

Don't try to take a sleigh ride. Its snow use; there is nothing but mud.

The Junior Class Exhibition will take place March 20th. They have not yet decided at what place.

Students having dull razors would do well to note E. G. Mason's advertisement which appears in our columns.

Boys, if you will carry young ladies' pictures, don't put your name on them, then if you lose them its all right.

"Have a biscuit?" A.(just beginning, German) "Nein." Great consternation among the hungry non-Germans.

C. E. Magoon has been quite sick with the Lung Fever. What hurts him is that he can't be present at the investigation.

It is said that a burglar meditating the robbery of a jewelry store was the author of "Watch shall the Harvest be."

The Union now fines late members—that is the boys. The Janitor has been instructed to open the halls at sundown.

Several students were called upon to act as pall bearers the other day. They were removing the skeleton from Prof Palmer's room to its proper place.

It caused some astonishment in the class the other day, when the Prof, for the purpose of illustration, promptly drew a bottle from his desk. This wont do.

When you see a youth anxiously scanning the constitution of the Lecture Association, you may know he is looking for a girl who is a member, and consequently has a ticket.

The Lecture Association has a membership of ninety seven. Four lectures have already been given under its auspices—three by Prof. Collier and one by Chancellor Fairfield. The lectures were a success in all respects though not immensely so in a financial view on account of the great number of complimentary issued.

The expression "As prone as are the sparks to fly upward" is said to be void of point if there is a bald headed party below on which they could light by going downward.

The chapel has been supplied with new singing books. The younger portion of the students are happy. It was so inconvenient to shy a book at the head of a fellow and have it go to pieces before it reached him. These have no such fault.

Mr. Easterday complains that an individual goes round in the evening calling his name in loud tones. Mr. E. is a modest young man and does not like to have his name thus paraded before the public. "Want any yeast ter day?"

"I always spend more money than I intended to when I came in, the prices are so low!" is the remark made by many ladies in the Little Store on 11th Street, and it is the low prices on Corsets Ruching, Buttons, &c that take so well.

Four Juniors were recently suspended. Now please don't infer from this that these young men had been doing anything wrong. They were merely hanging on to a hand spike trying to part Prof. Collier's two lead discs.

It caused a broad smile to illumine the countenances of the students as, a few days after the investigation began, the song was announced in chapel with the title "The half has not been told."

A Soph was telling a story of a conversation he had with Senator Howe on an important subject when a Prep sat down on him by telling that he heard the conversation and that it amounted to this: Senator, "Hello bub, go and get me a glass of water"

While two of the boys were carrying to the Opera House some Alcohol and water to be used in Prof Collier's lecture, it required their utmost endeavors to prevent a third party from absorbing it on the plea that it was intended for fill-a-sophical purposes.
