Regents Raise Law Entrance Requirements

Students, Public, Profession to Benefit from New Changes; Require Higher Scholarship, 93 Hours Preliminary Work.

Students, the public and the law profession, are all expected to benefit from the more rigid requirements for entrance into the college of law of the university as approved by the board of regents Saturday. As explained by Dean H. H. Foster, requirements to admission in the law school have been revised in two ways, to become effective Sept. 1, 1937.

First, preliminary college work will not be accepted unless the scholastic average for such work is at least equal to the average required for graduation in the college from which credits are presented. This rule will be enforced at once. The second change will raise the amount of preliminary college work required for admission to the law college after Sept. 1, 1937 from two to three years or from 65 to 93 hours.

Offers Advantages.

In commenting upon the new changes Dean Foster said: "The state of Nebraska does not need more lawyers. During the past ten years the number of lawyers has increased at a rate of five and one-half times that of the increase of the state's population. Over crowding of the bar tends to lower the standards of the profession and is a menace to the public. The need today is for lawyers who are broadly educated and who have received a thorough professional training. This three year requirement is in operation in more than twenty-eight of the best law schools of the country."

"The law college is convinced of the advantages of college education. During the past seven years, while no formal requirement of three years preliminary work existed, more than 63 percent of the first year law students had received such early training. The value of a longer period of academic preparation before entering law is shown by records made here at Nebraska. Out of eighteen cum laude degrees granted during the past four years, seventeen were given to students who had three years of college work before entering the college of law."

More Efficient Work.

"The average of all grades of graduates from the law school who had three years of preliminary training was 4 percent higher than that of those who had only two years of pre-law college work. Records of failures and conditions in the law school also show a direct relation to the amount of preliminary college work taken by the student and also, that those who have had more preliminary training are much more likely to finish the course.

"These new changes will benefit both the public and legal profession, will enable the university's law college to do more efficient work and will place it among the leading law schools of the country."

Law, Engineering Champions Renew Old Fight in Awgwan

Meir Defends Engineers, Landis Lawyers in Two Page Verbal Combat in March Issue on Sale Wednesday.

Law and Engineering college champions renew their age-old feud so often expressed in the form of an exchange of rotten eggs and buckets of paint, in a two page verbal battle in the March issue of the Awgwan as it goes on sale Wednesday. Chief interpreter for the engineers will be Franklin Meier, while in the opposite corner defending the interests of his brother legalists we have Frank Landis. Meier presents his stand in the form of an article entitled "What the Engineers Think of Law Students," while Landis entitles his comment "The Lawyers Say 'Nertz' to the Engineers."

Clayton Contributes "Snoophots." Bill Clayton, Awgwan camera man, makes his contribution to the new edition in the form of a page of "snoophots" showing several of the campus beauties pampering a Scottish terrier. The display is headed "It Would Be a Pleasure to Lead a 'Dog's Life' for These Mistresses."

TO BE 'EMERITUS'

Dr. Charles Fordyce secures a leave of absence until end of present school year. At that time the professor of educational measurements and research in Teachers college will be given emeritus standing. Dr. Fordyce has been on the university staff since 1908. His work in educational measurements has gained for him national recognition. During this time he has been active in university circles.

TEN A.T.O. CHAPTERS AT CONVENTION HERE

National Organization Grand Chief Gives Main Address.

Ten chapters of Alpha Tau Omega participated in the three day convocation held here this week end, which included a tour of the capitol and an informal reception in the governor's suite, several lectures and discussion groups, an address by Sidney E. Fithian, worthy grand chief of the national organization, as well as the story book ball at the Cornhusker Saturday evening.

Saturday afternoon was taken up with panel discussions and a talk on fraternity problems by Harry W. Pitkin of Des Moines, Ia., chief of Province 11. A stage dinner at the chapter house Saturday preceded the ball. Today's program includes the presentation of final committee reports in the morning. Adjournment will be followed by a dinner at the chapter house.

