A PRINTING PRESS.

Ofttimes have the various editors of the STUDENT, knowing and appreciating the value of the paper, and realizing the irksome and difficult task of publishing it, depending on down town offices for publication, advocated the purchase of a But their words fell heedlessly upon the ears of those in authority, failing to receive the attention which they so much deserved. Hence after six years of vexatious toil, during which time the STUDENT has been nursed from a rude, artless sheet into a magazine, which among the journals of the college world holds an honorable position and possesses a reputation to be envied by journals hailing from long established colleges in the remote East. The students, in order that they may promote the work, which has been so admirably commenced, which has proven worthy of success, which is deserving of much encouragement, come before the Regents, and prequest the purchase of a printing press. Laboring under the various disadvantages, which the STUDENT has done, attaining the flattering position which it now holds, provergy and determination, we deem the re- en, upon it's own foundation, which will quest a rational one, worthy of appreciative regard.

The STUDENT, since its establishment, has been conducted wholly by students, giving employment to many, serving as a means of livelihood to those who have performed the mechanical labor, giving experience and discipline to all connected, which will prove valuable assistance in the experiences of life. But its valuable and advantageous work in training and disciplining the student's mind in that direction which is so desirable and necessary is manifest. We need not longer tell of the advantages derived, they are apparent to all. Within the last year the STUDENT has paid for publication a sufficient amount to have purchased a press, and this procured by its own exertion and from " hearty support given by the people of the state, and aside from an appropriation by the Regents for the purchase of type, the STUDENT has paid its own way, stood on its bottom. With a press, the STUDENT will immediately become independent, will be able to purchase its own type, of which it now stands in need, will give employment to more students, placing the college paing to the people that it is built upon en- per, which is now, far from being a burd-
