OUTDOOR PENTATHLON.

Saturday afternoon occurred the annual outdoor pentathlon. A large crowd was present, but very little enthusiasm was shown. The men went at things with vigor and in spite of the lack of encouragement, they did remarkably well. No contestant received over four hundred points, so that the medal offered by O'Mahony cannot be given with it a special agreement with the giver. W. E. Anderson won with 325; Mouch, third, 270. Events and results follow: 100 yard dash—R. D. Anderson first 10 3-5; Priestly second, 10 4-5; Pepon third, 11.

BRYAN'S TALK.

The announcement that Colonel W. J. Bryan would speak to the students of the university on "Imperialism" caused the chapel to be filled with an enthusiastic audience of students. It was a characteristic crowd yelling itself hoarse as each professor made his appearance on the platform. Colonel Bryan being greeted with a perfect storm of applause.
Rev. Mauss conducted the services after which Chancellor MacLean introduced Mr. Bryan, saying that the military lockjaw with which Colonel Bryan suffered when he last appeared before a university audience, had been cured, and since silence was golden, and speech is silver, he expected to talk on 16 to 1.

Imperialism, said Mr. Bryan is not a partisan question and yet but one open to the whole American people. The question of the future of Cuba and Porto Rico need not concern us now, the Philippine problem being of the greatest importance.
The ratification of the treaty placed the question of the disposition of these islands in the hands of the American people. Mr. Bryan stated that personally he had not favored the treaty, but its ratification was wise, because the settlement of the question involved could be secured so much the easier.

No European nation will interfere with the settlement of these problems because this republic has been menaced to European powers, for the reason that we live under a government coming up from the people and not down from the kings.

Mr. Bryan said he was not here to speak for the Filipinos, for we could kill them all and the effect on the human race would be slight, but the question is, What is going to be the effect on us and through us on other nations? This nation cannot stand half free and half vassal.

The moment you trample on the rights of voters you put yourselves into the hands of the first tyrant who raises among you. If we hold the islands by force, we must prepare ourselves for the abandonment of an ideal. History furnishes no example of one people ruling another, without force and fear.

There will be no friendship unless we mingle blood with them, and until that time it is a dominant and a servant race.

English policy in India is good when described by the English, bad when described by the Indians. England's domination there is based on the desire to get every dollar out of the people of India. Mr. Bryan spoke at some length on this phase of the subject. Our people, he said, would not go to the islands if we did own the islands. We can't afford a conquest. It will lead to militarism. What chance is there that the money which the people of the United States have paid already in this war will ever come back to them?
We have been given this temptation to show the world that we are a nation strong enough to resist it.

MISSOURI VICTORIOUS.
