HISTORY TEACHERS OPEN CONVENTION

Dr. Isaac J. Cox, Chairman of Northwestern University History Department, Scheduled as Chief Speaker Throughout Assembly.

LECTURER TALKS AT UNIVERSITY ASSEMBLY

Other Features Are Oldfather Talk, Forum Breakfast At University Club Saturday With Dr. Sellers As Presiding Officer.

History teachers from colleges and high schools throughout the state are gathering on the campus this morning for their twenty-second annual convention which will continue through Saturday. Dr. Isaac J. Cox, who is highly praised by Dean Oldfather, and is chairman of the Northwestern history department will be the principal speaker throughout the convention.

Dr. C. H. Oldfather, chairman of the university history department, in commenting upon the convention, stated, "Dr. Cox is an unusually able man, and we are indeed fortunate to have him address the convention. He is a specialist in American history and an authority on relations between the United States and her southern neighbors."

Dr. Oldfather stressed the fact that the meetings are open to the public and laid particular emphasis on the banquet Friday evening at the University club at which Dr. Cox will speak on "Impressions of Poland." Reservations may be made in Dr. Oldfather's office.

Dr. Cox will also address a university convocation this morning at 11 o'clock in the Temple theater on the subject "Cuba, Colony or Colleague," at which Dr. F. M. Flinn, university professor of European history will preside. At (Continued on Page 4.)

ANNOUNCEMENTS ARE PLACED ON DISPLAY

Seniors May Take Choice Of Three Different Samples.

Senior class announcements are placed on sale at Long's bookstore and the Co-op bookstore this week, according to Lee Young, president of the senior class.

A list of about 800 graduating seniors has been prepared at the registrar's office, and the names will be listed alphabetically in the announcements. A list of the graduate students receiving degrees will be prepared in about a week.

The Balfour Company has completed samples of three different grades of which the seniors may take their choice. Orders may be placed immediately after the samples are placed on display.

TODAY'S NEWS Briefly Reviewed

After an absence of some seven months from the United States, Samuel Insull was started back home Thursday night to Chicago from Istanbul, Turkey. The famous utilities magnate, when he returns home will be arrested immediately, authorities stated, and then will soon face trial on charges of mail fraud and bankruptcy violations. Insull protested loudly, failed in an attempt at staying extradition, and is now on his way home on the steamer "Eklona."

Concerning the airmail situation which has occupied much of Washington's time of late, William I. Denning, Washington attorney, told the senate airmail committee that postoffice department officials hinted to him last fall that some change would be recommended in airmail rules to give independent companies a chance to obtain contracts.

Maj. C. R. Oldberg, hydraulic engineer for Washington PWA office, stated Thursday that the Columbus, Neb., power canal project is excellent from an engineering standpoint. Previously several other PWA officials have remarked as to the practicability of plans for the $7,200,000 Columbus-Genoa hydro-electric development.

England received a reply Thursday from Germany that 13 year old increased expenditures of the Nazi government on the army, navy, and aviation forces, England has been showing much concern over these added costs in the Hitler government of late, and recently requested its ambassador in Berlin to investigate. The Germans were reported to have explained that the higher costs came about because of increasing cost of maintaining the present forces, that it is costly to change from a long term army to a short term one, and that aviation appropriations were for anti-air-craft defenses.

Following recommendation by a coroner's jury that 13 year old George Rogalski be held for murder, prosecutors announced their intention of sending the boy to the electric chair in payment for the slaying of 2 year old Dorette Zeidler, whom he abducted several days ago. The child who disappeared from home Sunday, was discovered Tuesday in an abandoned livery stable suffering from exposure. Rogalski stated he didn't know why he entered the girl's way.

AWES CANDIDATES APPEAR AT MASS MEETING FRIDAY

Additional Nominations May Be Made from Floor In Noon Session.

ELECT BOARD MONDAY

Six Senior, Four Sophomore, Four Junior Members Will Be Chosen.

Candidates for offices on the A. W. S. board will be presented and additional nominations will be made from the floor for senior, junior and sophomore members, at a general mass meeting for all women this noon in Ellen Smith Hall. Two names from each class will be selected and placed on the ballot.

To be a member of the board, which is the women's governing body on the campus, a girl must have an 80 average, meet other eligibility requirements made by the university, and must not be overpolled if elected to an office. The person nominating a girl from the floor must vouch for her eligibility.

All Women May Vote. Voting is open to all woman students, and will take place Monday from 9 until 5 o'clock at Ellen Smith Hall. Six of the senior, four of the junior, and four of the sophomore candidates on the ballot will be chosen to membership on the board.

Candidates for president are Callista Cooper, Humboldt, and Marian Smith, Omaha. The senior receiving the largest number of votes becomes vice-president, the junior receiving the largest number, secretary, and the sophomore receiving the largest number, treasurer. These officers and the senior members comprise the A. W. S. court.

Honorable Arthur J. Weaver, former governor of the state of Nebraska, yesterday accepted the invitation of the interfraternity banquet committee to deliver the main address at the interfraternity banquet Tuesday evening, April 17, at the Hotel Cornhusker.

