

ESTHA WILLIAMS

AT THE LANSING

The attraction at the Lansing theatre, Saturday October, 31, will be the production here of the charming romance of the mountains entitled "Tennessee's Pardner." The story of the play cleverly recounts the adventures of some rough but noble-hearted miners and a young southern girl whom they have adopted on the death of her father in the mines. The story appeals to all classes of theater-goers, the gallery as well as the dress circle. "Tennessee's Pardner" is in four acts, and has been acknowledged by competent critics to be a masterpiece. The comedy hinges on the first wedding in camp; the quaint sayings of the local coroner; the rough love-making of one of the miners with his pretty ward; the ludicrous serenade of the Rocky Mountain band; the sweet singing of the Golden Nugget quartette; and the funny doings of a chronic liar and his aversion to work—his witty dialogues with his sour spouse and his love of whisky, and his self-importance. The pathetic parts are the young southern girl's first intimation of her father's death, the deception practiced on one of the miners by an adventuress, and the tragic death of her brother. The company has given over 500 performances of the play during the past two successful tours in the large eastern cities—a perfect stage production is assured our theatre-goers. From the large advance sale already, the indications are that the company will be greeted by a full house. Seats on sale Thursday at 9 a. m. Prices $1, 75c, 50c and 25 c.
