonel, whose identity will be kept secret until the time of her presentation at the ball Friday night, will be revealed in a manner also kept secret until that time.

Kassel Plays for Event. Music for the grand march as well as for the entire evening will be played by Art Kassel and his Kassel in the Air, a feature attraction of the Music Corporation of America.

This orchestra, which has been featured for a number of years on various chain radio broadcasts, has played at several popular eastern and middlewestern ballrooms, one of the most recent being a lengthy engagement at the Bismarck hotel in Chicago, where it broadcast thru local and national radio systems.

An imposing and distinguished list of patrons and patronesses has Belgium, was published in 1585. Mercator planned to unite in one volume his various detailed maps so as to form a general description of the globe. In 1587 and 1590 several other countries were added to this map.

Mercator is known as the inventor of a projection, named after him, on which meridians and parallels of latitude cut each other at right angles and are both represented by straight lines. This method has the effect of elongating the degrees of latitude as they recede from the equator.

The winner of the contest will have his name engraved on the Long trophy awarded annually to the best freshman debater by E. H. "Red" Long of the College book store, the donor of the cup.

The judges of the contest will be selected from among the varsity debaters of past years who are located in Lincoln. Their names will not be made public until the night of the debate.

Each man will be allowed one speech of eight minutes to be divided as to rebuttal and constructive speaking as they see fit.

competition for the trophy which has been won in past years by Lloyd Pospisil, Hugh Grey, Woodrow Magee, Beverly A. Finkle, Jr., and I. Irving Hill.

Coach Comments. "The quality of work done by these debaters is very high," according to Professor White, "as most of them are experienced high school speakers. The purpose of the contest which is sponsored by Delta Sigma Rho, honorary forensic society, is to train debaters who are unable to compete in varsity debating because of their first year standing and to hold their interest in the activity until they are able to represent the school in intercollegiate activity."

EMPLOYMENT SURVEY REVEALS THAT LINCOLN APPROACHES PROSPERITY AT SLOWER PACE THAN AVERAGE CITY.

(Continued from Page 1.) self-employed full time added that they had not earned a decent living for three years. An increasing number of unemployed persons couldn't give an industrial or occupational classification. Many persons who have been unemployed for a long time have become completely dissociated from industry.

Approximately 8 percent of those unemployed, but able and willing to work, are college graduates who have not been able to find jobs since leaving school.

A comparison of figures compiled in last year's survey and those of this year reveal the following employment status:

Table with 2 columns: Employment status and percentage. Includes categories like 'Employed full time', 'Unemployed part time', etc.

The reason for the slow progress being made in employment in Lincoln was stated to be the fact that Lincoln is less industrial in character than most cities, and consequently it takes somewhat longer to recover, for the same reason that it resists depression unemployment longer.

A comparison of the statistics for the two years reveals the fact that in 1932, 60 percent of the unemployed had been idle one year or more. In 1933 it was 70 percent.