Mr. Weaver is undoubtedly one of the most forceful speakers in the state. That is the characterization given Mr. Weaver's speaker by Prof. E. F. Schramm, faculty advisor of the interfraternity council. Along with the address of the former governor, Mr. Claude S. Wilson, president of the interfraternity board of control, will speak and Ray Ramsey will preside as toastmaster. Negotiations between the banquet committee and another prominent speaker are not yet completed.

A new feature on the banquet program this year is the awarding of inter-mural plaques to the winning fraternities. With the exception of golf and tennis all inter-mural contests will have been completed and individual plaques are to be awarded to the winning fraternities in each event. Fifteen scholarship awards will also be granted to the highest ranking houses. Music by Eddie Jungbluth and his orchestra throughout the evening completes the program.

Tickets are not being sold this year by interfraternity council members as has been done in past years. They will soon be on sale at the Tasty Pastry Shop of the Hotel Cornhusker or they may be purchased at the door on the night of the banquet.

PLAN INSTALLATION PHALANX SATURDAY

National Adjutant Coming To Establish Chapter Military Club.

Installation Saturday by George Krusch, national adjutant of Phalanx, will complete negotiations carried on by a group of interested students desiring that a chapter of the national advanced military honorary be established at Nebraska. Colonel W. H. Oury, commandant of cadets, and Major John W. Crissy, military instructor, will be taken into the organization.

Cadet Colonel John Leary, officer in the Creighton chapter of the honorary, will assist Krusch at the initiation of the first group. Other members of the Creighton chapter may also be in attendance, it was stated.

Krusch is an officer at the national headquarters of the fraternity established at the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis. Names of the prospective undergraduate initiates will not be released until after the ceremony. Officers of the organization of students who petitioned the national office are Leo Hill, commander; Henry Keller, lieutenant-commander; Charles Steadman, historian and Tom Naughtin, finance officer.

Watch Your Step Today, It's Friday 13th and Unlucky

Watch your step today, you superstitious people, it's Friday the thirteenth! Friday is an unlucky day, but when it falls on the thirteenth—

The old superstition that thirteen is an unlucky number is said to have originated in Scotland where thirteen pence was the fee paid to the hangman at executions. The fee was called "hangman's money."

The superstition about thirteen is also said to have been derived from the last supper, as Christ and His twelve disciples were seated at the table and today many believe it is unlucky to have thirteen at a dinner party.

Medieval astrologers fixed Friday as an unlucky day, the hours between 10 a. m. and noon being the most unlucky. The superstition about Friday can be traced to the Christian church in early times, as it was on Friday that Christ was crucified.

These strange beliefs have been carried down to us today and many people refuse to start business ventures or trips on Friday the thirteenth. However, college professors still continue to give exams on this day!

SPECIAL 'PETER PAN' PRESENTATION FRIDAY

Children's Theater Utilizes Novel Stage Effects In Production.

LAST PLAY OF SEASON

With a special presentation scheduled for Friday night in addition to the regular Saturday showings, "Peter Pan," will be given by the children's theater at the Temple under the auspices of Lincoln junior league. Special permission for use of the play had to be obtained from the author, James M. Barrie.

Miss Alice Howell, chairman of the speech and dramatic department, tried for over ten years to secure permission to give Peter Pan, and only recently, by writing directly to Mr. Barrie, was she granted it. The author considers it especially essential that the part of Peter Pan be played by someone who has had a great deal of experience as a talent.

Miss Gellatly Plays Lead. For many years, he permitted no one but Maude Adams to play the part. Before permission was granted to give the play here, therefore, the author named Miss Gellatly as best suited for the part.

The staging of the play is done by elaborate devices. In one scene Peter Pan will actually fly across the stage. This feat is to be accomplished by a device made out of piano wires. Four people are necessary to manipulate them and to guide Peter Pan in his flight. In another scene, Peter Pan remains suspended in midair after a barrel which he is sitting on has been kicked from under him. This effect also is obtained by means of invisible wires.

Use Double Stage. The Never Land, a fanciful underground land, where only little boys were supposed to go, is one of the most interesting scenes of the entire play. Through the use of double stage, the audience will be able to see both the top part of the home and the underground part at the same time. How the lost boys make their entrance to the Never Land thru trees will also be shown.

The household of Mr. and Mrs. Darling and their three children is, in all respects but one, very usual, and commonplace. The one oddity, as all those who remember who have read the story, is the children's nurse, who instead of being a human being is a great loyal Newfoundland dog. The part of this nurse dog, Na Na, is to be played by Mary Kay Throop.

Captain Hook, a terror to the surrounding country because he has a hook in place of an arm, will (Continued on Page 4.)

