Do not think that Orator Roper won his last laurels when he won the state contest. Remember that next May he takes part in the inter-state contest.

It seems that our representatives in the Kansas-Nebraska debate are about to agree to disagree. To choose sides of the question and order of speakers is the difficulty. It is to be hoped that a reasonable compromise will be effected and all differences conciliated. The university should have its strongest representatives in the Kansas contest. "Resignations" are out of order.

The senate has at last concurred in the house bill appropriating $30,000 for the mechanics art building. Considering the "times" and the make-up of the legislature the university may consider itself fortunate.

The election of J. D. Denison, as president of the state oratorical association, is a recognition of which Mr. Denison is deserving. It is also fortunate for Nebraska collegiate oratory. If any one can revive interest in oratory and give vitality to the state association it is J. D. Denison.

The Union and Palladian boys debating clubs are this year holding several joint debates with different neighboring colleges. The holding of these forensic contests is to be encouraged. Intercollegiate debates not only create a spirit of college rivalry but also give us an opportunity to compare our forensic standard with the standard of others.

The remarks of Senator Goudring last week, when the senate was in a committee of the whole considering the university appropriation bill, were quite out of place. Not only were the charges made against Chancellor MacLean without foundation, but the senate was considering a university appropriation—not one for the Chancellor. It would be difficult to explain the cause for the senator's course.

Miss Minnie Dodds of Aurora, is visiting Miss Ella Leonard this week.

The line of men's furnishings that Herpolsheimer & Co. are showing this season for big value and small price surpasses anything ever seen in Lincoln before. Immense assortments of collars, cuffs, shirts, handkerchiefs, suspenders, etc. Men's cotton sweaters 29c each. Men's wool sweaters upward from $1.00 each.
