Editorial.

OUR contemporary slipped a cog last week.

"ONE college student is a gentleman, two are a crowd, three a mob."—Depew.

KANSAS University has adopted a new badge, in the shape of the common campaign button bearing a picture of Chancellor Snow. A similar one would undoubtedly prove popular here.

HON. MATTIE CANNON of Utah is the first woman elected to a State Senate in this country. She ran against her husband and beat him out of sight.

AS exchange very truthfully remarks: "A college paper is a great institution. The editor gets the blame, the manager the experience and the printer the money, if there is any."

THE eight debaters are hard at work preparing for the final contest which promises to be the hardest fought in the history of the University. The debate will be held Dec. 19.

THE Registrar calls the attention of students to the matter of leaving their city address at the office. The importance of this is apparent at first glance and no one suffers more from neglect of it than the student himself. If your present address is not on file at the office hand it in right away.

PARTIES who ought to know, tell us that more books bearing on the question for the final debate have been abstracted from the library this year than ever before. The ethics of such proceeding is too simple and plain to be discussed. May the men who swipe the fewest books win.

Now about this concert Friday night.—The quartette comes on such terms that the Oratorical Association hopes to make enough to square up its indebtedness. Muse, the basso of the organization is personally known here and is known to be a very fine bass. And we are advised by people who have heard them that the quartette is first class. The price of admission is only a half or a third as much as you would have to pay to hear the same concert anywhere else. You will get more than value for value by attending and will help lift the debt of the Association.
