RESIGNATION OF DR. HASTINGS.

At the last meeting of the Board of Regents Dr. W. W. Hastings tendered his resignation as Physical Training Director to take effect Jan. 1st 1901. Dr Hastings has accepted a call to the National Training School of the Young Men's Christian Association at Springfield, Mass. where he will fill the chair of Professor of Anthropometry and the history and Literature of Physical Training. Dr. Hastings graduated from this school in 1897 and was called immediately to take charge of Physical Training in The University of Nebraska. The department was then almost in its infancy and its growth and improvement since then have been to a great extent through the personal efforts of Dr. Hastings. During the last three years the athletic interests all over the state have been brought into a more organized condition and established upon a firm basis. Inter-scholastic and Interstate Athletic Associations have been formed and athletics in the University brought to a higher level. In all of these movements Dr. Hastings has always taken a prominent part.

The call to fill a professorship in his old school came entirely unsolicited and in accepting it Dr Hastings will enter into a field which he has always desired to take up as his life work; that of preparing young men to enter actively into the field of Christian work in the universities and colleges of the country. The majority of the colleges now draw their Physical Training Directors from the International Training School. By the departure of Dr. Hastings Nebraska loses one of the most valuable members of its faculty. His successor has not yet been chosen although several names have been mentioned in connection with that place, among whom is an old chum and classmate of Dr. Hastings, who is just finishing a medical course at Harvard. Dr. Hastings will continue in his work here until the first of January when he will depart for his new field of labors. The Nebraska-Hesperian wishes him a full measure of success in his new work.

FIGHT TO A FINISH.

Nebraska and Medics Play Best Game Seen in West for Years—Indians Lose to Second Team.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 28.—(Special dispatch to Nebraska-Hesperian from special staff correspondent.)

The annual game between the Nebraska eleven and the Kansas City Medics was played at Exposition park yesterday afternoon. It was one of the hardest fought battles ever seen in the west.

The weather was cloudy and the attendance not what it should have been. The result was a tie, the score being 0 to 0.

The game was fast and snappy from start to finish with first one team and then the other having the advantage. However, more playing was done in Nebraska's territory than in the Medics. This was partly due to the long end runs made by fake plays and to the superior line bucking of the Medics. Cook's punting helped out much. Although he has not tried punting until a week ago, he easily equaled the experienced punter of the doctors.

The game was full of plays, which kept the interest of the crowd at fever heat. Long end runs were made by both sides, especially by the Medics. Time after time when two downs failed to net more than a couple of yards, a punt followed for the next play. Both teams were strong on the defensive thus forcing such plays.

The team work of the Medics was excellent. Their line at times proved to be almost invincible, although one or two of their men were not in the best of shape. The interference on the end runs was not as strong as the university men expected to find. The backs, however, were swift and could hit Nebraska's line for many gains. Fake plays, the double pass, and delayed pass were used by the Medics for good gains.

The team work of the Nebraska men proved a surprise to their admirers. The defensive work, which was considered rather weak proved to be very strong. The interference for end runs was quickly formed but at times failed to hold together as much as it should. Nebraska's backs proved their strength by unexpected gains against the strong Medic line.

Crandall, Nebraska light half-back, out played any man in the game on either team. He never failed to make some gain against the opposing line and made the longest run of the game for fifty yards. He was injured several times but rallied to go back in and play harder than ever. Brew, Westover, and Montgomery played good ball. Brew went out of the game at the end of the first half and Pillsbury took his place.

Fumbles by the University men were too numerous and proved rather costly. The Medics were also unable to hang on to the pig skin at critical times and fumbled in the second half when they had only ten yards to make for a touch down.

FIRST HALF.

Ringer kicked off for 40 yards to Toland who returned it ten yards. Porter tried Nebraska's right end, but lost ground and Morley only made a yard through the line. Toland punted forty yards. Montgomery went around end for three yards and Crandall tried the other end for but small gain. A fumble gave the ball to the Medics in the center of the field. The next four plays netted twelve yards, but the Medics lost the ball on downs. Crandall and Cook went through for a yard each and Cook punted for 30 yards.

The Medics could not make their ground and Toland punted forty yards. Brew made two and Cook punted to center of field, at this point, the delayed pass was used and Porter went around Nebraska's left end for thirty-five yards. The Medics soon lost on downs. Montgomery went around end for three. Crandall went through the line for two. Montgomery made seven yards around the left end. Crandall then skirted right end for forty yards aided by beautiful interference. The Medics gained the ball on downs.

Lewis tried to circle Nebraska's left end, but lost ground. A few short plays followed and Morley then took the ball going around their right end for thirty yards. Time was called after a couple more plays. Score, 0-0.

SECOND HALF.

The first few minutes were taken up entirely with ineffectual line bucks followed by punts. Montgomery was hurt and Drain put out on a foul. Neilson and Bender went in.

The Medics had the ball in their possession and in their own territory they were playing like tigers. Grady went around right end for seven and Morley the left for four. Lewis made fifteen and then five yards around Nebraska's left end. Line bucks failed to gain the ground and Nebraska took ball on her 30 yard line. A few plays netted 12 yards, followed by a punt for 15 yards.

Morley tried the right side of Nebraska's line with the delayed pass and lost ground. Nebraska secured the ball on downs and punted to the Medics 30 yard line. Morley circled their right end for five yards and Grady worked the delayed pass going around the same end for 35 yards.

Cook went out and Werl in. By line bucks and a run around the right end for 10 yards, the Medics placed the ball on Nebraska's ten yard line. A touch down now seemed certain as the Medics had the down hill and were going forward slowly but surely. A fumble, however, gave the ball to Nebraska and it was punted out of danger. The Medics by line bucks and a run around their right end by Lewis carried the ball within 17 yards of Nebraska's goal, when time was called. Score, 0 to 0.
