

How they Spent Thanksgiving.

E. B. Perry read the populist platform three times without a smile or a tear. He spent the rest of the day in a comatose condition.

H. A. Meier spent the day in a cold law office, reading Tacitus.

H. O. Sutton put in his time studying the structure of the brain as presented in "that interesting book" Ladd's Psychology.

Rhodes spent vacation reading "Tom Brown at Oxford."

H. F. Gage agrees with most of his fellow-citizens in thinking that Thanksgiving day is set apart in order that people may take time to eat a "good square meal once a year."

G. W. Davis was called to his home in Rising City during vacation by the death of his aunt.

C. W. Taylor, E. O. Jones and Miss Sadie Smith spent Thanksgiving with friends and 'relatives' at Fremont.

Clyde McDowell ate cranberry sauce with his parents at Fairbury.

Among the West Point students who ate Thanksgiving turkey at home were: Fred Knagle, Eva O'Sullivan, J. C. Crawford and I. F. Langer.

Miss Catherine Woods, L. E. Mumford and J. F. Boomer were in Beatrice during vacation.

R. W. Thatcher entertained several of his college chums at his home on Thanksgiving evening.

J. W. Searson was at Plattsmouth. He expounded the Source Study method to the teachers of the county on Saturday. This doesn't tell half the tale.

The course in Municipal Government to be given next semester by the Political Economy department promises to be a hummer. Prof. Searson will have charge of it.

Fact and Rumor.

Dr. Bessey lectured to the teachers at Crawford Friday.

The English club will meet with Miss Prey Saturday evening.

The S. L. & Q. oratorical contest has been postponed until after the holidays.

University warrants are climbing towards par. They have risen from 95 to 98.

Most of the foot-ball boys have had their hair cut and now look like ordinary people.

The Uni. lunch counter is proving to be a successful enterprise. It is quite well patronized.

Reports from chapel indicate that there is plenty of room, especially in the professor's chairs.

Prof Caldwell will give a one hour course on Methods of Teaching History next semester.

Supt. Farley has arranged to have a series of University lectures at the spring institute in Cass county.

Prof. A. S. Harding will lead the Teacher's Reading Circle at Weeping Water in History work next Saturday.

Prof. Lyons will entertain the Dairy-men's Association, at the new dairy building on the state farm Dec. 17.

J. W. Crabtree was at the University last Saturday. He returned to Beatrice to fill Prof. Fling's appointment there.

Two German classes have been organized in the College Settlement. They are conducted by University students.

Prof. Nicholson will, shortly, contribute an article to The Gentleman Farmer, on "The Beet Sugar Industry in the U. S."

May Hopper, '96, who is teaching at Alliance, was elected secretary of the N. W. Teachers' Association at its meeting in Crawford last week.