

The Societies.

The Delian society had a first class program Friday night. The music consisted of a piano solo by Miss Kate Joyce and one by Miss Imogene Clinton. These were both well rendered although somewhat marred by the condition of the piano.

Mr. C. J. Allen opened the literary part of the program by a biography of Adoniram Judson giving just enough to make his hearers feel as though they would know more of this, one of the greatest men in history. Mr. Countryman related a true incident occurring in early Nebraska days. It touched everyone who heard it. Miss Wiggins recited a poem in German, the meaning of which was "out of sight," at least to most of the audience. Mr. Elmore gave a splendid eulogy of Miss Clara Barton of the Red Cross society. He reviewed her whole work in the United States and France giving the audience a clear conception of what this benefactor has done. It was well received. Mr. Woodruff gave a declamation which was well delivered and took with the audience.

The Palladian society had a special program Friday evening. It was denominated the "Officers Program." First Mr. Moore in his official capacity as "Is ferens documentum," told of the pleasures and displeasures of the slate-bearer. He thought the slate an efficient instrument in society work. Mr. Banghart, the treasurer, humorously related his experiences with delinquent members. Mr. Pinkerton then boasted of the fact that he was the first gentleman music secretary of the society. Miss Matthews, the historian of the society next read a paper written by Miss Philbrick, the corresponding secretary, on the "Society Bulletin." This was followed by the debate. In the debate John Boose endeavored to show that brain had done more for humanity than brawn. Mr. Cushman, the sergeant-at-arms urged a strong denial. The debate was spirited and humorous. Miss Bullock, the president and Mr. Corey, the critic, closed the program by rendering a novel and "catchy" duet.

The Unions have accepted an invitation to visit Miss Lethe Watson, Tuesday evening.

Chancellor MacLean lectured Friday evening before the teachers of Omaha on "A Missionary of Culture."

Friday night in the Delian society, Sayer moved to lay the critic's report on the table but was ruled out of order.

The English Club met last Saturday evening at the home of Miss Annie Prey. Stories were read by Miss Annie Broady, Mr. Kormeyer and Mr. Thomson. The rest of the evening was passed very pleasantly; friendly criticisms and impromptu recitations keeping the members beyond the usual hour.

The Association of Nebraska Teachers of History has issued a list of institute instructions in History. Among those listed as experienced institute instructors and specially prepared for teaching the source-study method are A. H. Harding, J. A. Maguire and J. W. Searson. Those listed as experienced teachers and special students in History in the State University, are Mrs. Ada Atkinson, Misses Eva Schock, Martha Chappell, Jennie Corban, Ida T. Robins, Julia Wort, Georgia Case; Messrs. J. F. Boomer, H. G. Shedd, A. C. Pancoast, B. C. Matthews, R. H. Graham and A. E. Pope. Those listed as special students in History at the University are, Misses Grace Thompson, S. Moren, Georgia Camp, Edith Schwartz, Bertha Pinkerton, Grace McMillan, Messrs. C. S. Norton, F. Hawley, G. H. Rose, Chas. Kuhlman, Jonas Lien, and W. S. Heitzman.