

LOCALS.

Kappa Kappa Gamma will receive at the Lincoln November 19.

Old hats made over successfully at Mrs. Gosper's, 1114 O street.

Chas. Horn was initiated into the mysteries of Sigma Chi Tuesday evening.

See those calling cards and programs at George Bros., printers, 116 & Thirteenth street.

Dr. Clifford R. Tefft, dentist; artistic crowns and bridges; 1127 O street, over Rehlander's drug store.

Sadie Puckett, fashionable dressmaking and millinery; 13th and O. Prices reasonable; satisfaction guaranteed.

Among those noticed on the sidelines at last Saturday's game were V. H. McCluskey, '96, and H. C. Parmelee, '97. W. F. Needham, merchant tailor, 125 & Twelfth st., carries a fine line of suitings; guarantees work; prices right.

The Delta Delta Delta fraternity will hold a reception at the Lincoln hotel on the evening of Thanksgiving, November 25.

A stock of Huntington's special die stamped stationery has been received by the Co-op. It makes the prettiest U. of N. tablet yet seen.

The senior girls held a meeting Friday to discuss several matters. Nothing of importance was accomplished, owing to the small attendance.

The Nebraska College of Oratory will give a pupils' recital in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium next Wednesday evening, November 18. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. Andrew Rosewater, municipal engineer in Omaha, is to give a series of five lectures to the civil engineers, the first one being on next Monday and the others on following Mondays.

The Union Boys' Debating club meet in Union hall Saturday evening, November 6, to debate the question: Resolved, That the municipalities should own and control their natural monopolies.

Delta Gamma entertained informally at the home of Miss Nella Cochran Saturday evening, October 30. The games, refreshments, and decorations were made to conform to the traditions of Halloween.

A treat is in store for those who attend the Dorian concert on Friday evening of this week. The main features of the entertainment will be the singing of the Beatrice male quartet and the phonographic selections.

The members of Pi Beta Phi entertained at the home of Miss Woodward Saturday night. The usual informality that pervades a celebration of Halloween was in evidence both in the entertainment and refreshments of the evening.

Miss Grace Salls, at one time a student in the University, and recently of St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., has returned to Lincoln. Miss Salls was a member of Delta Delta Delta at St. Lawrence and has transferred her membership to the chapter here.

The following who attended the game Saturday were the guests of Phi Kappa Psi during their stay in Lincoln. They were: Superintendents of Schools Pearce of Omaha, Brainard of Beatrice, Overholt of Ashland; also Referee Platt of Kansas City, John Scott, Clint Norton, and Mrs. Shedd of Ashland.

The Y. M. C. A. is planning to have a big meeting next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. All the college associations in the city and possibly the association at Doane will be represented. Mr. W. J. Huntington will lead the meeting. The subject will be: "The Central Motive in Our College Life." There will be plenty of good music. Every young man is invited.

With four enthusiastic debating clubs, possessing a membership ranging from twenty-five to fifty each, our prospect seems fair for the best of representation in interstate debates this year. The preliminaries for the Kansas-Nebraska contest were postponed this year that the law school might have more representatives. Correspondence is being carried on with various state universities with the hope of forming one or more leagues. Minnesota cannot muster sufficient enthusiasm to join. So far nothing has been heard from Missouri, Iowa or South Dakota.

'97 WILL ORGANIZE.

The class of '97 held a meeting Wednesday, preliminary to making a permanent organization that will, it is hoped, hold the class together for their own good and the good of the alma mater. Nothing was done at this meeting but appoint a committee to draft a constitution and appoint a meeting for next Wednesday at 5 o'clock. It is hoped that all members of the class of '97 who are in the city, whether in college or not, will come to the meeting next Wednesday and take a hand in the proceedings.

FOUL TIPS.

The base ball season will open with very bright prospects this year. Considering the fine record our team made last year and the fact that some of the old players are back, together with a great abundance of new material, Nebraska should have a team of which she may justly be proud.

