A New Guessing Game.

TODAY is inaugurated on the campus a new guessing game. It has been named "Where is the Student Council." In case someone can't recall just what that body is, it is supposed to be the student governing body with power over student activities, subject to approval of the faculty committee on student affairs.

But this campus seems to be exception to the usual run, for it has been functioning for quite some time without benefit of government. Committee after committee has been appointed, but in some mysterious way these groups have disappeared. If they are still existent, there are a few who would like to know about it. Hence, the new game.

There are a few members of the council this year who have honestly tried to perform the functions for which they were elected. But these honest efforts have been choked and smothered by the traditional lethargy of council members who seem to feel that their sole duty, once elected, is to sit in meeting and vote. Some do not even bestir themselves to come to the regular meetings.

Several worthy projects have been suggested by and to the council this year, but as yet no apparent action has been taken. In some cases committees appointed to take charge of these projects have supposedly been at work most of the year. One third of the second semester has gone by and still no report.

SUCH a situation has become almost traditional on this campus, but as yet no effective remedy for it has been discovered. Last year an attack was launched on the council, but except for a momentary stirring of the group, nothing came of it. The council slipped back into inactivity, to remain that way this year.

Most of the criticism at that time centered around the system by which members are elected. An attempt was made to work out a new method of representation, as was an attempt to eliminate politics from the elections, but nothing tangible resulted. The inactivity and uninterest of members was ascribed mainly to these two factors.

Despite failure of these projects, there is still hope that personal interest in the welfare of the campus will rescue the council from the slough of inactivity. If members will realize that a position on the council entails a duty to the campus, not a political stepping stone, something might be accomplished.

Only twelve weeks are left in the present semester and there are still in the hands of investigating committees several projects which require immediate attention if this year's council is to write anything worthy of note into the record book. It is suggested that committee members stop reporting something besides progress.

The Opening Gun.

The second open skirmish in the campaign to establish an organization of the senior class will take place this afternoon at a meeting scheduled by the senior committee. Called to the meeting are all organized house presidents, to whom will be outlined the immediate plan of attack.

For the past week the committee on organization has been meeting almost daily, in an attempt to have something tangible to lay before the student body. The need for haste is paramount if the groundwork for organization is to be laid this spring. While perfection of the plan cannot be attained this year, there must be left a structure upon which the next class can build.

Leaders of barb houses as well as Greek groups have received invitations to the session, for the organization must be and will be formed along non-political lines. Unaffiliated students must stand shoulder to shoulder with affiliated members of the student body.

One of the major obstacles in the path of organization seemed to be overcome this week as administrative officials unanimously gave their consent to the first move in the program, the nature of which is to be divulged at this afternoon's meeting.

Thus, the committee now has the backing of the administration, as well as the alumni association, in its campaign to build a senior class organization, eventually leading to a potent alumni group. All that is needed is student support. A 100 percent attendance at the meeting of presidents will give indication of that backing.

Journal Faces Libel Charges In Blower Student Law Case

Bigger and better law suits! More and greater defendants! These slogans seem to be the battle cries of the law firm of Rosenblatt and Easterday, attorneys for the plaintiff, Congressman H. Ayre Blower, in the mock libel case now being conducted by the senior laws. They were not content with the twenty-four defendants which they had recently named, for they filed claims Wednesday against the Nebraska State Journal Printing company as having aided and abetted in the publishing and printing of the alleged libelous article.

The action, however, has not been completely confined to the Blower barristers. The firm of Gillespie and Akin, defendant representatives, filed a claim for special appearance, which is an objection to the jurisdiction of the court over the case at hand on the grounds that the suit is an attempt to place the liability on the state

CHANTS BY CHANCE.

The night of the Chicago Grand Opera company's performance was a gala one for university students. One of the unusual opportunities seldom experienced was the thrill of "souping," which three of the fellows did. Dick Schmidt, Delta Upsilon, was the nattily dressed "Judge" in "Tosca." Bernard Jennings, Chi Phi, and Harry West, recent candidate for the Rhodes scholarship, were two spies, also in "Tosca."

