

College of Law Notes.

A number of the boys will go home to vote.

Harvey Kemp '98 wheeled down to Raymond Sunday.

Word has been received from J. D. Denison that his brother, who has been sick for some time, died Tuesday of this week. Mr. Denison has the sympathy of the student body.

The Maxwell club held its regular meeting Saturday evening. Messrs Winslow and Moyer urged that the Government took the proper position in the recent Pennsylvania strike. Messrs. Hurley and Tobey argued from the other standpoint.

Neither class has held an election of officers as yet. It is rumored that cause for this is found in the fact that some fences are in a very dilapidated condition. It is to be hoped that they are not irreparable.

Tomorrow evening, instead of the regular program the Maxwell club will have a "mock trial." J. S. Wallace will be judge; W. R. Hyatt, clerk; H. D. Bush, sheriff; V. V. Light, bailiff; H. C. Dean and J. H. Lien, attorneys for plaintiff; Messrs Humphrey and Grosvevor for defendant.

By special arrangements with the Collector Publishing Co. the HESPERIAN can send law students "The Law Student's helper" and the HESPERIAN, both one year, for $1.50. Quiz books may be had for forty cents each. Inquire of Sackett or Perry.

College Settlement Night School.

[Communicated]

Now that the weather has become more favorable, and the students having arranged their work, find more leisure, we expect to again open the night school at the Graham-Taylor House. Last year the instruction given there by the students resulted in much good and helped to arouse the interest of those people in the work which this University is trying to do among them; but as some of those who conducted classes there last year, have either not returned or find it impossible to do work this year, it will be necessary for other students to offer their services in order to carry on this most important work. It is not only the duty of every one enjoying the advantages of a higher education at this University to contribute either by personal or financial aid in the elevation of the poorer classes in that part of the city, but is of great practical benefit to those participating in the work both in teaching and becoming acquainted with the lower element of society. All who can devote one or more hours each week in teaching some of the lower branches at the College settlement, will please give their names to John S. Gutleben, chairman of instruction committee.

J. A. Sargeant returned yesterday.

Miss Mabel Dempster has been unable to attend classes this week on account of sickness.

We never lose sight of the fact that your interest is ours. Foot Form Store 1213 O st

Dr. Clark's Address.

Rev. Frances E. Clark, founder of the Christian Endeavor society spoke in chapel Monday morning. He had with him the hammer used by Wm. Cary, the great cobbler missionary. This old hammer was used as the gavel at the San Francisco meeting last summer. Rev. Clark used this gavel as a subject for his talk and so told the remarkable story of Wm. Cary's life. Mr. Cary was a cobbler too poor to make new shoes, but had to buy and mend old ones. He said "Preaching the gospel is my business and cobbling shoes my living." Mr. Cary afterwards went to India. He was the best Sanskrit scholar of his time. He saved his wages and built a college. He translated the bible into about forty dialects.

Mr. Clark also told of South Africa, the country noted for gold and diamonds. He said President Kruger was not the leading man there, or Cecil Rhodes or Barney Barnato were not the principal men because they had too low and material ideas. But the really great man was Andrew Murray, a poor Dutch minister, who had done more to raise the ideals of the people than any other man.

Student Comment.

In the death of Algernon S. Paddock the State of Nebraska lost one of her foremost and most energetic citizens. During his term of office in the U. S. senate he informed the people of different states that Nebraska would be looked after. He was very active in getting measures which would forward the interests of his own state. He was always looking forward to doing some good for the industries of Nebraska while he was depriving himself of the pleasant hours he might have spent in the social circles at Washington.

The ex-senator leaves a good clean record and this speaks a good deal for him. He is known throughout every state in the union as an upright and conscientious man. Mr. Paddock had planned more work than his constitution would allow him to do. Not only Nebraska, but the whole United States suffers a great loss in the death of such an honorable citizen as Algernon S. Paddock has proven himself to be.

Mr. Frank Coover joined the Palladian society Friday night.

I. M. Howard of Weeping Water visited with his brother G. C. for a short time last Monday.

Mr. Austenburg has been compelled to return to his home at Wahoo on account of typhoid fever.

H. I. Weaver, of Schuyler, made a short visit among University friends Monday. He is working at home on the farm this year and carrying enough University work to graduate with the class of '98.