To be sure, the team will feel the absence of such men as Walter Friel, who has played backstop for the boys for three years, and who is without a doubt the fastest amateur catcher in the state. Then it will be hard to find as honest and hard working a man as Tom Creigh to play shortstop, and for the first time in many years the center garden will be vacant. No words of praise are too good for our last year's captain, Lawrence Packard. He has played on the U. of N. base ball team for five years, always working hard for the best interests of base ball, and even going so far as to sacrifice self-interest when he thought he could strengthen the team by so doing. He was a true ball player crank. Never missing a practice, trip or no trip. But to fill these vacancies we have such men as Kenagy, who caught for Doane College and who caught several games for the state team last year. Then Col. Burr, a very fast local catcher, is in the law school, and after he has been fanned several weeks by the wings of a good coach he will be fast enough for any team.

Dutch Wells, with whom we are all acquainted, promises to get out this year, and this is enough to make the most pessimistic crank leap with joy.

The pitching department promises to be exceptionally strong, headed by Ed Gordon, who, by the way, pitches good ball if the birds fly thick enough over the diamond, together with Halstead, Rea, Spence, Wells, who will be in college the second semester; Williams, Brown, White, Burt, Melford, Peterson, from Iowa; Schwartz and Stringer. We have no fear for want of pitchers.

The rest of the boys need no introduction, as Reeder has played three years in left field, Kindler is familiar on the first bag, Benedict at second, Cowgill at third, Porter, Pace, More, Ryons, Dennison, Milford, and Meliza have all been seen in the game at different times.

The management will try and arrange things for a fall practice, and winter training has been seriously thought of.

THE REPETITION OF THE MINSTRELS.

The minstrel show was repeated at the Funke opera house Tuesday night to a large and enthusiastic audience. Perhaps it would be better to stop right here, but a word or two of explanation might be added.

Everything went against the minstrel show's second appearance from the start. In the first place Crane was at the Lansing, and he drew all his own house and nine-tenths of the minstrel's house, too. Then Professor Easterday and his coterie of brass tootlers were sore because they were roasted in the minstrel show, and they refused to make a parade for the troupe. This was a great deprivation, because a comic parade is always a drawing card.

There were not many in the audience when the curtain went up, but they were real nice people, anyway. When the troupe saw that they were not going to make money enough to fill the foot ball coffers, they went in for a good time—and they had it. Both Hunk Mueller and Jess Rowe forgot their tambos, and Jack Sumner forgot his rattlebones, and two end men had to go on with one bone apiece. Hunk sent down to a second-hand store and borrowed a child's tamba with the head busted in. It was so dilapidated that it couldn't make a sound, although Hunk did say it gave a tone to the performance. Jack Kind sat behind a big screen and played the accompaniments. The screen was so high that he couldn't see over it, and the only way he could tell when the soloists were ready was to lie with his ear on the floor and watch the slingers when they got up. He got tired of this and after the second number the soloists had to throw rocks over the screen to wake Jack up. The house was very quiet and sedate, and Jess Rowe said the only applause he heard was some that was wafted over from the Lansing. While the minstrel show was going on Phil Russell gave a box party to the Chums cast. During the intermission Artie Welshans scraped up an acquaintance with the other man in the audience.

"Chums" was produced again at the end of the show. Phil Russell was prettier than ever in a blue shirtwaist and a white duck skirt. La Rue Brown played the part of the old woman again, and he wore a Mother Hubbard that hung about him as gracefully as if someone had dropped it on him from the roof. Someone had caked his face over with powder to make him look aged, and he hitched himself across the stage like a galvanized ghost. La Rue's voice is a little heavy for a pious old lady's, anyway, and when he gets excited it rumbles like a runaway beer wagon.

Jess Rowe looked the part of a good old farmer, even if he didn't have any "bizoolers." Phil got excited in one scene and pushed Jess over a chair, and his head hit the floor four or five times in quiet succession. Jess always does have a hard time in this show. Last year his son tore the shirt nearly off his back and this year the prima donna wrestles him all over the stage. Jess is getting pretty old to act, anyway.

The play ended in the good old way and the house was cleared in an incredibly short time.