Evidently the fellows enjoyed the affair, for among the Sigma Nus seen promenading between acts were Irwin Ryan, Arthur Smith and Ted Bradley. Some of the Alpha Phis who were seen entering the coliseum before the curtain were Bonnie Bishop, Helen MacMoines, Helen Lutgen, Ruth Rutledge, Ruth Nelson, Elaine Shonka, Margaret Collins and Sarah Louise Meyer.

One of the more fortunate ladies who attended was Mrs. Jessie Angle, the popular A O Pi house mother. Charming in a blue velvet gown and white fur coat, the former Chicagoan was escorted by two of the prominent campus men, Freddie Nicholas, Sigma Nu, and Bill Crabb, Chi Phi. Another beautifully dressed young lady was Ruth Ludwig, the Tri Delta, who graced the front row in a black satin gown and white fur wrap.

Molly Carpenter and Jane Van Sickle, two popular Thetas were seemingly enjoying the event. Of course, it should be mentioned that Dan Blanchard, the Phi Gam, acquired Miss Van Sickle. Several of the other Thetas seen were Bobbie Smith, Marylu Glover, Mary Helen Davis, Jane Cleary and the house mother, Mrs. Myra Cox.

Among the Delta Gammas seen at intermission were Margaret Higgins, Barbara Harrison, Libby Reimers, who came down from Grand Island, Marion Sherwood, Alice Beekman, Martha Watson and Jean Arnold. Betas who attended were Jim Batley, Ross Alexander, Bill Carns, Paul Richardson and Vernon Meyers.

Pi Beta Phis who were seen (along with Bill Deacon) were Callista Cooper, Max Clizodt, Veronica Villave, and the Pi Phi house mother, Mrs. Pearl Petermichael. Of course, since one of the stars of the evening, Joseph Bentonelli, is a Pi K A, practically the entire chapter attended. Donna Lee and Sid Baker were there, as was Irving Hill and Vernon Shoemaker.

Ellen Daly, the Alpha Phi, was there with Jack Moore, the Phi Delta. As Jack knew Joseph Bentonelli personally, those two traipsed backstage afterward and had a little chat with him. That's one reason why Ellen hasn't been the same since. It seemed rather good to see the football team support an affair of this kind as wholeheartedly as they did, but then, perhaps they believe in reciprocity. They are supported during their season, so they turned out on passes for this event.

Delta U's who showed up were Hugh Schmidt, Chuck Bursik, Maury Johnson, George Gray, Jimmy Harris, Smith Davis, Weldon Kees and Willis Stork with his Alpha Phi fiancée, Helen Baldwin. Fred Murray seemed to enjoy it, even to getting into an argument with his room-mate over whether or not "Mestisophotes" was a baritone or a basso. Maynard Miller, the Beta, was there with Jane Carr, Marian Smith, the Delta Gam and Don Shurtliff, the A. T. O., went with Miss Piper and Dean Heppner. Rumor says the Phi Gammas were there en masse, as were so many others, but at least we've told you of a few who turned out for the brilliant event.

CONSUMERS' COUNCIL HAS INSTITUTE FRIDAY

Group Invites Public to Hear Series of Talks and Discussions.

The Lancaster county consumers' council, a division of the national emergency council, NRA, will hold its first institute Friday, March 15, at the Girl Reserves room of the Y. W. C. A. from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. The purpose of the meeting is to acquaint the public with the work of the councils and to demonstrate how the government, the retailer and the consumer may co-operate and assist each other.

The program will consist of a series of talks and discussions on the problems of the consumer and has been arranged as follows:

- 10 a. m., county consumers' councils, by John P. Senning.
  - 10:45 a. m., Before You Buy Your Spring Silks, Miss Grace Morton.
  - 10:45 a. m., Let Us Take The Mystery Out of Canned Foods, Miss Rebecca Gibbons.
  - 11:45 a. m., Retailers Co-operation, Miss Marie Weenser.
  - 12 a. m., Taxation Problems Before the 1935 Legislature, Hon. Marion J. Cushing.
  - 1:30 p. m., The Consumer Looks at Advertising, Prof. F. C. Blood.
  - 2 p. m., Consumer Buying Problems, panel discussion.
  - 3 p. m., The Place of The Consumers' Council in the Community, Mr. Homer Kyle.
- University students are invited to attend.