"PECHEUR D'ISLANDE" NEXT FRENCH CINEMA ATTRACTION

"Pecheur d'Islande" will be presented as the third in the series of four French movies to be brought to the Varsity theater March 21, at 10:00 Saturday morning. Miss Augusta Nelson, instructor in the French department and sponsor of the series, is in charge of arrangements.

Tickets for the show are on sale at the Varsity theater and sell for 25 cents each.

Taken from the novel written by Pierre Loti, the picture describes the life and customs of the province of Brittany in northern France, a country well known by the author, who, as a naval officer had visited many foreign countries. The play is famous for Loti's emphasis on moods of sadness and tragedy of death.

Story of Gaos Family.

The story concerns the Gaos family of Breton fishermen who are a part of the fleet which leaves yearly for Iceland. Yann Gaos meets Gaud Mevel whose family comes from Brittany. Tho she had spent most of her youth in the province, she received her education in the city as a result of her

HE GETS LEAVE

Dr. J. E. LeRossignol was granted a leave of absence for the first semester of next year. He is dean of the college of business administration. The board of regents approved the leave of absence at its Saturday meeting. Prof. O. R. Martin was named acting dean.

Regents Grant Absence Leave To Bizad Dean

Martin Named Acting Department Head for First Semester Next Year; Ed Weir Raised To Rank of Instructor.

A first semester change in the deanship of the college of business administration of the University of Nebraska headed the list of resignations, leaves of absence, and new appointments approved by the regents Saturday. Dr. J. E. LeRossignol, dean of the college, was granted leave for the first semester of the next year, and Prof. O. R. Martin, chairman of the department of business organization and management, was named acting dean.

Dean LeRossignol, who is now working on a book on economics, desires access to the libraries at Columbia university and Harvard university. The new acting dean has been on the university staff since 1913.

Johnson Resigns.

The resignation of Dr. P. G. Johnson, associate professor of secondary education, was accepted, effective at the close of the year. Dr. Johnson, is now on leave at Cornell.

Foundation to Raise Funds For Student Union, Chapel

Alumnus Believes Hopes for Additions to Campus Materialized.

Speculation as to the one thing which would make possible a student union building, a great chapel and the realization of other long-hoped for additions to the university has finally materialized according to a graduate, contributing anonymously to the March Alumnus. Both Chancellor Burnett and this loyal Alumnus feel the recently approved University foundation will in years to come, provide all our needs.

Realizing that anything which makes the university more prominent and worthwhile will definitely give degrees more prestige, the author of the article outlines the organization which will inspire alumni to give it their support.

Can Do Many Things.

To solicit, receive, and dispose of money received from alumni and friends of the university is clearly the purpose of the foundation. A board of trustees, and an active office charged with the promotion of the new plan will start the mechanism soon, according to Chancellor Burnett.

DEBATE APPLICANTS IN DELTA SIGMA RHO CONTEST MUST FILE

Drawings for First Round of Compet to Be Announced At End of Week.

Drawings for the intercollegiate debate tournament sponsored by Delta Sigma Rho must be in the hands of Prof. H. A. White, debate coach, by Tuesday, March 7. Fraternity or barb teams must file in room 117, Andrews, in order to be considered in the drawings for first round compet to be announced at the end of this week.

The topic for discussion this year as chosen by the honorary forensic society will be "Resolved: That the United States should have the largest navy in the world." "Due to the present state of international politics and rearmament, this subject is of timely importance, especially to college men and women, John Stover, president of the organization stated when announcing the subject for debate.

Concurrent with the policy of the past two years, the tournament will be divided into two classes with fraternity and barb teams competing among themselves for high honors. The fraternity sponsored teams compete for a silver gavel, while the victorious unaffiliated teams will receive medals.

At the end of the tournament proper, the champions of the two groups may debate for supremacy of the school if they so desire. This policy will be followed two years ago (Continued on Page 2).