Speaker for Greek Banquet University Graduate in 1895

Everyone is familiar with Ex-Governor Weaver as an erstwhile executive of the state of Nebraska, but it is not generally known that he is a graduate of the university. Weaver, who is to be one of the main speakers at the interfraternity banquet next Tuesday evening was a member of the graduating class of 1895 and holds both BA and LLB degrees from the university. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Students at the time of Weaver's graduation who are now prominent in Lincoln business concerns recall that the class of '95 contained several other now prominent people. Willa Cather, noted novelist and Edward Charles Elliott, president of Purdue university, were both classmates of Mr. Weaver. C. C. Engberg, former university dean of men was also in the class, and Secretary of War Dern, while not in the graduating class, was attending Nebraska at the time of Weaver's graduation.

Subsequent to his graduation from the university college of law in 1896, Mr. Weaver was admitted to the Nebraska bar during the same year. He was prominent in business and political circles and was the director of the Omaha branch of the Federal Reserve bank of Kansas City at the time of his election to the ascendant position of governor of Nebraska from 1929 to 1931.

LIBRARY APPLICANTS MUST FILE BY FRIDAY

Competitive Examination To Be Conducted Saturday.

All applications for three vacant positions on the library staff must be filed by tomorrow, according to Gilbert H. Doane, head librarian. Over twenty-five applications have been received already for the three positions left vacant by graduation of students. Selection of candidates will take place at a competitive examination to be held on Saturday, April 28.

The positions open to applicants consist of paging and stacking work, and due to the time needed applicants will find it desirable to be registered in not more than twelve hours. Women employees are required to work thirty hours a week, while men are paid by the hour.

The examinations to determine the successful candidates will test the receptivity to knowledge of the applicant, rather than the acquired knowledge, according to Mr. Doane. Questions on current newspaper topics, literature, and accuracy tests will be included in the examination.

SELECT INNOCENTS NOMINEES TUESDAY

Male Senior Honorary Sponsors Election to Determine Twenty-Five Candidates Eligible for Society; Will Publish Results of Poll.

FACULTY COMMITTEE SUPERVISES VOTE COUNT

Men of Junior Standing or Above May Cast Ballots For Five Favorites; 'New Deal' Provides Appeals in Case of Injustices.

Nomination of the twenty-five juniors eligible for consideration for membership in the Innocents society, senior men's honorary, will be held at the general election next Tuesday, according to word released yesterday afternoon by Byron Goulding, president of the group.

This election, at which all men students of junior standing or above will be entitled to vote, is part of the "new deal" announced Wednesday's reorganization of the society.

The plan as drawn up by the committee composed of representatives of the Innocents and of the "insurgent" group calls for the election to determine the men from whom the outgoing society shall select its membership for the coming year. Results of the election will be published as soon as possible after voting is completed.

Vote for Five Men. Each male student of junior standing or above will be entitled to vote for the five men in the junior class he believes to be outstanding in the field of activities and general student leadership. A list of all junior men will be posted at the polls for general use.

The polls for general use will be in the Temple building and will be open from nine in the morning until five in the evening. A faculty (Continued on Page 2.)

CORN COB DANCE SET FOR FRIDAY EVENING

Annual Affair Scheduled To Start at 7 in Cornhusker.

The annual Corn Cob dinner dance, sponsored by the men's pep organization, will be held at the Cornhusker hotel this evening at seven o'clock, according to Henry Kosman, president of the group. Seventy couples are expected to attend the dinner, which is limited to active members.

Members of Mortar Boards and Innocents have been invited to attend the dance, as well as last year's members of the organization. Chaperons for the affair will be Prof. and Mrs. Karl Arnold, Ray Dein, and Professor and Mrs. Orin Stepanek.

STUDENTS AT BERE A EARN OWN WAY THRU COLLEGE-REINHARDT

One hundred percent of the students are earning all or part of their way thru Berea college," said Dr. Reinhardt, associate professor of sociology of his Alma mater. He returned Sunday from a trip to Berea where he delivered a convocation lecture on sociological questions.

"The students seem to be more interested in social problems than students in most colleges," he said. "The fact that they have been subjected to more rapid changes in mode of living probably accounts for it. Until the last ten or fifteen years they have been in an isolated and backward part of the country and consequently are more keen to know what is taking place in other parts of the country and the causes for the changes."

Thirteen years ago Dr. Reinhardt graduated from Berea college and to the close observer the quality of his voice and the pronunciation of a few words still betray the influence of his early life in Kentucky.

There are many unique features of this small college besides the fact that every student is earning his way. Ninety-four percent of the student body is selected from schools in the Appalachian mountains in nine states. Each year about 200 vacancies are filled from 2,000 applicants all of whom are unable to pay their way thru any school. The students are provided work by the school either in the college or on the farm operated by the college or in the town.

"The fireside industries provide work for about 10 percent of the students; and the carving and other handwork done by the students in Berea is as fine as any work that I have seen anywhere," he added a bit proudly. "The music department and the fireside industries are the two outstanding features of this small school."

He said that the school is an endowment school which operates without aid from the state. The products from the farm and the carvings and other handwork are sold to help pay the expenses of the school.

While he was gone Dr. Reinhardt spoke in Louisville and in the university in Washington, D. C. on social problems as "The Effect of Unemployment on Personality."
