The governor's mansion was ablaze with light Saturday night for a progressive chafing dish party, given by Delta Delta Delta fraternity, of which Miss Josephine Poynter is a member. White and yellow chrysanthemums and scarlet and cream roses combined the university and fraternity colors in the decorations. Cosy corners and nooks with countless soft sofa pillows added to the attractiveness of the beautiful rooms. Six chafing dishes were presided over by Misses Losch, Miller, Ames, Bonnell, Clara Smith and Lavinia Steele. Fun was had in visits to the gypsy fortune teller, Princess Mazella, who in Egyptian costume betrayed the future's secrets to the guests singly in a dimly-lighted, curtained room. There was also a musical game in which prizes were awarded. Mr. and Mrs. James Manahan chaperoned the young people, who were as follows: Misses Sans, Auld, Reeves, Lumery, Haywood, Brush, Ames, Clara Smith, Cora Smith, Koch, Thompson, Du Teil, Daisy Bonnell, Winifred Bonnell, Gund, Edna Gund, Koehler, Poynter, Miller, Blanche Losch, Cady, Von Mansfelde, Steele, Lavinia Steele, Vore, Dean; Messrs. Harry Crandall, Reed, Baumann, Poynter, Smith, Morrison, Williams, Adams, McKillup, Lonkly, McCreery, Von Mansfelde, Farnsworth, Hedge, McDonald, Sanders, Butler, Leon McDonald, Sanders, Butler, Leon Crandall, Kind, Drain, Hollenbeck, Elliott, Steele, Lawler, Fitzgerald.

The young ladies of the university school of music enjoyed a masquerade on Hallowe'en. They began with a grand march and had programs and all complete arrangements as though the party were not given "just for the girls." The halls were lighted with jack o' lanterns. Refreshments were served. Those present were Mrs. Kimball, Misses Biltgen, Kimball, Bradt, Dimmick, Kellogg, Kimball, Graham, Dolly, Bartz, Andrews, Barbour, Hutchinson, Cranor, Guthrie, Guthrie, McDonald, King, McClure, Jorgenson, Worley, Sawyer, Briggs, Jennings, Meredith, Briggs and Salle.

A small crowd of young people, chaperoned by Mrs. Hayes, spent an enjoyable evening at the Phi Psi chapter house Tuesday. They popped corn, toasted marshmallows, roasted chestnuts and had a good time in general. Those present were: Misses Emma Outcalt, Mabel Hayes, Blanche Hargreaves, Helen Woods and Eleanor Raymond; Messrs. Dewesse, Shedd, Crandall, Collett and Brown.

Last Tuesday evening the Palladians celebrated Hallowe'en. About fifty of their number assembled at the home of Miss Erisman, where appropriate decorations in sheets and pillow cases were donned. The crowd then proceeded to the elegant home of Miss Grace Cook, where a "ghostly" but lively evening was spent. After various games and fortune telling, refreshments were served, consisting of pumpkin pie, cider and apples. It was after midnight when Miss Cook said good-night to her well entertained guests.

Friday evening the young ladies of the Union Literary society at the university tendered a novel and enjoyable Hallowe'en party reception and entertainment to their gentlemen friends. The chandelier lights in Union hall were enveloped in expressive tissue covering in intimation of pumpkin jack-o'-lanterns, and cast their spectre-like phantoms and ghostly shadows on the carpet, couches and chairs. Fortune-revealing mysteries, charades stage exhibitions in conundrum consumed the first part of the evening. Light refreshments and jokes were then served. Quite unexpectedly the lights were muffled and the black messenger of nightly shades appeared. From out the gloomy stillness arose the voice of one from the stage reciting a mystic tale of graves and apparitions and orgies. Another story from the realms of doom-distilling dreamland portending ill-fate left a fear-struck crowd of students to hurry to their respective destinations and there pass the remainder of the night in recovering from the effects.

The Delians were entertained at the home of Miss Flossie Arches, 2046 S street, last Tuesday evening. The occasion was a Hallowe'en party. The evening was spent at progressive games and music. Those present were: Misses Packard, Ruth Pyrtle, Jessie Pyrtle, McCallum, Wiggins, Buckmaster, Wilson, Livsay, McClintic, Ducker, Doran, Morrill, Jones, Killen, Wyman, Bolshaw, Angie Rosa, Inez Rosa, McFall, Howell, Fleming, Saultz, McMillan; Messrs.