Grover Says Speed Jacobsen Fastest Starter He's Seen

Jack Grover, veteran track starter, handed Harold "Speed" Jacobsen a great big bouquet after the indoor meet. Grover said that the Husker speedy one was the fastest man in the first ten yards that he ever set off. Evidence—he led the entire field by two yards after they had gone fifteen in the 60 dash. That's fast stepping for any man. But what's more surprising is that last year Speed was always among those left at the pole when the gun echoed. He depended upon a terrific spurt to the tape to win. Hours of hard work, supervised by the ever-vigilant Schulte account for the difference—hours of crouching, starting, breezing speedily over twenty yards over and over again. It started last spring, continued all summer, and was begun again this fall, until now Jacobsen ranks A-1 on the dash start.

Personnel Director Gives Women Advice On How to Succeed

(By Associated Collegiate Press.) ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—A new formula for success for women graduates of the colleges and universities in the United States was advanced here recently by Miss Jean L. Shepard, a New York personnel director.

And the reason most college women find it difficult to obtain jobs after graduation is because they neglect style consciousness for intellectual pursuits, she said. "To succeed in business," she advised, "the average college girl must give more attention to her appearance, and that means more than being well dressed. In sweater and skirt, the college girls look attractive on the campus, but I am shocked to see how lacking these same girls are in smartness and chic when they come to New York."

JUNE GOETHE, ALFRED REIDER GIVE PROGRAM

Students to Present Piano, Voice Junior Recital Thursday.

Presenting their joint recital in the Temple theater at 4 o'clock Thursday, March 14, will be Miss June Goethe and Alfred Reider. Miss Goethe is a student in the class of Emanuel Wishnow, and Reider studies with William G. Temple.

The two will alternate in presenting the program which will be opened with "Scotch Fantasy" with "Introduzione: Grave," "Adagio cantabile" and "Allegro guerriero" by Bruch, played by Miss Goethe.

Reider will sing as his first two numbers, "Honor and Arms," from "Samson" by Handel, and "It Is Enough," from "Elijah" by Mendelssohn. Bohm's "Cavatina" and "Short Story" by Gershwin will be the next selections played by Miss Goethe.

"Ferne, Op. 9, No. 9" by Mendelssohn, "Die Beiden Grenadiere, Op. 49, No. 1," by Schumann, and "Dio Possente," from "Faust" by Gounod will be the next selection sung by Mr. Reider. Miss Goethe will conclude the program with "Scherzo Tarantelle" by Wienawski.

VIOLET VAUGHN GIVES MUSIC CONVOCATION

Herbert Schmidt Student Presents Recital Wednesday.

Violet Vaughn, presented her senior recital in the Temple theater at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. She is a student in the class of Herbert Schmidt and presented her recital as the nineteenth musical convocation of the university school of music.

"Pastorale" by Corelli-Godowsky was her first number, followed by "Vienna Carnival-Scene, Op. 26" by Schumann. Included in this selection were the "Allegro," "Romanze," "Scherzino," "Intermezzo," and "Finale" movements. Chopin's well known "Prelude, c sharp minor," Op. 45, was the next selection.

Another of Chopin's pieces, "Polonaise, e flat minor, Op. 26," was the next number, which was followed by "Andaluzza" by De-Falla. As the concluding selection, Miss Vaughn played "Sonatine" with "Moderce," "Menuet," and "Anime" movements by Ravel.

EDITORIAL OBJECTIVES OF '35

The Following Is an Outline by Various College Presidents of the Duties and Objectives of College Newspaper Editors as Compiled by the Associated Collegiate Press.

Link Past and Present.

By Eugene A. Gilmore, President, Uni. of Iowa. I THINK college newspapers should at all times endeavor to maintain continuity between the past and the present. They should be timely, but not timeless. They should earnestly endeavor to avoid being merely contemporaneous. They should seek to give to their readers a dispassionate, discriminating and intelligent understanding of society's accumulated wisdom and experience. The great need today is for a long and deep perspective derived from history and experience, in order that we may have a just appraisal of present values and be able to make such intelligent readjustments as may be necessary for further progress. College newspapers, functioning as they do in an intellectual environment, have unusual opportunities to promote such objectives.

