"Imitation is the most sincere flattery."

Football at the university is far better this year than for some time past. This was shown most conclusively yesterday by the two games in which our players were engaged. A victory was won by the second eleven and a tie game played by the first team.

While many wished that the first eleven would win from the K. C. Medics, it was conceded that a tie game would show much strength on the side of the university men. The doctors of Kansas City are known all over the west as having one of the strongest teams. This year is no exception to the rule as they have won all their games up to this time. The game was one of the fastest ever played in the west.

The second eleven put up a good game against the strong Nebraska Indian team and succeeded in making a touch down in each half. This is the first year the university has been able to turn out a good second eleven and with more signal practice, it will be strong enough to beat any team in Nebraska. With two such teams to pick from, the university should continue to win during the rest of the season.

The idea of most people is that a student's religious life is much neglected when he comes to the university. They feel that a person goes to college in order to gain a higher education and his mind is so much taken up with his work of a material nature that he neglects the spiritual development. To a certain extent this is true and were it not for the opportunities and reminders that are constantly being thrown out to the student, he might lose some of those finer religious qualities.

It is highly commendable in our government to establish schools of agriculture in the Philippines. The practical form of education will do much more towards civilizing and fitting these people to make their own living than could be done in any other way. So far, very few have expressed a desire to engage in this pioneer work though the superintendent of public instruction in the Philippines has asked the presidents of all leading universities to make recommendations. It is understood that good salaries will be paid but only the strongest men selected.

The churches have opened their doors to the student and welcome him to their good fellowship as cordially as they do their own members. The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. are perhaps the most important religious functions of the student body. These associations are organized by the students for the promotion of the student's spiritual welfare. Each morning of the school week a short religious service is held in the chapel of the university, where a few moments are taken to remind the student of his religious duties. The different pastors of this city together with the professors conduct these services.

"All students will be interested to learn that the band will go down with the team to help win the Nebraska game on Thanksgiving day. The board of control has decided to hire the university band to furnish music for the athletic ball and the money that they would pay them will be given towards paying their expenses to Lincoln."—Minnesota Daily.

The above clipping shows that the Minnesota men expect to carry off all the honors at the Thanksgiving game. While we admire their energy and push, we have a suggestion to make. It is this: that they learn among other pieces the following: "We were happy 'till we met you and the fault was all your own." etc.

In the early history of the university, there was a genuine interest exhibited in the work of the literary societies by the students and professors. It rarely happened then that a strong student would leave the university without having had considerable training in speaking and debating in one of the literary societies. As the institution has increased in departments and in number of students, the general interest in the literary societies has decreased. Only a small per cent of the students now belong to the literary societies or the debating clubs. The great majority leave the university unable to speak effectively in public or to preside with credit over an assembly of any kind. This should not be the case. The importance of this work should not be lost sight of by the great mass of students. Every student ought to be a member of some literary organization. There is interest and enthusiasm in the few literary societies that we now have. Let us hope that this interest may grow until it results in the organization of several new societies with a good membership.