LINUS BURR SMITH IS GUEST ART SPEAKER

Prof. Linus Burr Smith, chairman of the department of architecture at the University will be the Nebraska Art association's guest speaker Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Professor Smith will illustrate his address on "The Appreciation of Sculpture," which will be held in Morrill hall auditorium.

DR. INEZ PHILBRICK RETIRES NEXT JUNE; HAS TAUGHT 2,600

After forty-two years of practice as a licensed physician and seventeen years spent in association with university women, Dr. Inez Celia Philbrick, instructor and resident physician, will retire this June from active service. The March issue of the Nebraska Alumnus presents an account of her career with the article "Doctor and Physician," also written by Elsie Goth; '36.

The only woman physician to have ever been on the Nebraska teaching staff, Dr. Philbrick is resigning because, as she stated, "I am fair, fat, and seventy and I want to settle down and be my age." As writes Miss Goth in her article, Dr. Philbrick's "seventeen years spent in more or less intimate association with the University women have enabled her to help them in such a same, natural manner that it will be difficult for anyone else to do as well. In her classes in sex education she has had more than twenty-six hundred students."

Persuaded by Doctor Dr. Philbrick chose the career of a physician because of the encouragement of her family physician and also his promise, never fulfilled, that his medical library

CHANCELLOR EXPLAINS ENROLLMENT PROBLEM

Burnett Tells Difficulties Overcome by Avery.

Chancellor E. A. Burnett explained Friday night at the annual program of the Pallasian alumni association the difficulties experienced and overcome by Dr. Samuel Avery, late chancellor emeritus of the university, in bringing the school from an enrollment of 4,000 to 12,000.

At the meeting, which was a memorial to Avery, he stated that the former chancellor had maintained the educational standards of the institution despite trouble in getting appropriations. He added his predecessor's greatest contribution was the creating of the various technical colleges, such as the dental, agricultural, engineering, business administration, pharmacy and teachers colleges.

Several short talks by those who knew Dr. Avery were made by T. F. A. Williams, Flora Bullock, H. Clyde Filley, Albert A. Reed, Marcus D. Weldon, Chauncey W. Smith, Ernest B. Perry and Mrs. Susan Burkhart Chase. Mrs. Maude Hammond Fling played a piano selection. Mrs. Guile Brackett presided and Clifford E. Domingo, active president of the group, opened and closed the meeting.

DEBATE DEADLINE. All fraternity or barb debate teams wishing to file for the Delta Sigma Rho intercollegiate Debate Tournament must register in room 117 Andrews by Tuesday, March 17.

BURROUGHS, FIRESTONE TO INTERVIEW SENIORS

Bullock Asks Students to Schedule Meeting Tuesday.

Interviews with representatives of two firms, the Burroughs Adding Machine company and the Firestone Tire and Rubber company may be scheduled by seniors and graduates Tuesday in the office of Prof. T. T. Bullock, Social Science building 306.

Mr. Knisely of the Firestone company will be here on Thursday and Friday. He will choose men for the firm training school at Akron. Graduates of the training school are now scattered over the world holding varied positions with the company, many of them responsible in character.

Mr. McIntoch, Omaha district manager for the Burroughs firm, will interview at different times during the week, potential salesmen with at least one year of accounting.

Prof. Hollister to Address Engineers At Omaha Meeting

Prof. V. L. Hollister of the engineering staff will speak on alternating current at Friday night dinner of engineers at Hotel Paxton in Omaha. This will be in the form of a fiftieth anniversary in honor of the practical use of alternating current.

Student members of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will be guests of the Nebraska section at the dinner and will be taken on a tour of station WOV, Nebraska Power company, and the Northwestern Bell Telephone company Friday morning and afternoon.

Many of them will remain over for the "Last Roundup," so termed, because Nebraska engineers will drop the name Roundup and will become a permanent society, Professors Oscar Edison, Lloyd Bingham, Ferris Norris and Dean O. J. Ferguson will make the trip.

For Honors Convocation