Cooperate With College and Public Officials.

By John J. Tigert, President, University of Florida. The most worthy objective of college newspapers in 1935 should be a continuation of that policy of sympathetic co-operation with our college and public officials.

The problems confronting the nation, almost baffling in their complexity and duration, are testing as never before the intelligence of every American. The responsibility for their successful solution can depend only upon the vision and the wisdom of trained and disciplined minds. In providing solutions no group of people must bear a greater share of this responsibility than the faculties and students of our colleges.

During these critical years the thinking of college people has maintained itself on an even keel. It is highly commendable that we have had in the United States none of the so-called "youth movements" that have come and gone in other countries.

America's young people have exercised their traditional balance and courage; they have sought competent guidance and advice; they have used both their hearts and their heads in making decisions. Our students have appreciated the genuine efforts of college officials to improve the training of those who will be our public officials in the future. The fact is appreciated that our faculties and students need each other and that the nation needs them both. Consequently, a faith born of understanding has drawn faculties and students into a close co-operation in a common cause.

Represent and Influence the Student Body.

By Clarence A. Barbour, President, Brown Uni. I am asked to contribute a short statement for publication in the organ of the Associated Collegiate Press. You ask what should be the editorial objective of college newspapers in 1935. That is not a difficult question to answer in the large, but very difficult, if not impossible, to answer in detail.

In my conception the editorial objective of a college newspaper should be to strengthen and improve the life and work of the college where the paper is published; also to represent and to influence the life of the student body in that college. In the carrying out of this policy I think that it is wise and fair that the editorial representatives of the paper should keep in close contact with the administration of the college, not in subservience to the administration, but realizing the indispensable need of as full an understanding as possible of the objectives, far and near, which the administration is endeavoring to reach. It has not been unknown, even in the very best of the college papers, that had the editors taken the pains to confer with those responsible for the administration of the college some editorials would never have been written, for they have not been in accordance with the facts.

Here at Brown I can testify that the lapses from a wise and sane policy of mutual understanding have been few and far between. I know at first hand some of the very real problems, problems of circulation, of advertising and many more, which the gentlemen of the editorial management have to face. Their task is not an easy one, but for that matter what worth while task is easy?

Preserve Democratic Ideals.

By William Lowe Bryan, President, Indiana Uni. I believe that the editorial objective of college newspapers in 1935 will be and should be determined by the student editors out of their own convictions and interests. If any of them is interested in my view of the matter it is this:

I hope that the college men and women of America will be as earnestly devoted to the preservation of democratic ideals in America as the young people of Russia, Italy and Germany seem devoted to the restoration of the autocratic state.

Strive for Absolute Accuracy.

By Alexander G. Ruthven, President, Uni. of Mich. First and foremost, I think that the college newspapers should strive for absolute accuracy in all statements which they make, either editorially or in the news columns. Particularly this is to be sought when any of the policies of the college or university are the subject. This, as you will see, amounts simply to the idea that the college newspapers should observe throughout the accepted standards of the best journalism.

Urge Faithfulness to College Purposes.

By George H. Denny, President, Uni. of Alabama. It seems to me that one of the editorial objectives of college newspapers in 1935 should lie in the direction of urging students to be more faithful to the main purposes of their college opportunity. In short, I am persuaded that all of us will agree that college men and college women have today a greater incentive to equip themselves adequately for a full and useful life than at any time in the history of our country.

Closely related to the suggestion which has just been made in the duty and responsibility of college students to stress more sharply than ever the social obligations that are imposed by college training. This means, of course, that there must be a more liberal election of the social sciences in their study programs.

Finally, it goes without saying that in the execution of the proposals which I have just outlined there is the supreme duty of keeping an open and unbiased mind in the formulation of underlying principles and procedures.

Education, through its president, Miss Claire L. Bausch of the university staff of physical education, has invited the delegates to visit Lincoln on Saturday afternoon to make a tour of the capital, university and public schools. The funniest thing that the Oxford debating squad saw in the United States, according to one of its members, was "a college newspaper reporter at Emory College." —John Hopkins News-Letter.
